Subject: Just to let you know

When on the phone with David yesterday, he asked that I unscramble a situation arising from a telephone call that Christina had received and not known how to handle. The caller (he mistakenly thought it was Barry Harrelson) had asked for an update on our current budget status, and been pretty insistent that someone call him back immediately on it. Christina told me that it was John Newman rather than Barry who had made the call, and gave me John's Maryland number. He, of course, was not there, but the woman who answered (if it was his home, then it was his wife) seemed enormously pleased by the news (we had just received word that we had been put back in the budget) as well as by the fact that someone from ARRB had called. I explained where you and David were, and she talked about how much they were looking forward to seeing you on Friday. She also mentioned that they wanted to include someone from the Wall St. Journal at the party, and asked whether that might constitute a problem for you. I said that that was something for her to discuss with you. If it is, you might want to call her about it. Sorry I didn't get this to you earlier, but my computer was down yesterday afternoon and this morning, and there wasn't an opportunity to talk.
