ISMAEL RODRIGUEZ, 84-19 51st Avenue, Elmhurst, Queens, leader of JURE, on December 20, 1963, advised that MANUEL "MOLLO" RAY, head of JURE, stopped at La Guardia Airport for several hours on the night of December 19, 1963, enroute to San Juan, Puerto Rico. RODRIGUEZ said that RAY called him from La Guardia Airport and asked him to pick up Dr. RAUL CHIBAS, a leader of JURE, and bring him to the airport for a meeting.

RODRIGUEZ stated that he did what RAY had asked him and there was a meeting of RAY, CHIBAS, himself and several other individuals of JURE, held at the airport prior to RAY's departure. During this short meeting with RAY, RODRIGUEZ said that RAY told them that "this is the beginning of the end for CASTRO". [redacted] also told NY T-1 that JURE had 50 men trained and equipped to go into Cuba and that JURE was interested in purchasing 500 weapons of the M-1 and "Enforcer" type which were available through NY T-1. [redacted] said that they desired to have 200 to 300 rounds of ammunition for each gun purchased and they would like this equipment in 60 days. NY T-1 said that he told [redacted] that the sale of these guns could only be made to legitimate governments or dealers. NY T-1 stated that the cost of the .30 carbine M-1 was $89.95, and the "Enforcer" was $99.95. NY T-1 said that he told [redacted] that he could get these guns from the company in the neighborhood of $60.00 each as he did not desire to make any profit on the sale of the guns to JURE. B
