This will be fine, as long as you stay away from all golf courses.

You have a slip in your box. I realize the day in question is a Board day. Unfortunately, an old friend of mine from the Granite State (NH) is going to be in DC for that day only and has asked me to help him do the sights. I would be hard-pressed to refuse him. He is driving from NH to Atlanta to take up a new position and I am unlikely to be in Atlanta for many years to come, if ever (especially if I can help it). If recent experience is any indication, the Board is unlikely to need me while they're here. I would be happy to call in and check, if you think that helpful or necessary. I could even stop in, since I'll no doubt be trapped between Arlington Cemetery and Capitol Hill for most of the day!
