Subject: Re: Debra Conway Request

Ms. Conway called today to determine the status of her request. I told her the RFK papers were released by the RFK Library and were available there. I told her there were no documents on James Powell's activities. The information was gathered in an interview with him. She requested a copy of the transcript if it is available. I told her the FBI documents related to the money sent by Marguerite Oswald is now available at NARA or would soon be there. I said I would check again on the Exner documents, but pointed out that Ms. Exner did not specify any documents in the Vanity Fair article. Ms. Conway was concerned that all of the issues discussed in Mr. Holland's article were the subject of press releases she did not receive. I explained to her that press releases were not issued on these subjects, but were the product of Mr. Holland's enterprise. She asked for a quick response to her requests and to be kept up-to-date on Review Board releases. To: Eileen Sullivan/ARRBcc: David Marwell/ARRB, Jeremy Gunn/ARRB, Tom Samoluk/ARRB From: Thom Wilborn/ARRB Date: 05/19/97 04:27:13 PM Subject: Debra Conway Request Debra Conway called at 4:10 p.m. today requesting information and documents cited in Max Holland's article for "The Washington Spectator." Specifically she wanted copies of documents or information on: (1) Robert Kennedy's personal papers which have been made public by the Review Board; (2) Documents regarding James Powell's activities immediately following the assassination; (3) The FBI program to monitor money sent by Marguerite Oswald to LHO while he was in the Soviet Union (I believe this was contained in the FBI appeals, which were dropped in late April), and (4) Though not related to the Holland article, any documents referred to by Judith Exner which she claimed prompted her to cooperate with the Vanity Fair article. Ms. Conway also requested a copy of Dr Hall's article in the Maryland Law Review. I suggested she might contact them for a copy. David has our only copy. I believe that several of these Review Board releases may have occurred before I came on board. I do not know if the specific FBI document referred to in (3) has been taken to NARA. Please send her what we have. Thanks, Thom
