Body: In addition to the specific Giancana-related questions for Blakey that we have talked about, I think it would be most helpful to get Blakey to describe in as much detail as possible the chronology and logistics/mechanics of the HSCA's requesting, receiving, reviewing, photocopying, taking-notes-from, etc., FBI documents. (The same, I suppose, would apply for CIA, Secret Service, and other agencies' documents.) This kind of information will help us determine how clearly particular types of documents do or do not fall within the definition of "assassination records." This information also should provide leads as to the existence/nature/location of further records -- knowledge of how the HSCA asked for and received access to documents should allow us to identify types of records that may have escaped the HSCA's attention in their ordinary course of business.
