Subject: Final Report-SCIF Telephone

At about 1120 A.M. this morning, Ms. Ali of Bell Atlantic called me to say that the long distance company with which she had been dealing on the issue of our annoying SCIF-telephone calls has assured her that the calls should by now have ceased. (The un-named long-distance company contacted the source of the calls and asked the source to rectify the problem. Mrs. Ali either was not told, or would not share with me, the nature and location of the source of our annoying calls.)Furthermore, Ms. Ali stated that she herself had determined through monitoring the past day or so that they had indeed ceased.She did say that the trace she put on our line will stay in place through the 14th of September, and that she would check once a day to see if that particular long-distance number was still calling us.Accordingly, I went into the SCIF this morning and "un-muted" the ringer on that instrument.I don't expect to hear from Bell Atlantic anymore on this issue, and if I don't, then you won't hear anymore from me.Apparently the way this works is that they will take action to stop annoying calls, but will not tell the customer they assisted the origin of the calls. END
