Subject: Re: Clean, flawless backgrounds

Point number one: let's keep these discussions off the record. I don't think the world needs to know about our checkered pasts. Point number two: Low blow regarding the "someone who doesn't have their clearance yet. Very mean. as Bobby Kennedy said, however, "don't get mad, get even" -- and I will. Point number three: I will get the last e-mail in, even if I have to stay late to do so. Never doubt my dedication when it comes to playing childish little games. Point number four: What, specifically, did you recognize about the party days stories? Come on, come clean. And finally, point five: do you own a white Bronco? Is Kato your nickname or your real name? To: Christopher Barger/ARRBcc: From: Eileen Sullivan/ARRBDate: 04/06/95 03:46:03 PMSubject: Re: Clean, flawless backgroundsWho said we were through!? You thought you got the last e-note of the day in, but that it still to be determined. And yes, you did see a glint of familiarity in my eyes while discussing your younger party days. However, I'm not sure mine are over. You may think there is a conspiracy going on with these clearances, but I cannot discuss such topics with someone who does not have a clearance. Oooooooooohhhhhh, Eileen.To: Eileen Sullivan/ARRBcc: From: Christopher Barger/ARRBDate: 04/06/95 03:31:26 PMSubject: Clean, flawless backgroundsBesides the fact that I am determined to get in the last e-mail of the day (gotcha last !), I am wondering... by whose definition do you have a clean, flawless background?? I thought I saw a glint of familiarity in your eye while we were discussing my younger party days. Shall I conduct my own background investigation?? I think it's a conspiracy-- you got your clearance first, before me, before Valerie.... hmmm. Exactly where were you on November 22, 1963? And don't try to use the excuse that you weren't born yet -- that's the perfect cover story!
