Subject: Re: Tasking to Marine Corps
The Marine Corps is formally part of the Navy (even though the Marines don't like to admit it), and as long as the methodology is to ask the Service Secretaries to issue the all hands taskers, then NO, we should not go to the Commandant. However, if the methodology were to change, and we werre to decide to go to the Uniformed service heads instead of the Service Secretaries, then yes, in that case, we would send a letter to the Commandant.I believe our present methodology is sound-that we should be asking the Service Secretaries, as we are now.
