We are now the proud custodians of 9 cartons of microfilm containing message traffic from the Pentagon Telecommunications Center from January 1963 thru December 1964. It's currently stored in classified vault at Army's Center for Military History. All cartons are marked "Top Secret," though I understand most of the messages are at classifications below that. (In fact, a NARA expert on this collection said he thought the TS material was segregated onto separate tapes, though apparently stored with the others.) I intend to spend today digging into this stuff -- initially a search for indexes and finding aids (which are allegedly supposed to be on last roll for each year -- we'll see). Total number of rolls appears to be about 800. I'll come up with a plan on how the Military Team will do a thorough review of these after I have a better sense of what we're working with.
