Subject: Re: Yes intern letter
Jeremy did not address the subject of letter or phone call. I just assumed we were sending letters for all the responses, yes or no. As far as I know, the ball is in your court. Let me know what you decide to do.

We are asking Michael Rubin to interview here, hopefully in person, but maybe by phone if he can't come to Washington. Did Jeremy say we have to send a "yes" letter? Can't we just call him and set up the interview? You know, when I was hired, I never got a "yes" letter -- just a phone call asking me to come in for an interview. Not to whine too much about this, but let's save the paper and the hassle if we can.

What do you want to include in the letter? Are we offering Michael Rubin a position or are we asking him to call and set up an interview wiith you?
