JFK-Act 6 (4)

[redacted] indicated that he had been the General Coordinator of the 30th of November anti-Castro organization in Cuba during 1959, 1960 and the first part of 1961. He arrived in the United States at Miami on June 29, 1961, via small boat. Upon his arrival in the United States, he assumed leadership of the 30th of November movement in Miami until approximately October, 1962, when he entered the U. S. Army under the Cuban recruitment program at Fort Jackson, S. C. Subsequent to this, he has been affiliated with the 30th of November movement in Chicago for approximately two years, 1963-1965, and in Miami, 1965 to date.

JFK-Act 6 (4)

[redacted] is currently employed as a security guard for the National Patrol Detective Agency and the National Industrial Security Corporation (affiliates), 590 S. W. 27th Avenue, Miami, Florida. In connection with this employment, he is a guard at the Cuban Refugee Processing Center of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) three days a week. The Processing Center is located in Buildings T-90 and T-94 which are utilized by the U. S. Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) in processing, fingerprinting and photographing Cuban refugees upon their arrival in the United States. X CIA [redacted] (B) interrogates (S) these arrivals [redacted] (S)

JFK-Act 6 (4)

[redacted] related he met ROBLEJO around the first of January, 1967, when ROBLEJO reportedly returned from Mexico City where he had been attempting to seek the release of Cuban political prisoners in Cuba. He met ROBLEJO through ANGEL ESTEVEZ, a coworker of [redacted] at the Hotel Fontainebleau where both were employed as waiters at that time. At the request of ESTEVEZ, [redacted] furnished ROBLEJO a table gratis at the Frank Sinatra show at the Fontainebleau Hotel, for which ROBLEJO was apparently grateful. As a result of this, ROBLEJO sought [redacted] assistance in attempting to obtain the release of political prisoners and recently [redacted] was made a member of the Executive Committee of the CPLLC.

In this connection, [redacted] accompanied ROBLEJO to San Juan, Puerto Rico, the first week of June, 1967. [redacted] by this time had the impression ROBLEJO was actually anti-United States and he considered ROBLEJO a "leftist-socialist." While in Puerto Rico, they met with MANOLO RAY and RUFLO LOPEZ FRESQUET. ROBLEJO discussed the possibility of RAY and LOPEZ FRESQUET becoming active in seeking the release of Cuban political prisoners. However, no definite agreement or conclusion was reached.

[] stated that on or about June 15, 1967, he and ROBLEJO, while temporarily staying at 2930 Loiza, Santurce, Puerto Rico, were having a general conversation and ROBLEJO changed the topic to [] current work as a security guard at the Miami Airport where the Cuban refugees are processed. ROBLEJO asked detailed questions concerning the nature of the activities at this location, to which [] explained that Cuban refugees upon their arrival in the United States are processed here, including having their photographs taken, being fingerprinted, and being interrogated. ROBLEJO asked [] if the FBI was there, which [] acknowledged in the affirmative, and ROBLEJO asked, "What do they do there?" [] answered, "They investigate and clear all of the refugees arriving from Cuba in the United States." ROBLEJO was interested in knowing if [] saw "those papers" and [] stated he had seen them. [] indicated this was entirely fictitious, but since he did not trust ROBLEJO, he felt he might be in a position to be of possible assistance to the U. S. Government). ROBLEJO asked [] if he could "photograph...take a picture of the documents or the people the FBI investigates." [] asked ROBLEJO if he was "crazy," stating that if he did something like that, he could be put in the "electric chair." ROBLEJO indicated that with the use of a small camera, this could be accomplished very easily. Almost immediately, the topic was changed and [] indicated to ROBLEJO he had to leave San Juan immediately because his child had just broken his collar bone. [] also indicated to ROBLEJO that his, [] wife had called and said she did not have any money in the house to buy food, etc. At this point, ROBLEJO gave [] a check in the amount of $300.00, drawn on the First National Bank of Miami, on the account of the Committee of Relatives of the One Hundred. ROBLEJO made out this check in [] presence and requested $50.00 be given to ROBLEJO's mother. Immediately, [] cashed the check and sent a money order to his wife, ERMITAS RAMON ARIAS.

JFK Act 6 (4)

[] stated ROBLEJO had given him $50.00 in cash prior to their departure for Puerto Rico.

[] advised he returned to Miami from Puerto Rico on June 18, 1967, and ROBLEJO remained in San Juan until June 28, 1967. He recalled ROBLEJO attempted to have him stay in Puerto Rico and was "mad" at [] for leaving early.

On June 30, 1967, ROBLEJO telephonically contacted [] during which conversation ROBLEJO indicated he planned to go to Venezuela, Panama and Ottawa, Canada, and would see [redacted] upon his return. ROBLEJO is interested in obtaining a Mexican visa in order to go to Cuba to possibly converse with FIDEL CASTRO or other important leaders in the communist government of Cuba in connection with the possible release of Cuban political prisoners.

Local stops have been placed with INS in order to be notified of ROBLEJO's return to the United States.

Miami plans to locate and possibly monitor the bank account of the Committee of Relatives of the One Hundred and any other accounts where ROBLEJO is the authorized signature of an account.

JFK Act 6 (4)

The Bureau is being requested in a separate communication captioned [redacted] aka [redacted] PSI - CUBA," to grant authority to contact him in order to follow up in connection with ROBLEJO's request as mentioned above in the event ROBLEJO attempts to pursue this matter further.

The Bureau will be kept advised. LHM incorporating pertinent data regarding subject's activities will be promptly furnished to the Bureau.
