Subject: Re: Rain, rain, go away.

my friend,the job search is ongoing. nothing has turned up yet. i will probably get some news tomorrow on whether i made the first cut on the job that i really want. thinking about it makes my stomach hurt. this whole experience of closing down the arrb is a lot like senior year of high school, only the pressure are much more intense. and i don't leave work and go out and well, you know. between leaving the friends i have made here over the last four years, the crunch of getting tons of stuff done between now and the end of the month and waiting to find out if you got into the college of your choice (i mean the job of course), it is making me crazy.if you have any other ideas about where i should be looking, send them my way.love, Kevin
