THE VICE PRESIDENT
WASHINGTON

Mr. William O. Gray
807 American Building
Cedar Rapids, Iowa 52401

Dear Mr. Gray:

I hope you will understand and forgive my delay in writing to tell you how very much I enjoyed being with you for your annual convention in Atlanta. It was a special pleasure to have the opportunity to visit with you during the luncheon.

Your letter was appreciated; I was glad to know that you enjoyed my speech.

Warm regards.

Sincerely,

LETTERS

I appreciate the thoughtful letter of Society Secretary Frank L. Price on October 17. I would like very much to continue receiving the Grapevine and I am sorry I missed the one with my husband's obituary in it.

The X-Agents Foundation was very dear to both my husband and me as it assisted us in a time of need many years ago. I sincerely hope that what we have been able to contribute to the Foundation will help some other deserving family.

I am returning the check sent to you in September and would like very much for the Society to accept it.

Mrs. Ann L. Ellis
Huntsville, Alabama

I have noted recently that The Grapevine seems to take a great deal of time to find its way out here to western Montana. The last issue urging attendance at the Atlanta Convention arrived at least 10 days after the convention was over. It may be that there are delays in your mailing procedures that would bear looking into or, again, it may be just the slow pace at which some mail seems to be traveling these days.

As a news note you might be interested to know that I was recently elected to the Board of Directors of the Glacier National History Association Inc. of West Glacier, Montana. This is an association that has been in existence for many years, devoted to promoting the best interests of Glacier National Park and supervising official publications relative to the Park.

Editor's Note: We've had this mailing problem for years with no seeming improvement.

Fry Heads State Legislators

Speaker Pro Tem of Ohio House of Representatives Elected President of National Association

Charles E. Fry (1942-46), of Springfield, Ohio, who is Speaker Pro Tem of the Ohio House of Representatives, was honored by that body when it passed a formal resolution commanding him on his election as president of the National Society of State Legislators.

The resolution noted that Fry has "long championed the cause of improved State government and the vital role it must play in determining Federal policy in inter-governmental matters, earning for himself the highest respect of fellow State legislators and the supreme confidence of his peers throughout the nation." It further noted that Fry had been elected to four consecutive terms in the Ohio House by his constituents in Clark County.

Born at Greenville, Ohio on July 26, 1916, Speaker Fry was educated in the schools there and graduated from Ohio State University in 1938. Professionally he is a builder and chairman of the board of Fry Inc. at Springfield. He was first elected to the Ohio House of Representatives in 1964, was on the Ohio Constitutional Revision Commission and chairman of the Government Operations Committee which handled the Congressional redistricting and legislative reapportionment.

Fry served as a District Governor of Rotary International and is a national board member of Ohio State University Association. In his home community he is an Elder and president of the board of trustees of Covenant Presbyterian Church.

He and his wife, Marjorie, have four children, Chuck, Bea Jane, Marmee and Robin. They reside at 1041 East Home Road, Springfield.

McLaughlin Chairman of Des Moines Chapter

Jack McLaughlin, who has just completed a term as Secretary of the National Society, was elected Chairman of the Des Moines, Iowa Chapter at the annual meeting held in October. Elmer Burgeson was elected Treasurer.

Ned Willis, a member of the So-cietry from Perry, Iowa, joined the group at the luncheon meeting.

Other members present were: Elmer Burgeson, Charles Elmquist, Don Swanson, Parker Crouch, Jack Goode, Bob Dalbey, Milt Riepe, Jack McLaughlin and Art Lindquist.

Phila. Chapter Members Speak Out in Defense of Bureau And Director Hoover in Article in Evening Bulletin

Editor's Note. The following article appeared in a recent issue of the Evening Bulletin at Philadelphia. Written by a Bureau staffer, it covers so well what Society members during the past year have been talking about that The Grapevine is reprinting it.

By Hans Knight

There were five of them in the room and as I shook hands with each I seemed to hear a faint clatter, as of skeletons rattling in a closet.

The illusion, if it was that, was perhaps understandable. The men who surrounded me with guarded smiles had spent, together, 135 years with the FBI.

The scene was a house in Merion where the Philadelphia Chapter of the Society of Former Special Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation was holding a small informal meeting.

130 MEMBERS IN CHAPTER

The Society has some 5,580 members throughout the country, 130 in Philadelphia alone. They hold annual conventions (the 18th was recently held in Atlanta) and each chapter meets a few times a year.

The yellow fact sheet from which I deduced this information also bore this credo:

"We have taken firm stands against the recent increasing attacks from various quarters on both the FBI and the Director. We have a duty to speak out in defense of the Bureau and Mr. Hoover. We publicly express our gratitude that Mr. Hoover and the FBI have continued to demonstrate their unparalleled record of service, integrity and loyalty to the country."

I asked if life in the FBI really was like the TV show starring Efrem Zimbalist Jr.

The laughter startled me. It also reassured me. It's nice to hear G-men laugh.

Not LIKE TELEVISION

"Oh no," said Paul Hagan, a lean

28-year veteran who now works for the Franklin Mint in Media. "The FBI doesn't work that way. It's 90 percent hard work and 10 percent glamor, if that. But that doesn't make a dramatic story."

Robert Masters, a burly lawyer who served from 1942 to 1963, agreed. "Sometimes we look at the show and recognize a case we worked on. But we didn't travel all that much. A case is handled by the Agent on the spot. He sure doesn't chase a suspect all over the country. It would cost too much."

I asked how often they fired their 38s in anger.

"We never shot anybody," they chorused.

Noticing my shocked expression, Bill Naylor (1940-63), now security chief of Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania, conceded that he had come close to pulling the trigger a few times. "I remember a suspect who shot himself with his own gun when we had to disarm him," he said.

"You see," said Jim Mullan (1939-65), a one-time professional baseball player now with the construction department at the University of Pennsylvania, "when we made a raid and moved in for the arrest we always had so much firepower with us, a man would have been crazy to shoot it out."

Naylor, an elegantly tailored man with gray hair and eyes, said, "There is, of course, some glamor. There is the prestige. The FBI Agent is looked up to. And this is something for which we can thank Mr. Hoover

He set up high standards of selecting candidates, standards of integrity, habits, education. He really made the FBI."

What about charges of dictator-

Why, you have no idea of the hubris of the man. Once he was in Valley Forge — he was getting a Freedom Medal — and it was out in the open and it was raining. He wasn't even wearing a topcoat but he stood there for more than an hour signing autographs for the kids. DOESN'T STRAIN ON BOX
"They tell every Agent, nobody's holding you," Hagan said. "Those who stay in are of the same mold but we never walked with uniform on a box. They say he always uses blue ink on his memos. I say he uses whatever pen is handy." Still, I said, at 76 and after 47 years at the helm, shouldn't Hoover make room for a younger man? Hagan was ready. Washington Chapter Celebrates

More Than 325 Join in Honoring FBI Director Hoover
At 25th Anniversary Dinner at Kennedy Center

By Paul E. Ertzanger

Chairman of Washington Chapter An elegant setting—a sentinel on a semi-formal occasion—an impressive array of guests and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, J. Edgar Hoover. These were the ingredients that made the Silver Anniversary of the Washington Chapter memorable.

The Roof Gallery of the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts was the setting for a dinner-dance gala on October 22, celebrating the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Washington Chapter. Some 325 Society members, wives and guests joined in an evening of glamor, remembrance and pride.

Co-Chairmen Jack Grady and Paul Ertzanger, and the Anniversary Committee, had worked long and hard to insure that the evening would be a complete success. A "husband and wife or family" theme was followed throughout the preparation and execution of the gala and the atmosphere was truly that of an FBI Family Celebration.

STANDING OVATION FOR HOOVER
Master of Ceremonies Jack Grady introduced the honored guests at the head table, "two by two" as they entered the hall. Director Hoover was then greeted with a long, standing ovation as he was escorted to the anniversary of the founding of the Washington Chapter. Some 325 Society members, wives and guests joined in an evening of glamor, remembrance and pride.

Charter members of the Chapter attending the celebration, Downey Rice, Francis I. McGarragh, Harry Coonin, Aaron W. Jacobson, James R. Sharp and Francis D. Flanagan, were also honored as they were seated.

Accompanying Mr. Hoover to the Anniversary Gala were a number of Bureau officials including W. Mark Felt, Assistant to the Director, Dwight J. Dalbey, Thomas E. Bishop, Nicholas P. Callahan, and Leonard Walters, Assistant Directors, George Kunkel, SAC of the Washington Field Office

SOCIETY OFFICERS

Officials of the National Society and representatives of other Chapters attending the Gala were Walter E. Dence, President, James E. Fogarty, President-elect, Dale S. Thompson, Treasurer, John O. Montgomery, Mid-Atlantic Regional Vice President, Bernard F. Norton, Baltimore Chapter Chairman, Joseph J. O'Neill, Pittsburgh Chapter Chairman, and David L. Burton, New York Chapter Chairman.

The honored guest list also included Congressman H. Allen Smith of California, Judge Edward A. Tamm, Director James J. Rowley of the U. S. Secret Service, Congressman John A. Blatnik, Ludwig Andolske of the Civil Service Commission, Lester P. Condon of HUD, Judge W. Byron Sorrell and Judge J. Walter Yeagley.

The Rev. Oliver D. Collier, a

WASHINGON CHAPTER MEMBER—The invocation and Baltimore Chapter member Robert Emond, sang the "National Anthem" while the Armed Forces Color Guard presented the colors.

After a delicious meal, Chairman Jack Grady made presentations of plaques for outstanding contributions to the Chapter to Charles M. Noone, Past President of the Society, and Robert L. Shortley, Chairman of the Membership Committee. A plaque was also presented to Grady for his services as Chapter Chairman during the past year.

Lieutenant General Joseph Carroll, U. S. Air Force (ret.), was eloquent in introducing Director Hoover. The audience responded with another standing ovation.

Mr. Hoover extended his congratulations to the Chapter and delivered a very timely, hard hitting evaluation of today's society. He stated, "The Bureau's achievements over the years have been the direct result of the kind of men and women who have served the FBI—people like you—clean-cut, highly intelligent, dedicated Americans of the finest moral character who are loyal to

"We have exacting standards in the FBI and we apologize to no one for them

"The U.S. Supreme Court has said 'Civil government cannot let any group ride roughshod over others simply because their "consciences" tell them to do so'

"Disregard for law and order is the anarchistic banner of those who want the rule of no rule — who profanely proclaim that all of the values of the past have failed mankind and that real progress can only be achieved by discarding tradition, demolishing our democratic institutions, and ultimately destroying our existent society. Justice is not a separate thing — it is inherent in law and order

"To serve the public properly in a society that grows ever more complex, to contend with the criminal who becomes ever more mobile, law enforcement, to succeed, must continue to seek improvement in its training, methods, and techniques

"People of good will must rededicate themselves to building greater public respect for and confidence in law enforcement in the crucial role it plays in our survival

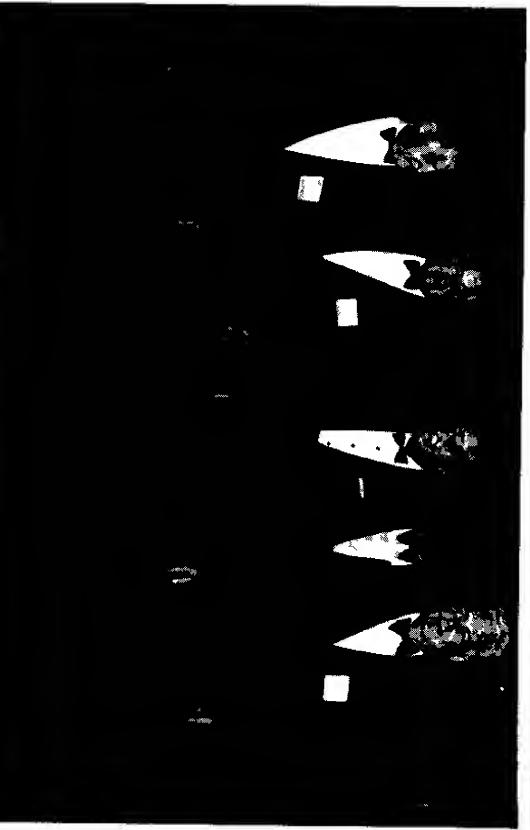

"This nation's greatness and our freedom are based solidly on respect for the law

"Difficult and trying days lie ahead. The FBI, undaunted and ever mindful of its obligations to the American people, faces the uncertain future with confidence and determination. This is our pledge to you who have given us your loyal support and made important contributions to the success of the FBI. "The going will be tough however, when the going gets tough, the tough get going!"

PRESENTATION BY DENCE

Following Mr. Hoover's address, Society President Walter E. Dence, on behalf of the Washington Chapter, presented a special gift to the Director as a token of the Chapter's esteem for him and also as a memento of the occasion. The gift was a beautiful porcelain statuette of a horse — entitled "The Stallion," created by the famous sculptor, Cybis.

Mr. Hoover's response in acceptance of the gift was given with deep emotion and gratitude and was received with much enthusiasm. He said:

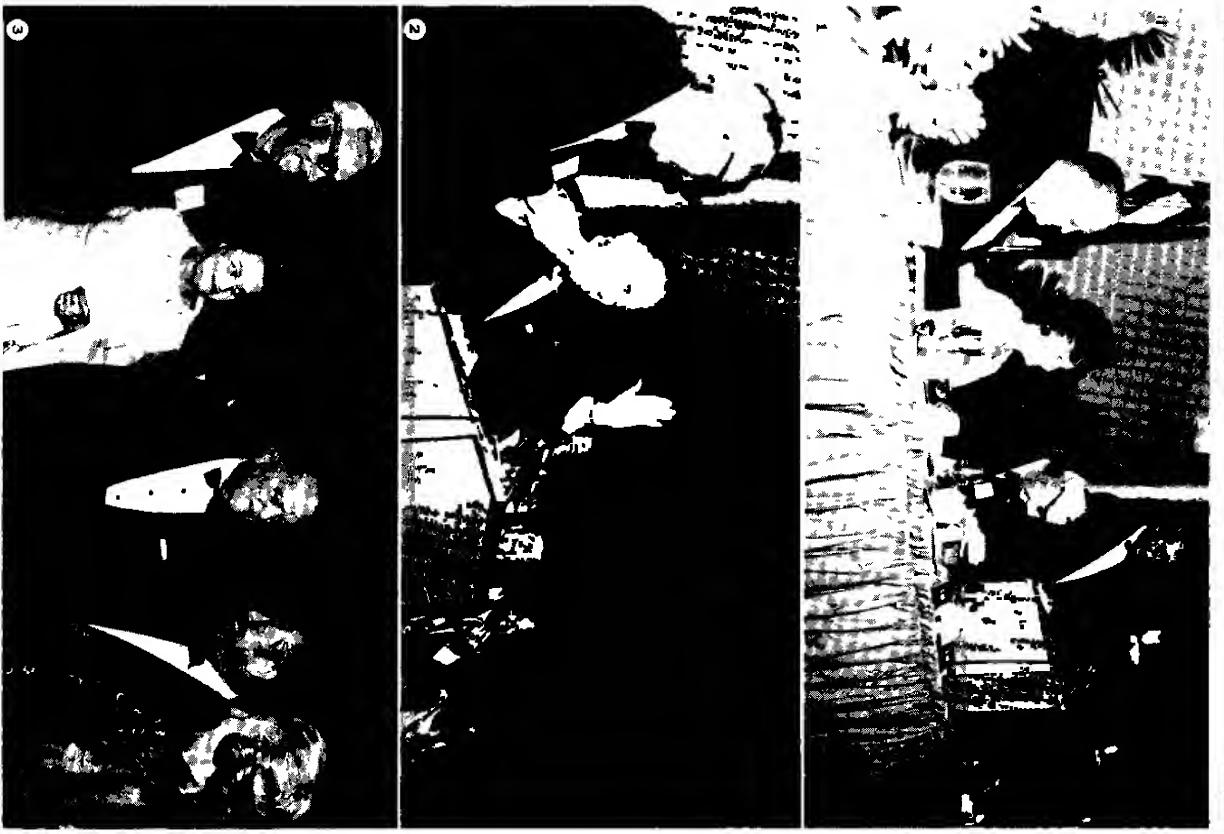

"I surmise that some of you have inquired into some of my pastimes I have, for a number of years, supported some horses. Very few of them ever won anything and I was never an owner of one until now. "I am deeply grateful for such a beautiful piece of porcelain and I shall treasure it with the deep feeling that it comes from the hearts of each and everyone of you here tonight. I have a very warm place in my heart for all of you who have been part of the Bureau, the men who served as Agents, the former clerical employees, the wives who served in the Bureau where they met their husbands, and the wives of Bureau Agents never employed by the Bureau. All have contributed to making the Bureau what it is today."

WILL ALWAYS TREASURE GIFT

"And, therefore, it is with great gratitude that I accept this beautiful stallion. I shall always treasure it and think of the evening it was presented to me. It has been one of the most delightful evenings of my life,

New Mexico Chapter is Host for Two-Day Gathering At Albuquerque—Dinner, Entertainment Conclude Program

The New Mexico Chapter was host to delegates attending the South Central Regional Conference on November 19 and 20.

A cocktail party was held the night of November 19 at the home of Walt and Dorothy Troy to welcome the out-of-town guests. Following the Regional Conference business meetings on Saturday, November 20, the visitors joined the members of the New Mexico Chapter for a steak dinner at the Sheraton Western Skies Motel in Albuquerque.

A chorral group, "The Enchancers," provided memorable entertainment as a fitting conclusion to the dinner program.

Chairman Jerry Maxwell welcomed the South Central visitors. Society President Walter E. Dence recalled covering the States of New Mexico and Arizona out of the El Paso FBI Office in 1938. He gave a report on the work of the Society and paid tribute to the 25 years of service of Executive Secretary Fran Keogh.

27 Members Attend Meeting of Chicago Chapter at the Illinois Athletic Club

Twenty-seven members attended the regular meeting of the Chicago Chapter at the Illinois Athletic Club on November 9. Dave Will gave the Treasurer's report. A discussion was held as to whether any candidate running for political office should be endorsed by the Chicago Chapter. It was unanimously agreed that this should not be done and there would be no objection to individual members working for the candidate of their choice.

A request was made for payment of Chapter dues. Also, volunteers were sought to take photographs at

Chapter meetings for use in The Grapevine. Attending the meeting were Curt Hester, Society Past President Frank Regan, Bill Conway, Ham Smith, Don Drever, Nelson Perry, Roy Mohrman, Julian Nichols, Leonard Charles, George Frye, Al Johnson, G. Gordons Write a New Novel

'The Tumult and the Joy' Tells About Trials and Tribulations of a Clergyman in Today's World

Gordon Gordon (1942-45), and his wife Mildred, one of the most successful husband-and-wife writing teams in the country, fear they may lose their collective shirt with their new novel, their 16th

Authors of the classic "Undercover Cat" (1,700,000 copies), which became the Disney film, "That Darn Cat," they have written a story set against the background of a suburban church and its minister, both caught up in the turmoil of contemporary life. Doubleday published the novel, "The Tumult and the Joy," in October.

And there isn't a single cat in the entire novel!

"The trouble is," said Gordon who served in the Washington, D.C., and Chicago Field Divisions of the FBI, "we don't know whether a writer can change form, whether he can go from a story about an FBI Agent following a cat to a novel such as 'The Tumult and the Joy.' Or do readers expect him to turn out pretty much the same type of book every time?

We hope not because we like variety. We don't want to meet the same people coming and going in our books."

PART SUSPENSE

The Gordons describe their new novel as "part suspense, part behind-the-scenes, and part inspirational." "For a long time we've wanted to show what a minister is up against," said Mildred Gordon, "the politics that goes on, the power struggles, the dedication of most of the church people but also the chicanery of some. We've wanted, too, to set forth the counseling side, how a minister today must cope with changing attitudes about nudity and sex and marriage."

"We did hope that inspiration might come out of the characters and events but we didn't intend to have too much organ music, that kind of thing. We wanted to get in the tumult as well as the joy of a pastor's life."

"Well, we got to talking thus over one day with our editor, Ken McCormick of Doubleday, and he suggested that we use some of the techniques in 'The Tumult and the Joy' that we have employed with our suspense novels. He thought that a minister's life today was one of the most exciting around. A pastor has to storms a sanctuary, a dope-pusher caught working in the church-sponsored coffee house, the problems of a teen-age girl who flees from her parents' home, those of a young fellow who feels a compulsion to kill, and those of the pastor's own daughter who rebels against the Establishment. Off and on for 10 years, Mildred Gordon said, they researched "The Tumult and the Joy." They studied some 200 churches. They reached the conclusion that the liberal-conservative issue has divided more congregations than any other — the Traditionalists who concentrate on worship as opposed to the Social Activists who go into the ghettos. "We couldn't see why there should be such a division," said Mildred Gordon. "Why can't you worship Sunday days and go out into the world weekdays to help others? So we found our minister attempting to bring the two sides together, to end this terrible polarization that is taking place. We found ourselves writing a novel that will surely be controversial."

GORDONS QUIT CAT. GO TO CHURCH—Mildred and Gordon Gordon (1942-45), the husband-and-wife team that uses the pen name of The Gordons, have put aside their famous cat, D.C., hero of the "Undercover Cat" novels (Disney's "That Darn Cat"), to write an exciting story about a big city suburban church. "The Tumult and the Joy" Doubleday published the novel in October.

when we hadn't intended to do that at all."

GORDON WAS STUDENT MINISTER

The male half knew something about the tumult and the joy of a pastor's life. His first job was that of a student minister at the Catalina Methodist Church in Tucson, Arizona. Later he became a newspaper editor and a roving Hearst correspondent before being appointed FBI Agent. The staff side was a school teacher, magazine editor and United Press International correspondent. Under the name of The Gordons, they have collaborated for 20 years, and their novels have sold 14 million copies in 17 languages.

They work eight hours a day, five days a week, and average about 2,000 words a day of rough copy

They plot their novels together, and then go to separate offices to work

She will take one episode and he will write on another. They exchange copy, and as they put it, "strike out everything good the other one has done."

"Our readers never get to see our best material," said Gordon. "It goes into the wastebasket."

The Gordons admit they are concerned about "The Tumult and the Joy." They know some readers are going to ask, "Where's the cat?" We want the cat."

If they will wait for one more book, the Gordons said, they will have the cat back. In the meantime — according to The Gordons' thinking — a minister's life is much more

Down Memory Lane

Jack Welles Says Paul Kitchin 'Changed My Life' in Bureau

By John R. Welles

President, First National Bank, Dushore, Pa.
I have been intending to write to the Grapvine ever since that "Coonin Changed His Life," article by Ernie Hair appeared I have a parallel in that "Kitchin Changed My Life." It was about the same time — January 1935 — that Paul Kitchin and I were called into the Bureau along with a motley crew of Agents to attend the first Bureau retraining class under the guidance of Frank Baughman.

We had what I recall were the bunks on the second floor of a Marine barracks. We were given a fine welcome by the Marines and a number of privileges such as admittance to the Officers Club and bar which were cancelled thereafter along with games of chance on the barracks floor.

KITCHIN BROKE WRIST
It seemed all Agents knew that after Retraining Class was over Paul Kitchin was to take over the Headquarters desk, then handling NMVTA, Federal employees and a number of other type cases. I have a picture of that Retraining Class which will prove that in some manner Paul Kitchin broke a wrist and probably got a bad report at Headquarters which caused cancellation of the Headquarters assignment of Paul.

Now that was just too bad but not nearly as bad as my being selected for that desk job. I had entered the Bureau in late 1933 and Chicago was my first assignment. There we had caught a couple of fugitives and I had written a few reports but when Dilinger escaped from Crown Point in early 1934 a number of us started writing memos for more experienced Agents to compile into reports.

FIRST 'SPECIAL SQUAD'

I recall Mel Purvis put Jim Walters in charge of what may have been the first so-called "Special Squad" with Doc White, Julius Rice, Sam McKee, Jim Metcalfe and me taking orders from Jim Walters. Elton Billings who Ernie Hair mentions, was No 1 man and Gil and Kathryn Gosnell lived in the same apartment as my wife and I on the north side. Pete Peterson and Ralph Brown started compiling our memos into a report.

I give the above details to show how ridiculous it was for me to be on a desk at Headquarters reviewing reports and ostensibly making important recommendations. I could have broken Paul's other wrist but he was in some quiet Southern office undoubtedly laughing at my predicament.

Actually, I didn't last long. As soon as the weather got warm, Lloyd Richmond came by to advise me that Clyde Tolson wished me to try out for the Bureau baseball team. I had experienced playing ball in that lousy Washington weather, was 37 years old, had an 8-month-old baby, and was working or making a stab at it, the Bureau average of 90 hours overtime without pay or compensatory leave.

WENT TO OKLAHOMA CITY

My answer to Lloyd was later quoted by a famous Colonel. It was "Nuts." Now, Paul Kitchin had got me into all this mess by breaking his wrist but Lloyd had hinted a refusal to play baseball might get me out of it and maybe that helped. What a blessing it was to be sent to Oklahoma City to work under Dwight Brantley and out of that office on specials with Johnny Keith and E. J. Connally.

Now you see how Ernie and I landed in Headquarters where he, Dick Glavin, the Laboratory Charles Appel, Inspector Jim Egan and others had made their mark before I ar-

Fidelifacts Expands Operations; Skinner Elected New President

Major changes in the management and future plans of Fidelifacts Inc. were made at a meeting of the stockholders and board of directors at Fidelifacts headquarters at West Hempstead, N.Y. This international network of investigators is owned and operated by former FBI Agents Thomas F. Skinner (1954-58) was elected president, and Robert A. Sherman (1943-65) was elected secretary-treasurer.

Skinner has operated the Fidelifacts franchise for Connecticut since the death of Hugo Bladorni, former Agent who died in 1965. Sherman is senior vice president of Fidelifacts of Greater New York, a franchise which has been operated by Vincent Gillen (1955-57) since 1956.

Fidelifacts issues franchises to qualified investigative organizations and is anxious to expand its present network of 24 offices. Until recently franchises were issued only to former FBI Agents to cover pre-employment type investigations. However, with the great demand for the comprehensive investigative work which these experienced investigators can offer, Fidelifacts is now broadening its scope to include almost all types of investigations. Colonel Peter G. Rutledge, U.S. Air Force (retired) has been named executive director and is making his headquarters at 152 Ivy Street, West Hempstead, New York 11552. For the past several years, Fidelifacts Inc. has been operated from the office of C.V.D. Rousseau (1942-47), former president, of Phoenix, Arizona. Rousseau will now devote all his time to the development of Fidelifacts-Arizona.

Rousseau continues as a director of Fidelifacts. Among the other directors elected were Charles H. Allen (1942-46) of Boston, David B. Will (1955-58) of Chicago, Vincent Gillein, Robert A. Sherman, and Edward L. DuBois III, son of the deceased former Agent, of Miami.

Former Agents or other qualified investigators have been encouraged to inquire about the possibility of joining thus "new image" Fidelifacts in the rapidly expanding security/investigative field. Contact may be made with Tom Skinner, 98 Hoyt Street, Stamford, Connecticut 06905, or with Colonel Rutledge, at the West Hempstead address.

NEW OFFICERS OF FIDELFACTS—Thomas F. Skinner of Stamford, Conn. (second from right) new president of Fidelifacts Inc. confers with other officers of the nationwide investigative group. Tulsa Chapter Reactivates With Election Of Officers and Setting of Meeting Dates

The Tulsa, Oklahoma Chapter is back in business as a result of the election of new officers and a determination to reactivate the group. At a meeting at Borden's Cafeteria, 51st Street and South Peoria Avenue, Benjie C. Garren was elected Chairman, John W. Henderson, Vice Chairman, Roy Gardner, Treasurer, and Hobart Dickson Jr., Secretary. Hal Sundvahl was named Insurance and Membership chairman. Glenn H. Brown was chosen Executive Services representative and Ramon Kasabaum as Foundation representative.

Garren reported that although the Chapter has not met for some time, telephone calls to all known X-Agents in Tulsa reflected that all are vitally interested in continuing the organization and pledged their support although several were unable to attend this meeting.

It was decided that during 1972 the Chapter will meet on the third Monday night of January, March, May, July, September and November at 6 o'clock at Borden's Cafeteria. There are now 17 known members of the Society in the Tulsa area and efforts will be made to contact all potential members in Northeast Oklahoma to urge them to attend the January 17 meeting.

Scheidt is Checkers Champ

Wins 6-State Crown After Gruelling 3-Day Tournament; Says Game is More Difficult Than Chess

Society member Edward E. Scheidt of Reston, Virginia added new laurels to those he already owns as a former FBI Agent, former Motor Vehicle Commissioner of North Carolina and currently a lecturer before various colleges, schools and civic organizations.

He won the Fourth District American Checker Federation championship in a hard-fought tourney at Greensboro, North Carolina.

The tournament was held for three days and gave Scheidt the honor of being the best checkers player in the Carolinas, the Virginias, Florida and Georgia. Scheidt and the other contestants went through the tournament, which even continued on Thanksgiving Day, in dead silence.

"Checkers is underestimated by the average person," he said. "It's really more difficult than chess. I've never seen a chess player who can play checkers worth a darn, although checkers players can usually play acceptable chess."

He summed up his views by observing that "checkers is a science, chess is a philosophy."

Before serving 14 years as North Carolina's Motor Vehicle Commissioner, Scheidt was SAC of the Charlotte FBI Office for nine years. "I spent 21 years with the Bureau before retiring," said Scheidt. "And six years of that time was spent in charge of the New York City Office — the largest in the FBI."

Scheidt moved to Virginia in late 1965 and went into semi-retirement, occasionally doing some consulting work. Recently, however, he signed a contract with the American Programs Bureau, the largest lecture bureau in the country which arranges appearances of nationally known personalities. Speaking mainly on college campuses, Scheidt gives intimate behind-the-scenes glimpses of the FBI, centering his presentation around the human interest angle.

HOOVER DEDICATED TO JOB

Scheidt, in discussing FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, says the Director's "whole life is the FBI." He's very impatient with any type of shoddy or indifferent performance, but appreciates good work. He's an extraordinary man who never sought to do anything other than carry out the responsibilities of the FBI as delegated by Congress and the President."

Scheidt said he has played checkers since his high school days. He helped to found the North Carolina Checkers Association in 1919. "I attended the first NCCA tournament which was held in Charlotte," he recalls. "They've never missed holding a tournament a single year except for several during World War II."

Scheidt won his championship status after three days of play by defeating Earl Lowder, the North Carolina state champ. Lowder's title is up for grabs in a three-day match next July at Greensboro and Scheidt says he just might be there to add that crown to the one he's just won.

X-Agents Tell it Like it Was

Winston Churchill, George Bernard Shaw, Konrad Adenauer, de Gaulle, he said "They all were pretty well up in years and they did pretty well, wouldn't you say? Just because a man hits his 70s doesn't mean he's ready for the chicken house."

I mentioned that I'd heard that Agents worry about being fired for expressing independent thoughts. "There was a chorus of denial. "We were never worried about losing the job," Naylor said.

"At times we were hoping somebody was going to fire us," said Masters with a laugh. "Look, we were not Milquetoasts. An Agent could speak up when he thought the policies could be improved. I spoke up plenty myself and I never missed a pay raise. And I never felt I had to send Mr. Hoover a birthday card."

It was true that FBI men had certain characteristics in common, Naylor said.

There is uniformity in one thing, Naylor added. "It's the friendship. At the convention in Atlanta I saw fellows I hadn't seen in 20 years and we picked up where we left off as though we'd never been apart. And we all told the biggest lies like fishermen. You see, in the FBI you're kept pretty busy. You're on 24-hour call. So you just don't make any friends outside the Bureau."

Despite the Society's common interest, it has never been a lobbyist agency. Mullan said "We're not committed to any legislation or to anybody running for office." The five former Agents agreed that most attacks on the FBI and J

Edgar Hoover were "unfair and usually made by people anxious to advance their own careers."

Attacks were not new. Masters said "I remember books written against the FBI back in the '40s. Of course the Bureau makes mistakes but they are insignificant compared with the accomplishments."

MUSKIE IS CRITICIZED

Hagan said he was particularly angry at Senator Ed Muskie who complained about surveillance during the Earth Day rally last Spring in Fairmount Park.

"Muskie knew darn well the FBI wasn't investigating Ed Muskie," Hagan said. "The Agents were there because they were looking for certain suspects. The trouble was that Mr. Muskie hadn't checked who all the people were on the platform with him. "Senator McGovern also made charges about wiretapping that he never proved. So did Representative Hale Boggs. As for former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, the Director was being kind when he called him a "jelly fish."

Mace Scovell (1940-45) and (1949-70), the oldest X-FBI Agent in the group, said the Bureau had been criticized for "riding roughshod" over civil rights.

"But it was the FBI that safeguarded people's civil rights long before this was popular practice among the local police departments," he said. "In the Miranda decision, the Supreme Court under Chief Justice Warren specifically praised the Bureau and the Director for their longstanding practice of advising suspects of their rights. Unfortunately, this kind of thing is forgotten."

First Annual Breakfast of FBI Identification Alumni a Success

FOR A JOB WELL DONE—Luther Coulter (left) Chairman of the San Antonio Chapter, presents a certificate of appreciation to Tom Bronstad, the retiring Chairman, for his fine work in leading the Chapter during the past year. The presentation took place at the November 11 luncheon meeting at the Petroleum Club there.

At the Society's Atlanta Convention more than 50 persons, both husbands and wives, attended a sit-down breakfast featuring those former members of the Society who started their FBI career in the Bureau's Identification Division.

The low-key breakfast meeting held on Friday morning featured such veteran alumni as Gerry Engert and Art Potter, who served many years as supervisors in the Identification Division as well as many other important roles in the Bureau. Some of the members attending dated their Bureau service back to the early 1930's.

An interesting time was had by all in a social exchange of experiences centering around the fingerprint exhibition.

A highlight of the meeting was a panoramic picture history of the Identification Division and a number of its personnel prepared by Gerry Engert. A vote of thanks to Gerry's effort in compiling this history was certainly in order.

The meeting was organized by Carl Claiborne and Gene Stewart of the Atlanta Chapter, and it was the feeling of the persons assembled that this should be a regular meeting in future Conventions. This comment was passed on to the New Orleans Chapter with the hope that they may follow through on this idea.

Raymond J. Driscoll (1941-62), of 728 South Vail Avenue, Arlington Heights, Illinois, died September 22 in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, after many hospitalizations throughout the years since the amputation of his left leg in March of 1963.

Mr. Driscoll's first FBI assignment was at Springfield, Ill. He then was transferred to Chicago where he remained for the rest of his service with the Bureau. He always said the highlight of his career was in 1942 in helping to recapture Roger Touhy after returning from the FBI, he went with the State's Attorney's Office in Chicago but had to resign shortly due to his illness from which he took at least a year to recover. Then he went with the Illinois Racing Board Association and worked in security for this group during the racing seasons. Judge Lieb was chief judge of the Middle District of Florida until he became 70 last September. A former Assistant U.S. Attorney at Tampa, Judge Lieb was appointed to the bench in 1955 by President Eisenhower. His wife, Helen, had served as National Republican Committee woman from Florida. A stickler for judicial propriety, Judge Lieb signed the social affiliations that he thought would bring him into contact with lawyers and made a point of eating lunch with his own law clerks in a cafeteria each day to avoid the company of other attorneys. A man of rigid judicial principle, he scrupulously followed the lead of higher Federal courts in deciding several school desegregation cases in the Pinellas, Hillsborough and Polk County school systems in the mid-1960s, even though his decisions were sometimes at odds with his own conservative bent.

U.S. Senator Edward Gurney of Florida praised Judge Lieb as a "judicial giant who looked upon the duties of the bench as an extension of the rights of freedom and justice as outlined in our Constitution. It was his love for his work that made him the outstanding judge that he was."

In addition to his wife, Helen, Judge Lieb is survived by a son, Joseph Patrick Jr., two brothers, Dr. Edmond F. Lieb, Houston, Texas, and Ray J. Lieb, Faribault, Minnesota, and two sisters, Mrs. Horace Gorton, Prairie Village, Kansas, and Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, St. Louis.

and I enjoyed every minute of it. It was seeing so many of the old timers, many of whom are a little out of shape. I must say they are recognizable in a way. It would warm our hearts to be able to see them at the Bureau for a short period of rehash.

TRIBUTE TO X-AGENTS

"The tremendous amount of applause is largely from the ladies department, but it is a great organization and you and everyone who is in the Bureau today, and you who have been in the Bureau, have made it possible for me to attain whatever recognition I have in this country as the Director of the Bureau. I could not have done it alone, no one man has ever made the Bureau great, it is a 'we' organization and you each have contributed your part and for that I am very, very grateful. Thank you so much."

NEW OFFICERS INSTALLED

The evening's program included a brief installation of the following new officers of the Chapter Chairman, Paul E. Ertzinger; Chairman-elect, John P. Buscher; Treasurer, Warren L. Love, and Secretary, Alexander W. Neale Jr.
