Dear Mr. Murphy,I have added your name to our email group list (your AOL address.)We currently do not have plans for a website, however, you can access document information through the National Archives at <http://www.nara.gov/nara/jfk/jfk.html>This website contains more than 170,000 descriptions of documents, as provided by agencies holding assassination related materials. Documents that were open for research and in the custody of the National Archives on October 26, 1992, the day the JFK Act was signed, are not in the database.I hope this is helpful to you. You can contact the JFK task force at the National Archives at 301-713-6620 with questions regarding this on-line information.Thank you for your interest in the work of the Assassination Records Review Board.Sincerely,Eileen A.
