On several occasions while watching MTV ("Teen Wolf" from July 20, 2015 and "Teen Mom 2" from July 9 or 16, 2015), I noticed what appears to me to be subliminal advertising: a clear (as in translucent) outline of several corporate logos, advertisements, etc. (including the Target logo with the slogan "Expect More. Pay Less.") scrolled across the screen.

(b) (6) July 29, 2015, 2:46 PM

Dear (b) (6)

There are no FCC rules that apply specifically to subliminal messages.

You should direct all concerns and/or comments about a specific broadcast or statement, in writing, to the local station and network involved so that the people responsible for making programming decisions can become better informed about audience opinion.

I saw subliminal advertising on ABC, channel 7, Los Angeles, news broadcast today about 8:30 AM. It was "TRUMP" flashed across the screen in a box during a report of a fire. The screen showed a helicopter view of the extensive brush fire. My husband who was also watching did not see it. It was so fast that he must have blinked when the word appeared in the screen. Is this type of advertising legal?

Thank you for your submission. Your complaint provides the FCC with important information we can use to develop policies to protect consumers, remedy violations of the Communications Act, and encourage future compliance with the law.

There are no FCC rules that apply specifically to subliminal messages. While the FCC does not currently regulate advertisers, it does, however, have the authority to regulate broadcasters, and can propose fines or take other action against broadcaster if the use of subliminal messages by their advertisers is proven. Because subliminal messages are intended to be deceptive, their use is inconsistent with a broadcaster's obligation to serve the public interest. To ensure public awareness, the FCC requires broadcasters to identify on each broadcast any sponsor of any broadcast program or advertisement.

You should direct all concerns and/or comments about a specific broadcast or statement, in writing, to the local station and network involved so that the people responsible for making programming decisions can become better informed about audience opinion.

As such, no further action is required by the FCC. Your complaint was closed as of today.

Thank you for your submission and help in furthering the FCC's mission on behalf of consumers.

The station "my43" is splicing their stations logo for a split second into the Big Bang Theory airing at 7 & 7:30pm during the last few minutes. They actually change the shows content to flash their logo. The splice always happens during a closing joke or 'punch out' joke.

Hi (b) (6),

Thank you for your submission. Your complaint provides the FCC with important information we can use to develop policies to protect consumers, remedy violations of the Communications Act, and encourage future compliance with the law.

We have attached a consumer guide that includes relevant information on the issue you have raised.

As such, no further action is required by the FCC. Your complaint was closed as of today.

Thank you for your submission and help in furthering the FCC's mission on behalf of consumers.

Link to consumer guide: <http://www.fcc.gov/guides/fcc-and-freedom-speech>

In addition, I have included information about the use of logos, by broadcasters:

Neither communications law nor FCC rules currently address the issue of television stations displaying network/program logos. In the absence of any prohibition against this practice, television stations do not violate communications law or FCC rules when they display network logos, advertising banners and the like. The FCC cannot take enforcement or regulatory action in these matters.

over the past few years I have noticed that many advertisements on tv are only shown for one or two seconds. it appears that this is a form of subliminal advertising that was banned in movie theatres in the 1950's.

(b) (6) November 15, 2016, 1:16 PM

Thank you for contacting the FCC to share your concerns about broadcast program material that you find offensive. The FCC licenses over-the-air radio and TV broadcast stations. It is against federal law for a licensed television or radio station to air obscene programming at any time, or to air indecent or profane material during the hours of 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. The FCC is charged with enforcing the law that governs the broadcast of such material.

The FCC is not permitted to censor or restrict the availability of non-broadcast programming shown over cable and satellite systems. Cable and Satellite Operators do not have the same restrictions on program content as regular television broadcast stations.

For the FCC to consider whether a licensee has violated these requirements of the law, a complaint must relate to particular programming, rather than express a general opinion. To proceed on a complaint, the FCC must have information that includes the station that aired the programming material, the date and time of day of the broadcast, a recording, transcript or description of the material broadcasted.

Licensed Broadcasters are responsible for selecting the broadcast material that airs on their stations, including advertisements. The FCC expects broadcasters to be responsible to the community they serve and act with reasonable care to ensure that advertisements aired on their stations are not false or misleading.

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has primary responsibility for determining whether specific advertising is false or misleading, and for taking action against the sponsors of such material. You can file a complaint with the FTC, or call toll-free 1-877-FTC-HELP (1-877-382-4357).

If your complaint is regarding non-broadcast programming shown over a cable or satellite system, or concerning broadcasts from a FCC licensed TV or radio station, and you have not provided the necessary information, or the facts and information contained in the complaint did not suggest that a violation of the statute or FCC rules regarding indecency, obscenity, and profane material has occurred, we cannot proceed further with regard to your allegations. Accordingly, we must close your complaint.

Your views and concerns about program material are important to us. You may refile your complaint with this additional information. To expedite our consideration of your complaint, we recommend that you submit it via the FCC's online Consumer Help Center at consumercomplaints.fcc.gov.

To assist you further, we are including links to information that discusses the law with respect to indecent, profane and obscene broadcasts and our enforcement procedures.

We encourage you to convey your concerns, whether general or program-specific, directly to station management. This can be an effective method to influence a broadcast licensee's programming decisions.

Inspirationcampmeeting.com is a website/TV series out of Charlotte, NC that uses defrauds poor and desperate US citizens through cable television programming. They make direct and precise monetary guarantees based on an "investment" that never yields the promised amount. They are unlicensed security dealers. I want to file legal action against them and their ilk as soon as possible. Please advise how to proceed in a civil action or class action lawsuit to protect the public from predatory and fraudulent solicitations done on the public airwaves and fee based cable services. They are using prohibitive subliminal advertising techniques in direct violation of FCC guidelines and law. (WTTGGD-Paid Programming-Channel 905)

Currently the makers of the sleeping drug known as "BELSOMRA" are INTENTIONALLY using the simulation of "vertical television distortions" to "capture interest" in their product by making the viewer think there is something wrong with their television. This is known to cause SEIZURES in certain people, and is just plain WRONG and an ABUSE of broadcast television advertising. I DEMAND that this television commercial either be corrected to delete this "SUBLIMINAL" advertising technique, or REMOVED COMPLETELY from broadcast television! I am so tired of seeing this commercial and jumping up to try to "fix" my television, which is in PERFECT WORKING CONDITION! Only after jumping up about 5 times in a row, each time this commercial appeared, did I realize that the advertiser had stooped to such a LOW LEVEL... FINE THEM! REMOVE THE AD! BAN THEM! TV is bad enough, and it's time to make an EXAMPLE!!!

Advertising on the LAST WATCH list. They are advertising a "WATCHATHON". When I try to delete it, it says it has been cleared, but it appears again as if nothing happened. This has also happen with the OSCAR's, Superbowl and with certain movie releases. I have emailed them and no answer. I have tried calling in the past and no resolution. I have even sent a note via the mail, and no response. I feel this is subliminal advertising since it can not be deleted. When I delete channels that have been watched, they do not reappear, so why does this? So there is no best TV Issues to select, so I tried for the closest. Thank you.
