Subject: Re: Conflicts issues

I did research on the project early on and collected enough additional information to begin work on a memo that would supplement work that had been done before I started working on it. You and I talked about it twice after I did the initial research and discussed what kinds of things I should write, since I did not disagree with the initial conclusions, but thought there were additional relevant rules. Without getting too deeply into the substance, we discussed the provision of the regulations that would allow the Board to ask the "appointing official" for a waiver stating that, in certain considered cases, financial interests are too remote or insubstantial to affect the integrity of an employee's services. I haven't worked on it since those meetings, as other more immediately pressing projects have taken precedence over it.
