Subject: Gus Russo

As Tom and Jeremy know, Gus has made several queries about working for the ARRB as sort of an ad hoc consultant. When I met with him on Friday he had adopted a different tack. He told me he's been talking to his agent, who has told him it is OK to talk to the ARRB about "lower level stuff" but that if Gus is to share his information about the Mexico City situation, which he characterized as being "as close as you can get to a certified bombshell" he would need a "guarantee that the Board will not disclose in any way the information until after my book comes out which will be in the winter of 1995/96." I told Russo I was in no position to discuss these matters with him and that such decisions rested solely with the Board members, David and the Senior Staff. I told Russo I would advise you of his message. I suggested he call you, David, if he had a substantive offer of information to make. He did not say if he would do so or not.
