BY MR. MANFREDI:

Q Have you caused the Agency records with respect to Mr. Sturgis to be assembled in any one location?

A Yes. Ihave custody of them.

Q And what is the volume of that material?

A As I recall, there are five volumes. Your Committee called for them the other day after the article in the paper, I guess it was last Saturday. They called for them Monday and they returned them Monday afternoon.

Q Do you know who examined those files?

A No, I don't.

Q You indicated a moment ago that Mr. Sturgis contacts the DCD office in Miami with some frequency, is that correct? A Well, not great frequency but he does with tidbits of so-called information.

18 Q Is this information limited to narcotics, alleged 19 narcotics traffic?

A Recently it has been.

21 Q Has Mr. Sturgis been encouraged by the DCD office 22 in Miami?

A Mr. Sturgis has been told by the DCD office in Miami 24 to take his information to the Drug Enforcement Agency or the 25 FBI.

At the present time, how large is that Cuban community 0 in Miami? Do you have any idea?

20

Well, it is extremely large. I would think it is Α probably -- I was trying to think. I would say up towards a military people.

You spoke about paramilitary operations and covert 0 action. How do you distinguish between those two categories of activities?

А Well, actually one can fall into the other. The paramilitary could fall into covert action but in those days we did distinguish somewhat. A lot of the covert action was media placement. We had a number of operations at -- legaltype operations, harassment operations. For instance, Fidel seized a great many art treasures and in particular he had a Napoleonic collection which was supposed to be the finest in the world that he sold to dealers in Europe. He had paintings that were immensely valuable that he tried to have auctioned in London and the London auctioneer would not accept them because he obviously didn't have clear title to them. He was -- they were stolen, in the eyes of the auctioneer. He was forced to auction them in Toronto, Canada.

Street, S.C., Washington, D.C. 20003 22 We ran legal operations, got the owners and had them 23 hire attorneys and bring them to court and this type of thing. 24 He seized these race horses. He tried to peddle them 25 in Europe and up in Canada. We ran opposition against that DocId:32203851

| 20 | I guess as you are aware, Cuban industry was totally |
| 21 | U.Soriented. As parts began wearing out and this type of |
| 22 | thing, Castro had his little people there running around trying |

Q Let's talk about economic warfare for a couple of moments. Could you describe for me briefly the type of economic activities that were conducted against Castro?

Α Well, first of all, we wanted to denigrate the regime, his credit worthiness, and this type of thing. We worked very closely with the Coordinator of Cuban Affairs in the State Department and, well, for instance, in those days, I guess it was back in 1964, the price of sugar had jumped from about a penny a pound to 13 cents a pound, something like that, and we couldn't understand why. So we kept -- Fidel kept saying that he had such a poor crop and this type of thing and we just couldn't figure out why he had such a poor crop because some of our own island assets told us they were out there cuttin this cane like mad and the mills were working 24 hours a day, this type of thing. So subsequently, we found out that he was lying and he was storing the raw cane in the schools, any place. He had no storage facilities and put it any place he could.

So in cooperation with a couple of sugar brokers in New York, we surfaced this fact and the price of sugar took a Q Were there any operations run out of the United States which involved destruction of crops or poisoning of sugar or anything of that sort?

A What did you have in mind specifically? You mean the Puerto Rican thing?

9 A Well, that is one of the things I had in mind.
 10 Would you describe that for me?

A Well, this is, I guess you could term it a target of opportunity. This was where a vessel was carrying Cuban sugar to the Soviet Union and I forget exactly now what happened to it but I know that it got a hole below the waterline, or something, and had to put into Puerto Rico for repairs.

16 In order to repair it, I guess, and get it in the 17 drydock or wherever it was, they had to remove the sugar and 13 put it in the warehouse and at that time I guess somebody came 19 up with a plan to try to widen the rift between -- there was 20 a rift at that time between the Soviets and Cubans and to 21 put a harmless substance into the sugar that would make it 22 acid, sour tasting, and it wouldn't harm the sugar or the 23 individual, and some of this was done. And then when it 24 leaked, of course, we had to get rid of it and we had a sugar 25 firm buy it back from the Soviets.
