Subject: Christopher
For the record, the last two intern projects have been enormously helpful to me, re: HSCA stuff, and obviously none of it could/would have happened without Christopher, who invests an enormous amount of energy and time in motivating the kids and making their time here special. Frankly, I think he's missing his calling here at the ARRB, and he ought to be working his magic on students full-time somewhere. But, until such time as he figures that out for himself, I wanted to officially log my appreciation for all he and his interns have done for my part of the ARRB universe.
