[redacted] received special instruction and training.

[redacted] apparently believed in the 'true value' of Communism and Subject believes that these men did not support Communism merely to gain personal favors. These men voluntarily attended study group meetings.

[redacted] collaborated with camp authorities by supplying answers to any and all questions the Chinese had.

[redacted] acted as informants and reported all incidents to the camp authorities as a matter of loyalty to the camp officials.

[redacted] voluntarily chose to remain with the Chinese and had no desire to return to the United States. These men were very friendly with the Chinese.

[redacted] had pro-communist leanings and reflected these leanings by applying themselves and cooperating with the Chinese. Subject does not know of any pro-communists among other United Nations prisoners.

"Subject hates the word Communism and what it stands for, and does not think that it would work in the United States. He states that he never listened to the lectures given while he was a prisoner and does not know what Communism really is or the reason that it won't work in the United States.

"All of the captured personnel of Subject's platoon have not been repatriated. [redacted] United States Army personnel, voluntarily chose to remain with the Chinese and were last seen at Camp #1."

The following addresses were obtained from the diary of [redacted] a POW and Subject of another case, which may be of value to the Bureau:
