Subject: Re: Party?

I could keep this cheerful banter up longer but I have to get ready to go to that center of heat and high humidity, New Orleans!Ciao!!To: Anne Buttimer/ARRBcc: From: Christopher Barger/ARRBDate: 05/30/95 10:00:03 AMSubject: Re: Party?I believe that perhaps the only thing crueler than senility is the insistence of others to note it and embarrass the victim. With that in mind, I felt it inappropriate to comment on the cause of your failure to keep dates straight. As for your busy schedule, neither I nor anyone else on staff believes that you live anything but a glamorous, exciting lifestyle of which we are all envious. We know that there are reasons that you are never available on Fridays, but humility precludes your boasting of them to us. We understand, and are appreciative. We shall continue to endeavor, all the same, to include ourselves on a Friday night schedule of yours. Perhaps, one day, we will be successful in that effort. Until then, on behalf of all of us, thank you for your grace and humilty in rejecting our overtures. (Please take this in the offhand, somewhat sarcastic, but entirely well-meaning and friendly vein in which it is intended.)
