The synopsis of Miami report dated 8/5/58, captioned "July 26 Revolutionary Movement, Miami" (97-3244) set out Frank Anthony Fiorini as one of the leading members of the action group within that Movement. Details of the report failed to substantiate this information in that the name of Frank Anthony Fiorini was not mentioned in the information therein pertaining to these members; however, information was included indicating that Frank Anthony Fachetti was a member of this July 26 Action Group.

On 4/28/58, MM 639-S advised that Gabriel Navarette of 2160 S.W. 4th Street, Miami, was engaged in the purchase and transportation of guns for the July 26 Action Group and that an American named Frank (lnu) was living with Navarette at that address. (u)X

On 4/29/58, MM 639-S advised that Frank Fachetti, about 23 or 24 years of age, 6' tall, black hair, dark complexion, Italian extraction, and from the NYC area, was residing at 2160 S.W. 4th Street. MM 639-S advised that Fachetti reportedly fought in Cuba with the rebels in the Sierra Maestra mountains against the government forces of Cuba and that he now was working with Sergio Sanjenis in the Miami area purchasing arms for a possible future smuggling operation. (u)X

On 4/30/58, Wallace Shanley, US Customs, Miami, advised he had obtained information that Frank Anthony Fachetti, white male, 6' tall, between 25 and 28 years of age, black wavy hair, 180-190 pounds, was residing at 2160 S.W. 4th Street and had been seen driving with Navarette in a 1950 Plymouth, 1958 Florida license # 1-115646. According to records of the Dade County Auto Tag Agency, this license was listed to Richard M. Kedziora, 35 N.W. 58th Street, Miami.

Andrew Szentgyorgyi (protect identity), who had just returned from about six weeks in Havana, Cuba, on a special assignment for "Life" magazine, advised a New York Office Agent on 2/19/59 that while in Havana he ran across several Americans, one of whom was Frank Fiorini, Captain in the Rebel Air Force, who intended to stay in Cuba.

On 3/23/59, Michael R. Moreno, a Miami photographer, furnished information relating to the arrest and questioning of Moreno, Robert Daut and Richard Jaffe by the Department of Logistics (109-590) in Cuba, on or about 3/5/59. Moreno and Daut, a Miami pilot, who were enroute to British Honduras on business, were met in Havana by Jaffe, a business acquaintance, and these three proceeded to the Cuban Air Force Base at Camp Columbia to obtain clearance to proceed to British Honduras. It was here they were held by military police and while guns were pointed at the three men, Frank Fiorini happened along and told Moreno and his companions not to worry as he would get them off. Moreno said they never saw Fiorini again.

On 4/20/59, at Police Headquarters, Habana, Cuba, Lawrence Eugene Hall (105-78016), a US citizen, advised that he arrived in Habana on 3/19/59. He then met Captain Frank Fiorini, an American with the Revolutionary Air Force. Hall said his purpose in coming to Cuba was to join the Revolutionary Forces and that after explaining his purpose he was introduced by Fiorini to a Lieutenant Duany and to a Cuban lady known only as "Lucy." Duany identified himself as a member of the "13th of March Movement". (u)

~~_____~~ Andrew Szentgyorgyi (protect identity), 104 Pearsall Drive, Mount Vernon, NY, advised on 4/3/59 that he had returned recently to the US from a month's trip to Havana, Cuba. In Havana he met and spoke with Frank Fiorini who had been active with the Castro movement in the US in supplying arms to Castro's forces in the mountains. Szentgyorgyi stated that at the present time Fiorini was Chief of Security for the Cuban Air Force.

On 6/19/59, MM 635-S advised that he and Douglas Leftbright (ph), a Canadian serving in the Cuban Air Force, had been sent to Miami several days previously by the Cuban Air Force to sabotage a P-51 airplane which allegedly had been dropping anti-Castro leaflets over Cuba. They located the plane at Fort Lauderdale and were in the proximity of the plane; however, they had no intention whatsoever of actually going through with this mission. On 6/20/59, James Byers (protect identity), Assistant Sales Manager, Aerodex, Miami National Airport, advised that Leftbright, along with a member of the Cuban Air Force (not further identified), had come to the office of Aerodex. Leftbright said that he and his companion had just "pulled off a deal" (not identified); that Frank Fiorini and Sergio Brule Diaz, also of the Cuban Air Force, had been sent to Miami on another mission for which they had spent a lot of money but accomplished nothing; and that they probably would attempt to take credit for the deal which had been executed by Leftbright and his companion. Information concerning the late 1958 - early 1959 activities of Frank Fiorini was brought out during SISS (62-88217) hearings involving the testimony of Ricardo Luis Lorie y Valls, Cuban citizen, in Executive Session, on 7/24/59 at Miami Beach, Florida, and of Dr. Juan Orta Cordova, former private secretary of Fidel Castro, on 3/31/65, place of hearing undisclosed for security reasons. This related to activities of Fiorini, an American, in behalf of the Castro regime, both in Cuba and the US, including his involvement in the smuggling of arms to Cuba and use of planes purchased with Cuban funds in Fiorini's name, two of which remained in his possession when he left Cuba at the time Pedro Diaz Lanz of the Cuban Air Force defected on or about 7/1/59.

Alexander I. Rorke, Jr., 51 Chambers Street, NYC, who had been associated with various anti-Fidel Castro activities, on 4/21/62 advised that he had learned from Frank Fiorini that on either 4/17/62 or 4/18/62, he and Pedro Luis Diaz Lanz and others associated with Diaz were stopped about 40 miles southeast of Miami, Florida and turned back to Miami by the US Coast Guard. According to Fiorini, the Coast Guard action in stopping two of the boats belonging to Diaz was prompted by orders from Washington, DC. Rorke advised on 4/25/62 that he again spoke with Fiorini who was very much disgusted because they had been stopped by the Coast Guard and said he believed Diaz set up this activity in order to discontinue all activity against the present Cuban Government. Fiorini said there were both men and plenty of weapons aboard the boats but that the men were not detained nor were the boats or weapons confiscated by the US Government.

This reference identified Diaz Lanz as former head of the Cuban Revolutionary Air Force.

MM 639-S advised on 10/29/62 that Mario Garcia Kohly (105-88521) was in Miami, Florida at that time and had conferred with Frank Fiorini who told Kohly he would arrange for an interview between Kohly and Jack Cumings of "Newsweek" and Jack Anderson, a Baltimore, Maryland newsman, and that these interviews would result in considerable publicity for Kohly. Fiorini, in return, expected Kohly to contribute funds to Fiorini for arms and ammunition. Fiorini claimed that Nat Bishop of Larchmont, NY, was expected to arrive in Miami on 11/3/62, at which time Fiorini would show Bishop a fast boat which he hoped Bishop would buy for Fiorini, to be used in raids against Cuba. According to Fiorini, Bishop was a good friend of Kohly. (u)

Rorke, his son, and the girl were leaving for New York on a Northeast flight. They asked for information concerning the activities of Eloy Gutierrez Menoyo, which information source was unable to supply except for some brief background data. Source learned that Rorke, his son, and the girl had left Miami about 12/28/62, on the boat "Violin III" for Anguila Key, returning on 1/2/63. During that period, Rorke, with camera and equipment, had proceeded from Anguila Key to an unnamed point in Cuba to deliver arms and ammunition, aboard the "Sigma II" (105-116892) which was manned by Menoyo and about 5 crewmen. Other associates of Fiorini in activities involving the "Violyn III" included Zacarias Costa Garcia, head of a group called Los Pinos Nuevos; Evelio Duque Miyares, head of the Cuban Anticommunist Army; Jerry Buchanan, an American adventurer; and Jose Maria Gonzalez Hernandez, a Cuban radio operator. Fiorini allegedly maintained contact at sea with the "Violyn III" although he disclaimed knowledge of its whereabouts. On 3/29-31/63, Fiorini, Johnson and Gonzalez reportedly traveled to Nassau and Norman Key, Bahamas, in connection with a plan of Evelio Duque to take radio equipment into Cuba; however, they were intercepted by British authorities and returned to Miami before the plan materialized. As of 4/13/63, Hernandez reportedly claimed he was working with Sturgis and Johnson. It had been reported also, that Fiorini admitted having a clandestine radio station in operation, however, he did not disclose further details concerning it. raid indicated that Rorke was closely associated with Frank Fiorini and had distributed a leaflet which referred to participation in expeditions against Castro in the Spring of 1961 which were commanded by Fiorini, the Commanding Officer and organizer of the Anti-Communist International Brigade. It was reported that during April, 1963 Fiorini had claimed that plans were in progress for a new "strike"; also, that Fiorini had been in contact with Edgardo Sopo Barreto of the MRR who, on 5/1/63, alleged that Fiorini made frequent visits to Manuel Artime Buesa's organization* where he made irresponsible claims that were not true. During an interview in Miami on 4/27/63, Fiorini advised that he first met Rorke in 1960 in Miami, at the home of a leading anti-Castro Cuban, Pedro Diaz Lanz. He stated that about one month previously in Miami, he met with Rorke, Hansruedi Tanner and Geoffrey Sullivan who wanted Fiorini's help in proposed aerial action over Cuba; however, Fiorini declined to assist them. He denied knowledge of the 4/25/63 mission beforehand and expressed doubt that it actually took place:

With reference to foregoing, Frank Anthony Sturgis, better known as Frank Fiorini, 2515 Northwest 122nd Street, Miami, was interviewed on 4/24/63. He denied any connection with Alpha 66, even though in the past he had admitted cooperation with Cuban anti-Castro groups. Fiorini said that several weeks previously, date unknown, a Mr. William DePugh in Missouri called him and inquired about Jerry Brooks (100-434935). Fiorini called an address where Brooks supposedly resided but obtained no information. He notified DePugh of that fact and had heard nothing since then. He was unable to furnish information concerning anyone else on foregoing list.

Fiorini, who had always expressed cooperation with the FBI in Miami in the past, again contacted DePugh in Missouri by phone on or about 5/2/63 and on 5/7/63, he furnished additional information on Brooks obtained from DePugh at that time. It was Fiorini's observation that DePugh would not cooperate with the Bureau in view of his connections in the "Minutemen". Fiorini also pointed out that Brooks supposedly was in Miami for two or three days (date not given), reason unknown to Fiorini.

Fiorini claimed he made numerous trips to Cuba for the purpose of sabotage against the Castro dictatorship and to gather intelligence data for various Cuban exile groups in Miami. Fiorini admitted being knowledgeable and experienced in the use of explosives for sabotage purposes but denied any such activities in the US. He denied any connection with the attempted bombing of the "Oro Verde" or with any vessel in the Miami Harbor.
