Subject: Re: draft e-mail

Looks pretty good to me, Kevin! Maybe you should be directing people more often...! If it would make it more comfortable for you, you could always run it by Jeremy, and have him do the directing... he's an old pro at it (and you can tell him I said so).P.S. I added one for Kim which I think I skipped when I tabulated earlier. People should be aware that the numbers could be just a little off; they should look for their names, and not stop looking just 'cause they've already hit the magic number listed below...I hope I'm not dumping this on you more than my remote location demands... I assume you're bending over backward to encourage my involvement, thinking that's what I want, but there's no sense including me when the inclusion makes things more difficult (for all of you) than it has to be. With that caveat, feel free to let me know when and if there's more you can think I can usefully do.My best to Sue and Grace.JoeTo:Joseph Freeman/ARRBcc:From:Kevin Tiernan/ARRB Date:12/09/97 03:40:45 PMSubject:draft e-mailJoe, I don't usually find myself composing email directing people to do stuff, so I figured it would be good to run it by you.In our as-yet-unending effort to completely finish the HSCA documents, we have reduced the outstanding issues to a (hopefully) manageable level. And each of you has a small but vital role to play in this effort. We have been cross-checking information between the original numbered files here in our scif, the copies of the numbered files out in the Collection at NARA II, and the computer data available to each of us. This information has been distilled into a database on Notes called 'HSCA Cross-Ref.' The breakdown of documents by agency, responsible staff member and number of documents

Misc.Premy4USSSJimIf each of you would open 'HSCA Cross-Ref.', and search for your name or agency you would find the HSCA number, the RIF number and a bit of information about the document. Then you could go to the Numbered File boxes in the SCIF, look at the documents and make a judgment as to our next move (i.e. should we make a copy and send it to the Collection, should we refer the document to the appropriate agency, has the document been previously referred and we just need to get the appropriate agency to respond to us, etc....). Ideally we would have any claimed postponements back prior to the Board's meeting of January 22, 1998. Of course I am available to answer any questions, as is Joe.
