Subject: On another note....

This note is not quite so work-related --Should we send an "all" email about Dan's last day? Something along the lines of..."Friday, July 29th, will be Dan Wedemeyer's last day. [Should I say he is one of our interns - assuming some people won't know who he is]. He is taking a few weeks off before he starts his second year of law school at American University. We should probably organize a thank you event for him. We [if you want to take on part of this burden] are taking a poll to find out whether you all would rather go out to lunch with him on Friday or do an in-the-office-donut-thing. We will pick out [and presumably BUY] a thank you card for everyone to sign. [blah, blah, blah....]"What do you think? If people want to do a donut thing -- I vote for that Reece's (sp?) place. If you don't know where it is, I think Phil knew. What do you think?
