This is just a note I sent to myself this morning after our meeting. I just talked to David about it, and he thought both ideas were reasonable. I suggested we get together with he and Chet later in the week to brainstorm about the look-up part, and then Chet can implement it much like the duplicates are now listed on the rifs. He said adding another field where we could stamp when a document has third agency equity or is a foreign government liaison would be no problem either. If there is more you would like to talk to him about, catch him before 3:15 today.

Phil would like to be able to integrate the various document databases (primarily the FBI not open database, the consent release database, the review track and the review track archive, so that he can easily tell in the fbi not open database which documents are 1) not yet in the system, 2) already through the system, 3) somewhere in the system, 4) documents with third agency equity, or 5) a foreign liaison issue. This would stream line the process of getting out requests for evidence, and allow us to do proper statistical analysis on the document databases.
