Subject: FYI

Just wanted you to know that I've twice today inadvertently tripped over the phone wires into the small silver box next to my desk. (Don't know why I started this today, I've avoided tripping over them for weeks now.)

Anyway, it's emitting a medium-pitched hum, which it may always have done. Nothing seems amiss in anyone's functioning computer-wise, so everything's probably ok. Just thought I'd let you know. Also, since I will probably need to be doing some drafting on a computer on Friday for a project that needs to be done by Monday morning. Can we have at least one terminal active on a stand-alone basis so that I can work on files on the "a" drive? Thanks!
