Subject: Interns

Now that the last group of 1996 has gone home, I wanted to thank everybody who helped in either the preparation of projects for or the supervision of all three groups of interns we have had since May. Special thanks are due Joe for both his consistently coming up with solid projects and his consideration of those he worked with; Chet, for trying valiantly to deal with my ever-increasing computer demands; David, for approving the internships in the first place and letting me handle them without pressure from above; and Doug, for graciously giving me his time and giving the students the benefit of his knowledge. It appears that all of the students had a good time and a good learning experience, and that we got some valuable projects done. So, despite the chaotic atmosphere, I think it worked out well. Now, we can return to our usual state of entropy instead of the accelerated chaos of the past week. Thanks again, everybody.
