Subject: privacy document on appeal

Body: As we've discussed, the FBI's latest letter to Bill Leary appeals a privacy document that the Board voted on (the second time around) earlier this month. The FBI's letter sounded as if the Bureau's remaining objection went solely to substitute language. I spoke to Carol Keeley today and asked her if that was the case, suggesting that, if so, we could probably come up with language agreeable to the Board and the FBI. She told me that the FBI objected to both the substitute language AND the additional information the Board voted to release.
