Subject: Re: did you see "Where in the World?"

Oh, Bob. . . I would have to be a moron to suggest that we change our approach, primarily because, after today, I will have no time to work on it for the next couple of weeks -- with the FBI meeting tomorrow, the interns coming on Monday to help us get 115,000 pages of FBI records ready to send to Steve, and several NBR memos to write for the Board and the interns coming next Monday to do a week of FBI work. But, its nice to know that you think I'm a moron. :-)I was just happy to see the "Where in the World" entry because I was thinking that it would nice to have a single uninterrupted day of being able to work on the chapter.

My intelligence reports that he is indeed out sick, but I think that we should not change our approach to the chapter. He is able to work at home, and I won't be surprised if he asks that we E-mail him what we have.Bon chance!
