PMSubject: Re: CIA RecordGilberto Alvarado Ugarte was a Nicaraguan intelligence agent (under CIA friend Somoza) whose story about seeing Oswald in the company of a "red-headed Negro" at the Cuban Embassy in September who gave Oswald $5000 after discussing who was the better qualified to kill Kennedy caught the attention of Ambassador Mann in Mexico City as well as the Warren Commission. He was interrogated repeatedly, although he was regarded initially as very credible, but eventually recanted his story and confessed that he had been lying. Apparently Alvarado was also one of David Atlee Phillips's assets involved in the anti-Castro stuff.
