Subject: Re: release of depositions query from Kate

You're right -- that was meant for our financial director! Sorry about that. I will be on vacation next week but when I return I will ask her about how/if we can send the depositions to you. I fear it will be extremely expensive, and you will have to cover that cost. I am not familiar with how to work out payment, etc. Thanks for your understanding!

 Dear Eileen, The day after I sent you my query re the above, I received a message which obviously was not meant for me (see below). If it is anything to go by, I seem to have thrown a spanner in the works! I haven't heard anything more from you since, so I take it there's no easy way to do this in time. I am disappointed but I suppose I can live without the depositions. I'm sure somewhere, sometime, someone will refer to and or reproduce them in a research article or paper. If you come up with a creative solution, let me know!
 Thanks Kate, Sydney Australia

 Dear Eileen I've just received your message and I have a query. I'm keen to purchase the set of all manuscript depositions $US22.00 however I'm not sure what the best way to prepay is. Your email mentions all prepayments to be made by check. What is the best way for international purchases to be made? I have a Mastercard if that helps. Hope to hear from you soon!
 Thanks Kate - Sydney Australia.
