Subject: scintillating reviewtrack advisory

In the postponement detail form's substitute language "picklist," there is a new "name of person" option, in addition to the venerable "name" option. Although I'm sure there are valid non-FBI reasons for adding the "name of person" option, I propose that the substitute language for postponements of the names of FBI informants continue to be "name," rather than "name of person."An exposition of the reasons for sticking with "name," which range from the practical to the metaphysical, can be provided upon request.
