Subject: Suggested phone language

Something like this:-- we are an independent agency of the United States gov't-- we are not conducting an investigation, but are merely collecting and clarifying records-- we need to try and locate a copy (or photocopy) of the Christchurch Star from Saturday, November 23, 1963; also, we'd like to speak with anyone from the paper who might be able to tell us what time the issue went to press, if that is possible -- reason for request is: a former USAF officer happened to be in Christchurch that day and first read of the assassination in this issue of the paper. He has become a prominent author on the subject, and mentions the paper in his book. We are trying to verify some of his statements.-- If they ask what the story is, or why we want the paper, explain that you are not at liberty to divulge details of our work, but if they are interested, the story can be found in JFK by Oliver Stone. Discuss nothing further than that. If they press you, tell them that we would be happy to submit a request in writing, and provide supporting information in that request, if they would like. Do not make this offer unless they press you. We would, obviously, like to keep this as informal and unofficial as possible.
