DeliveryPriority: up on our second contact letter dated June 14, 1996, I reached Jerrol Custer on the phone at 2:16 P.M. today, DeliveryReport: and once again asked him if I could arrange a telephone interview with him at a date and time of his ReturnReceipt: convenience. He said that he really didn't want to be involved in any more discussions about the Kennedy Categories: assassination; he complained that people bother him all the time on the telephone, and said that he was simply tired of it. I reminded him that the Federal government had not yet interviewed him about events related to the Kennedy assassination, and that this was his chance to pass on his recollections to an impartial body; I told him that he was an important witness to history and that we would like very much to interview him. He again declined, and said he was sorry, but that he just didn't want to discuss these matters anymore, and ended the telephone call.Analyst Christopher Barger was a witness to this telephone call. END
