Subject: It's that time again, kids...

Yes, ladies and gentlemen, it's... INTERN TIME!!! Mr. Hitchcock is bringing another set of smiling and eager young faces (boy, I'm gushing with facetiousness today, aren't I?) to the Washington DC area in the second week of April. If we have stuff for them, they would like to work with us again. So, once again, I am scouring the globe, fighting for truth, justice, and projects for interns to work on. If you can think of any projects you might have, or shall we say... spit jobs..., that you could use some warm bodies to get done, please indicate this to me by Wednesday of next week. Remember, these projects are by necessity unclassified. Also, please understand that these are high school seniors who have not dealt with us before, and so if you have more detailed or involved projects, you may wish to wait until summer when the returnees begin trying to come back. What I am looking for are projects to keep 8-10 high school seniors busy for three or four days. Alternately, if you have a smaller project that will require 3-4 kids, let me know that too. Thank you ever so much. Now, have a nice day-- and keep on truckin'.
