I am separately e-mailing to you my response to Anna.To: Jeremy_Gunn @ JFK-ARRB.GOVcc: (bcc: Jeremy Gunn/ARRB)From: ANELSON @ american.edu @ INTERNET @ INTERLIANT Date: 11/04/97 10:17:06
AMSubject: Re: Conference CallJeremy, Three is a quorum. I seriously doubt that we will ever achieve the number 5Of course I also had more problems than usual this week, but in general I thinkthat we should proceed with a conference call if three of us can participate.They need not be long. For unknown reasons I seem unable to reach Tom by e-mail. So I'll repeatmy question to you and maybe you can forward it to him. As I recall, when theBoard members met with the LBJ Library personnel there was some indication thatthe director, Harry Middleton was willing to begin opening the tapes but did not feel he had a mandate. It was my sense that the JFK Statute gave him thatmandate. In other words, here is another example where process opened an entire-ly new kind of documentation. I thought perhaps Tom could check with the LBJ Lwhen he had business with them to see if my perception is correct. I haveanother presentation on the ARRB to give and wondered if I could legitimatelymention this. New Subject: Last Fri. I attended a conference at the National SecurityAgency and spoke about the release of documents. Eileen furnished me with some"show and tell" so I could illustrate the fact that documents COULD be opened.It was very complicated to get people in and out the front door withoutencroaching on security. After the session as we were being hurried out, amember of the Agency "escort" team told me that he had been assigned by ? towrite a history of the agency's participation in the JFK Assassination. Heasked me what he should do if he found some new documents. I quickly told himto send them on to the ARRB and assured him that once the agency found them,they were required to do so. But.....he disappeared as we were hurried throughthe door and I never was able to ask him his name. However, if he is doingsome kind of history the historian, David Hatch, or Tom Johnson must surelyknow something about it. Anna
