Subject: Re: Connick's promises

The main statement I have seen by Connick is his testimony before the Review Board in which he fails to directly promise to provide the Board with the investigative records. The relevant statement from his testimony is in bold below: TUNHEIM: [Connick's] office possesses records from the investigation into the assassination of President Kennedy and the prosecution of Mr. Clay Shaw, which was conducted by [Garrison] in the late 1960s. CONNICK: * * * I want to compliment you after some prolonged thought and deliberation about the propriety of what to do with these records that we have. I compliment you for attempting to do what I think is a necessary undertaking. * * * We think that what you are doing is important and we think that what we can hopefully add to what you're doing will clarify some of the clouded areas of the past and make sense out of what happened. The indirect, but reasonable, argument is obviously that he knows that what we are doing is collecting records for inclusion in the Collection and that he offered to "add" to what we're doing.
