ANTI-FIDEL CASTRO ACTIVITIES

" Maraboto said members planned to rendezvous at an undisclosed location on the countryside between Ponce and Juana Diaz.

"It resembles "rural Cuba," he said.

" Names of the underground will remain anonymous."

According to the July 24, 1962, issue of the San Juan Star, which carried an article concerning the JURE, it was indicated that Manolo Ray, former president of the Exile Popular Revolutionary Movement, (PRM), a Cuban Exile Movement, said in an interview that all "Popular" political factions outside Cuba would be accommodated in a new Junta Revolucionaria (JURE) in an effort to restore the splintered movement into an effective working organization.

Ray added that the Movement would be financed almost entirely by Cubans. He stated, "we can win with our own resources if we have the will to do so," and "people who don't believe that Cubans can win without United States aid should not join us."

(X)(u)
[On September 4, 1962, SJ T-1,] a Cuban exile residing in Puerto Rico, who is well acquainted in the Cuban colony here, advised that the above article was a result of the efforts of Manolo Ray, formerly a Cuban exile leader, who was using the present crisis concerning Cuba being supplied with Soviet arms in an attempt to regain the political prestige he once held among the Cuban exiles. None of the Cuban exile leaders are expected to attend this meeting as they have no confidence in Manolo Ray or his ideas concerning Cuba.

[On September 4, 1962, SJ T-2, who is a leading Cuban exile leader, residing in Puerto Rico, furnished essentially the same information as SJ T-1, and in addition, stated he had been asked to attend the above-described meeting but had declined. He heard that possibly a few Cuban exiles planned to attend this meeting but the 113 Cubans mentioned in the article as the number expected to attend, was strictly a propaganda statement by Manolo Ray and designed to add an atmosphere of urgency and importance to the meeting. SJ T-2] (X)(u) stated that Cuban exiles in Puerto Rico placed no confidence in the statements made by Manolo Ray, especially concerning his implied contacts in Washington, D. C., with officials of (u)

ANTI-FIDEL CASTRO ACTIVITIES

the United States Government and claims of leadership and backing of the Cuban exiles. (c)

(u)(*) [SJ T-2] predicted complete failure of this planned meeting, but stated he felt that Manolo Ray and his followers would continue in their efforts to win the Cuban exiles by trickery and false propaganda efforts. (c)

(u)(*) [SJ T-3, a Cuban exile leader residing in Puerto Rico, advised on May 8, 1962,] that Manolo Ray had practically no following in Puerto Rico or the United States and that the Cuban exiles considered him to be, politically speaking, left of center. He explained that although Manolo Ray is not a communist, he advocated most of the ideas put in practice by Fidel Castro of Cuba.

(u)(*) [SJ T-3] Concerning the above-described meeting of the JURE, [SJ T-3] stated that this meeting had been in the planning stage for the last month or so and that it appeared to have been timed for its propaganda effect on the Cuban exiles in Puerto Rico. [SJ T-3] stated that he felt if 30 people actually attended, the meeting would be considered a success.
