Got a call a little while ago from Brady McCombs from the Star giving us a heads up and seeking comment on a story he's doing about the Terry case. He says he's gotten copies of search warrants in the case that indicate that BP agents employed ♦less than lethal♦ bean bags before the suspects fired back with real guns. This is similar to material in the BORTAC report story I circulated yesterday. I told him ♦active ongoing investigation♦ and he was cool with that, but he's apparently got lots of questions for BP on their protocols and tactics.
