radposed resultive order betablishing a national intelligence authority

The returning berewith the draft of the proposed Executive Order antehlishing a Sational Inbelliance Authority to scordinate intelligence activities, which you builded to me. I do not think it necessary for the to go into the merits of the plan insofar as it relates to intelligends apprecia abroad insecuch as it is the same plan in essence as previously property and is, in my opinion, completely unmortable. I definitely do not beliance that you should approve the draft in its present form. A very gross defects in the proposed plan is that it overlooks one very important factor of National Res manely the carrying on of intelligence work within the Continental United States and its territories.

I reach this conclusion because no reference is sude in the proposed Associtive Order to much operations. Either the plan everytooks this very tital factor, or it proposes that such work shall be degried on through the medical of the State Department, the Hilltary Intelligence Division of the War Department and the Office of Neval Intelligence of the Havy Department. In oither case, the situation is not satisfactorily covered. As you are aware, by Szecutive Order and under legislative authority, the responsibility for the Internal Security of the agentry has been handled by the Department of Justice and the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Such operations encompass not only the ocubatting of sabotage and sapionage, but also the activities of foreign agonto operating within the Continental United States and its territories. Since the proposed assoutive Order provides only for the participation of the State, War and Mary Departments, it appears that the proposed plan entirely overlooks intelligence operations within the United States which have been and should continue to be entrasted to the Department of Justice.

In the event you feel that despite the foregoing basic objection the Legartive Order should be approved, it would still appear imperative that a number of changes and clarifications be made in the proposed draft in order to protect the jurisdiction and interests of the Department/of Justice and the Federal Bureau of Investigation. the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

In Paragraph Jon, a National Intelligence Author the most effective accomplishment of the intelligence signion relating to the national security. In Paragraph Four, Subsection (a), the Company Intelligence Agency is given authority to accomplish the correlation and evaluation of departmental intelligence relating to the national security. Also in Subsection (b), authority is given to the Central Intelligence Agency to coordinate the astivition of all agencies of the Covernment and their functions relating to the national security. realiste it importative that these references to maticall eccurity be clarified so that they elearly not include internal national security which is under the furiadiofica of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

ex-alo Vin Subsection (a) of Paragraph Four, it is stated in referring to the Munical Intelligence Agency: "Full use shall be made of the staffs and facilities

2:10 PM -1-CHC.FC

"of satablished departmental intelligence agencies." Also, in Paragraph Seven, in the last sentence, the Director of the Central Intelligence agency is given power to call upon the departments and independent agencies to furnish specialists for positions in the Central Intelligence agency. I would like to arge that this provision be classified so as to prevent the drafting of our personnel, nost of whom could be classified as epscialists in intelligence actions, and to clearly set forth that the Central Intelligence Agency would have no authority to direct and control the staffs and facilities of the established departmental agencies in connection with its upo of these agencies. The centralizing of power proposed in the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency would obviously give his the power to wreak any existing agencies, including the Federal Bureau of Investigation, by drafting their key personnel or directing the activities of their staffs into heartfung channels.

With reference to Subsection (c) of Paragraph Four, which gives authority to the Central Intelligence agency to perfers, for the benefit of departmental intelligence agencies, such services of common concern as the Mational Intelligence anthority determines can be more efficiently accomplished by a common agency, including the direct procurement of intelligence. I believe that considerable clarification is desirable to inverse that the jurisdiction of the FSI is not invaded to a mass basis, it being noted that this includes all phases of security work. This provision so worded is certainly broad enough to include practically every function being carried on by the FSI at the present time by statutory ensotes to presidential directive, or otherwise.

Paragraph Five of the proposed directive states that the Central Intelligence Apency shall have no police or law enforcement functions. This provision of course was included in the original plan subsitted by General William J. Donoven, but I desire to point but that this Bursan done at present have jurisdiction in intelligence matters throughout the Sestern Regisphere as contrasted to the less enforcement matters specifically excepted in the directive from the operations in the Central Intelligence Agency. In this connection, it should be noted that the fields of law enforcement and intelligence cannot be separated insofar as they partain to the interpal security of the United States.

In Paragraph Six, in the cart to the last sentence, the Central Intelligence Agency is given the power to inspect the operations of the departmental intelligence agencies in commetted with its planning functions. Obviously, this provision must be reworded so as to exempt the Federal Bureau of Envestigation from being subjete inspection by the Central Intelligence Agency if our responsibility and interests are to be protonted.

proposed acoustive Order inamench as it appears that there cay be doubt as to whether cortain provisions of the directive are not in conflict with existing statutes. The vision for financing the operations of the Central Intelligence agency by contributions from the funds of departments perticipating in the National Intelligence are not in the National Intelligence are considered to the far, Navy, and State Departments, and the office of the President, all of whom are represented on this so-called Sational Intelligence are not need authority. This would appear to be an attempt to evade the Independent frices for the results and appearance of the results appearance of the president of 1955, which provides that no funds should be allocated from the second appropriation to any independent agency after it has been in existence.

Mr. Nease_ Miss Gandy for one year, and it would appear that the Central Intelligence agency would definitely be so independent agency within the maining of this cot.

It would appear to we that sorious considerations of legality are involved in the powers granted in the directive by the various previsions, enabling the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency to inspect, define, and control the activities of the regular established departmental agencies whose powers, duties, and responsibilities are defined by Congressional anasteent. You will note that as set up, even though the Metional Intelligence Authority would be composed of the Secretaries of State, Was and Navy and, of course, a representative of the President, all of whos obviously would have little time to devote to intelligence action, the essential authority, jurisdiction, and power are placed in the Director of the Central agency, who would have no statutory authority, responsibility, or come.

Gentlemen:

- I. It is my desire, and I hereby direct, that all Federal foreign intelligence activities be planned, developed and coordinated so as to assure the most effective accomplishment of the intelligence mission related to the external national security. To this end I hereby designate you, together with another person to be named by me as my personal representative, as the National Intelligence Authority.
- 2. You shall each designate persons from your respective Departments who shall collectively form a Central Intelligence Group and who shall, under the supervision of a Director of Central Intelligence, assist the National Intelligence Authority. The Director of Central Intelligence shall be designated by me, shall be responsible to the National Intelligence Authority, and shall sit as a non-voting member thereof.
- 3. Subject to the direction and control of the National Intelligence Authority, the Central Intelligence Group shall:

the ones who will be interpreting the phraseology were. Finally Mr. Judson decided/to word paragraph nine as follows:

> Nothing herein shall be constaued to authorize the making of investigations, otherwise than as provided by existing law and Presidential directives, inside the continental limits of eq United States and its possessions."

MEMORANDUM FOR THE DIRECTOR

This phraseology would, of course, be about the most complete protection the Bureau could hope to have and would appear to cure the changes cited above, both in paragraph 3.c. and paragraph 9. Mr. Judson consulted the Attorney General by telephone at that point and the Attorney General suggested milder language in that the President had just this morning advised members of the Cabinet that because of the strikes, he was so burdened with work he desired them to avoid conflicts which would necessitate his becoming involved for decisions. The Attorney General, therefore, thought that this was not a good time to interject such blunt language as here suggested and he suggested the phraseology, "Nothing herein shall be construed as affecting the present jurisdiction of any United States agencies inside the continental limits of the United States or its possessions." I nevertheless pointed out that this was a negative statement which merely meant that although the Bureau would not be precluded from conducting the same investigative work in which it is now engaged, it would not prevent this new outfit from duplicating and coming into the same field.

Mr. Judson concurred and accordingly, without mentioning the FET, advised the men with whom he had conferred this morning that from a legal standpoint, it was felt a necessity that the phraseology above, i.e. the flat denial of the right of investigation inside the continental limits of the United States, be included as paragraph nine.

This proposed change will, of course, now be discussed by the men who will present the directive to the President and Mr. Judson will be advised of their decision. He has promised to call me or Mr. Mumford immediately upon receipt of advice in the matter and I will advise you.

THE DIRECTOR

DATE: January 19, 1946

Mr. D. M. Ladd

SUBJECT:

WORLD-WIDE INTELLIGENCE

I advised you yesterday of a conference I attended accompanied by Mr. J. K. Mumford with Harold Judson, Solicitor General's Office, and one of his assistants, in which several proposed changes were made in the Presidential Directive to be issued concerning world-wide intelligence.

Mr. Judson called today and subsequently advised Mr. Rosen and Mr. Mumford that the White House personnel preparing this Directive had agreed to the phraseology as it appeared in Section 3.c. in my memorandum yesterday. They also agreed to the new phraseology for Section 9 with a slight transliteration. This Section now reads: "Nothing herein shall be construed to authorize the making of investigations, inside the continental limits of the United States and its possessions, except as provided by law and Presidential directive." The only change in this phraseology from that proposed yesterday was the dropping of the word "otherwise" and the word "existing" and moving the phrase to the end of the sentence.

Mr. Judson pointed out that he was most surprised at the acceptance of this categorical denial of the right of this new group to conduct any investigation within the Continental United States and its possessions and felt that it now provides the Bureau an absolute basis on which to protest any action undertaken by the group domestically other than for their administrative review, correlation, and dissemination of work.

Pursuant to your telephonic instructions, Mr. Judson was advised at approximately 12:45 PM today that the draft met with no objection. He advised the White House would be so informed and that undoubtedly the order would be signed and issued later today and that there would probably be publicity on it by tomorrow.

There is attached for your information a copy of the final draft submitted by Judson.

RE: WORLD-WIDE INTELLIGENCE

Dear Sir:

As of possible interest to the Bureau, there is transmitted herewith an editorial appearing in the January 24, 1946, issue of the San Antonio Express.

It is to be noted that the editorial criticizes the establishment of another Government Agency with the purpose of "correlating" information in Washington.

This is being transmitted for the Bureau's information.

Very truly yours,

ROBERT W. WALL, JR.

Creating NIA and a Central Intelligence Agency

President Truman's action in directing that a four-man board (the National Intelligence Authority") and a central Intelligence agency be set up, is an encouraging step toward vitally needed service.

As proposed, NIA would comprise the War, Navy and State secretaries and a fourth person named by the President as his "personal representative." The central agency would be staffed from the three departments' ranks, and headed by a Director of Central Intelligence. The director would be responsible to NIA and would sit with it as a nonvoting member.

NIA and central agency objectives are commendable. The latter would have the task of correlating and evaluating national security information, and spreading that information within the Government; plan co-ordination of the War, Navy and State departments' Intelligence work; recommend over all policies to NIA; perform for the departments' Intelligence agencies services of "common conce"n."

The questions that arise regarding the proposal stem from measuring that plan against the task as enumerated. For one thing, the suggested NIA and central agency clearly are a compromise with the demand for a full-fledged autonomous agency that would perform all Intelligence services for the Nation. Moreover, they are a patchwork compromise: Besides being patchwork in structure, they are patchwork in authority and functions. They are limited as to what functions they can discharge, and they are dependent upon departmental sanctions and interdepartmental harmony for full efficiency in discharging even those restricted duties.

By reason of those limitations and that structure, one questions whether the aim of "correlating and evaluating" information and distributing it within the Government is not too optimistic. The Government has set up numerous agencies in its day, and all have been charged with commendable purposes. Comparatively few have proven able or willing to carry out those purposes fully.

Therefore, the judgment must stand that NIA and the central Intelligence agency are encouraging symptoms merely. They should not be accepted as completely satisfactory. Their compromise nature and resulting limitations must be recognized, and pressure must remain unabated for veritable consolidation of Intelligence services. Only such consolidation can secure maximum protection for the Nation.

Colonel Johm Grombach informed the writer today of the following information which he felt would be of interest to the Bureau, Mr. Fending As you know Colonel Grombach for the past five years has been handling ultra secret intelligence work for the Army and the White House, and in the recent past has been conducting a highly discreet investigation of Colonel McCormack of the State Department with reference to his Communist affiliations and the Communist affiliations of those now attached to Military Intelligence.

Colonel Grombach stated that he had visited Admiral Souers this morning in his new offices at the New War Department Building, and there found Admiral Souers surrounded by complete confusion. He stated that much to his surprise he observed a civilian working in Admiral Souers' office whom he recognized as a former associate of McCormack. He stated he did not know the man by name, but knew that he was associated with McCormack as he, Grombach, had run into this individual during his investigation of Communist activities in G-2. (This individual was later tentatively identified by as Lieutenant Colonel James Lay. He was at one time with the Combined Chief's of Staff, and later transferred to the State Department under McCormack).

Colonel Grombach stated that he called on Admiral Souers at the Admiral's request, and he desired to know if Grombach could supply any information to him with reference to secret intelligence operations. Admiral Souers stated that he knew that the Colonel had compiled a comprehensive report for the White House and desired copies of it. Colonel Grombach stated that not knowing the purpose to which Admiral Souers intended putting this information he declined to make the report available to him, and instead referred him to the White House. During the discussion that followed between Grombach and Souers, Souers stated that he anticipated drawing top administrative personnel into his organization from former OSS employees, and that he was now attempting to arrange a conference with General Donovan for recommendations on former OSS personnel. Colonel Grombach stated that the state of confusion existing in Admiral Souers! office is very comparable to that at the time OSS was formed. He stated that the biggest job that Souers has at the present time is answering inquiries from various Congressmen and politicians who desire to place personnel in the news organization. Colonel Grombach stated that after talking with Admiral Sowers he gained the impression that Souers was very sincere and wanted to do a good fob, but that he lacked experience and that undoubtedly he would yield to a certain amount of political pressure. RECORDED

Colonel Grombach was of the definitexopinion that after Jearning from Spuers that he, Souers, had little knowledge of those who were now working for him that James Lay was a definite plant in the organization by McCormack, and that undoubtedly Admiral Souers would not tolerate the presence of Lay if he knew his past associations with McCormack. Colonel Grombach bases this statement on the fact that Souers attempted to get from him the copy of the report that he has now made available to General Eisenhower concerning McCormack and Communist infiltration into G-2. Souers informed Grombach quite bluntly that he did not like McCormack nor any plan that he had advanced concerning world wide intelligence.

Director, FBI

RE: FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE ORGANIZATION

Dear Sir:

As a result of articles appearing in the recent Issue of TIME and NEWSWEEK, which treated the proposed organization for foreign intelligence work under the Army and Navy, there has been substantial discussion among Embassy officials in Bogota.

On February 6, 1946, I had a conference with Ambassador WILEY and among the matters discussed the question of continued foreign intelligence by the FBI arose. He again expressed himself to the effect that this is a very important year in Colombia, in view of the pending national elections, labor conditions and the scheduled Pan American Conference to be held in Bogota in the month of December. He desires to have a competent and experienced staff and hopes that the office of the Legal Attache will be continued.

Ambassador WILEY requested that I write a confidential letter to the Director suggesting that if possible available detailed information pertaining to the newly proposed intelligence set-up be furnished him through this office because he has not received any factual data pertaining to it. He also stated that he was again ready to do all in his power to have the FBI continue in the foreign intelligence field and would, therefore, like to have the Director suggest any action which he might take, such as writing letters to any individuals whom the Director would recommend.

I am submitting the mbassador a request and suggestion consideration.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE ORGANIZATION

Reference is made to your letter of February 7, 1946 reflecting that Ambassador Wiley was interested in receiving if possible detailed information pertaining to the newly-proposed intelligence setup. The information in possession of the Bureau was furnished to you in a Memorandum for all FBI Legal Attaches #6, dated February 18, 1946.

The Bureau has not been advised as yet as to what effect, if any, the creation of a new organization will have on our SIS work. The new organization, of course, is still in the formative stage and little is known concerning the definite plans for it. It is suggested that you may desire to call the Ambassador's attention to a copy of the President's Directive which was furnished to you in the above-referred-to Memorandum for all FBI Legal Attaches.

(A) FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE -- For your confidential information, I am attaching a copy of a directive issued by the President on January 22, 1946, creating a National Intelligence Authority and a Central Intelligence Group to develop and coordinate foreign intelligence for the benefit of the United States Government. I am not advised as yet as to what effect, if any, the creation of this new intelligence organization will have on foreign intelligence operations of the Bureau, but it will be noted that the new agency will have no control of or connection with domestic intelligence, inasmuch as it is specifically provided that no police, law-enforcement or internal security functions shall be exercised under the above-described directive.

The Bureau is concerned at possible conjecture by employees based on newspaper and radio publicity concerning the effect of this directive. You should utilize this copy in answering any queries of the Special Agents or other Bureau employees under your jurisdiction. In the event any changes are necessary in the Bureau's foreign intelligence operations because of the creation of this new organization you will be promptly advised.

On February 21, 1946, Lieutenant Colonel Jack Crowley, former Chief Counterintelligence Officer of G-2, United States Forces, Austria, was taken on a tour of the Bureau. He was accompanied by Special Agent and the writer.

During this tour Crowley mentioned confidentially to the writer that he had been called to the State Department on three occasions recently relative to conferences on the makeup of the new international intelligence agency to be set up by the United States Government, headed by Rear Admiral Souers. Crowley stated that he was told to see Admiral Souers but has as yet not met him. He thought that he might arrange to see Admiral Souers through a personal friend

Growley inquired if the FBI was going to take over international intelligence for the U.S.A. The writer told him that this did not seem likely inasmuch as such an agency had been created under Admiral Souers. Crowley advised that from his talks at the State Department he gathered that no definite ideas had as yet been formulated on the type of agency to be created and that everything seemed to be in a state of confusion.

It is not known by the writer if Colonel Crowley's talks with the State Department were for the purpose of eliciting suggestions from him as to the makeup of an international intelligence agency or whether it was contemplated offering Crowley a position in such agency. He also added that the Veterans Administration in Washington had offered him a position. It is believed that the position offered to Crowley was to act as head of the Veterans Administration for the State of Vermont. Crowley's home is in Rutland, Vermont, where he previously practiced law. He indicated that his present plans were in a state of flux.

The writer plans to have luncheon with Colonel Crowley in the near future and if any further information is developed relative to the international intelligence agency, such information will be promptly submitted for your attention.

STANDARD FORM NO. 64 fice Memorandum UNITED GOVERNMEN DATE: 3/29/46 MR. D. M. LADD K. C. HONGO ALL INFORMATION CONTAINED HEREIN IS UNICLASSIFIED EXCEPT FROM : HITTERE STOWN OTHERWISE. Call received: 3/28/46 SUBJECT: A Colonel Cunningham called the Bureau last night Colonel Cunningham stated that he desired to determine if knew or could find out for him the Embassy holding Diplomatic automobile license No. 4. He advised that the police informed him that they have not as yet received the 1946 list and since this particular automobile had been shadowing one of his people all evening (March 28, 1946), he desired to know to whom it belonged. He asked that he be called back shortly at telephone WOodley 3929. After ascertaining that Colonel Cunningham is apparently Colonel Harry J. Cunningham, 4733 Reservoir Road, N. W., telephone WOodley 3929, I called the Washington Field Office and asked the Agent on duty to check their list of diplomatic numbers to see to whom license No 4 was issued. It was learned that the Washington Field Office as yet has not a complete listing of the 1946 licenses but it was determined that license No. 4 was issued in 1945 to the Spanish Embassy. Washington Field made a check through the Metropolitan Police Department but was unsuccessful in learning the 1946 issue for license No. 4, due to the fact that it apparently was reissued in the past day or two and the record is not yet in the indices and the information desired would not be available until today. I called Colonel Cunningham back and imparted the above information to him, pointing out at the same time that it is a somewhat regular procedure for the same license to be issued to the same Embassy year after year and the likelihood is that No. 4 was issued for 1946 to the Spanish Embassy, however, he was cautioned that this of course would not be a certainty. Colonel Cunningham stated he would check with the police department himself tomorrow to determine whether he could learn to whom 1946 No. 4 has been issued. He stated if he were unsuccessful in getting this information, he would recontact your office for assistance. DATE: 2 ACTION: None unless Colonel Cunningham recontacts the Bureau. "Special Estimates Staff"

Consideration of the organization and operation of the projected "Special Estimates Staff" has been confused by conflicting concepts of its status and functions. It is variously conceived as:

- a. A "Special Branch" within the State Department intelligence structure (but separate from the Office of Research and Intelligence).
- b. A unit organizationally within State, but actually interdepartmental in composition and function.
  - c. A unit within the proposed Central Intelligence Agency.

The idea of a separate "Special Branch" is regarded with great misgiving in the Office of Research and Intelligence. The War and Navy Departments have been insistent that interdepartmental synthesis be accomplished in an interdepartmental agency rather than within the State Department.

The ambiguity of the status and functions of the projected "Special Estimates Staff" is unsound. It should be clarified by the substitution of two distinct units, as follows:

- a. A Special Section in the Intelligence Coordination Staff, Office of the Director, O.R, I., the function of which is to provide substantive control over the output of O.R.I. The Special Section, appropriately manned, might exercise this function with reference to special information available to it.
- b. A National Estimates Staff in the proposed Central Intelligence Agency.

The establishment of such a Special Section would:

- Afford requisite security to special information.
- b. Assure to the Special Section the immediate availability of maximum research facilities, essential to its proper functioning.
- c. Assure that basic research in O.R.I. is conducted with the benefit of all essential information.
- d. Obviate the probability of inconsistency in Departmental intelligence reporting which would exist if an SES and ORI were issuing separate reports, the latter without full information.

62-80750-

Allay misgiving and resentment in ORI.

The establishment of a National Estimates Staff in the proposed Central Intelligence Agency (or otherwise under the National Intelligence Authority rather than within the Department of State) would:

- a. Free the Staff of Departmental and research responsibilities, permitting it to concentrate on a single, clear, and sufficiently exacting function, the synthesis of departmental estimates.
- b. Afford interdepartmental status to what is clearly an interdepartmental activity.
- c. Enhance the prospect for effective War and Navy Department cooperation.

The Director of the Central Intelligence Agency (or whatever his title may be) should have a Deputy responsible to him for the substantive content of all estimates and other intelligence reports issued by the Agency, and for no other phase of its activity. This Deputy Director should be supported by two Assistant Directors, one in charge of the production of descriptive or static intelligence studies of the JANIS type, one in charge of the production of current reports and estimates (i.e., of the National Estimates Staff).

It should be a function of the Deputy Director to ensure, through appropriate liaison, the timely receipt, by the National Estimates Staff, of all current information and departmental estimates required by it and all pertinent information regarding our own capabilities and intentions. He should also regualte the dissemination of NES reports and estimates. The Staff itself should be concerned only with substantive matters.

The Assistant Director, C.I.A., serving as Chief, National Estimates Staff, should be assisted by a body analogous to the Senior Team, J.I.S. In addition to himself, it would consist of one representative detailed by each member of the Advisory Board of C.I.A. and the Chiefs of the Estimates and Current Sections, N.E.S. Its functions would be:

- a. To formulate the problems presented to the NES and the requests to be made upon other branches of CIA and upon departmental agencies for essential information.
- b. To review estimates prepared by the drafting teams of NES in response to such direction.
- c. To exercise a general supervision over the periodic summaries of current intelligence produced by the Current Section of NES.

Although it would be the endeavor of this body to effect such reconcillitation of views as to obviate dissent at the Advisory Board level of CIA, unanimous concurrence should not be required, it being the responsibility of the Chief to decide issues in accordance with the weight of the evidence or of opinion. In such cases, however, varying interpretations should be noted in the report.

Members of the NES, other than the representatives referred to above, should be selected on a basis of personal and professional competence, rather than as representatives, and should be assigned rather than detailed, under the provision authorizing the Director, CIA, to employ personnel or to call upon departments to furnish specialists, including the assignment of military and naval personnel.

The majority of NES personnel would constitute an Estimates Section. They should not be organized geographically, but should be apportioned on a basis of topical competence (e.g., military, naval, air, political, economic, socialogical, geographical, meteorological, technological, medical, etc.) The principle on which the Section should operate in response to direction should be the formation, by its Chief, of competent task groups, rather than by the operation of rigid geographical subdivisions.

The Current Section would edit important cables and other current reports worthy of special dissemination and prepare material for one or more periodical publications or for oral presentation. Such material should be analytical in character, not merely briefs of dispatches. Initially the Section should produce a TOP SECRET weekly summary for extremely limited distribution. Subsequently it might develop a SECRET version for wider distribution, and certain oral presentations.

A Library Section would serve both the Estimates and Current Sections by keeping available for ready reference an active file of NES and departmental reports and estimates, other current materials, and standard reference works. It should not duplicate the centralized reference facilities maintained by CIA, but might serve as a channel for drawing on them.

A Graphic Section would serve in the preparation of visual presentations, primarily for oral presentations by the Current Section, but also for the illustration of current reports and estimates.

Since a final decision on the establishment of a CIA has not yet been taken, and since the budget provided for the SES is being preempted to establish the NIA Secretariat, the establishment of NES may be necessarily delayed and gradual. Possible stages in its development might be:

- a. Designation of the Chief, NES, and his Advisory Board.
- b. Establishment of the Current Section.
- c. Establishment and gradual expansion of the Estimates Section.

d. Establishment of the Library and Graphic Sections.

A question arises as to the effect of the development of this organization on the Joint Intelligence Committee and Joint Intelligence Staff. For a discussion of that subject see Tab A.

Recommendations

- 1. Approval of the establishment of a Special Section in the Intelligence Coordination Staff, ORI.
- 2. Early designation of a Chief of that Section, with instructions to develop plans for its establishment. Colonel Polyzoides is suggested as a possible choice.
- 3. Tentative approval of the National Estimates Staff envisaged herein.
- 4. Tentative designation of a Chief of that Staff, with instructions to develop further plans for its establishment for eventual submission to the Director, CIA.

DATE 2/2/2005/8---/4/20322/6...

When J.I.C. 239/5, recommending the establishment of a C.I.A., was developed in J.I.S. and approved by J.I.C., it was contemplated that C.I.A. would eventually supersede J.I.C. and J.I.S. It may be presumed that the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in recommending it to the Secretaries of War and of the Navy, and those Secretaries, in ugging it upon the Secretary of State, contemplated such an ultimate consequence.

In principle, it is desirable that C.I.A. should because the sole interdepartmental intelligence agency, to obviate any question of jurisdiction. That immediate result is not to be expected, however. As long as the Joint Chiefs of Staff continue in existence as an interdepartmental agency, some residual function will remain for the J.I.C. which C.I.A. cannot conveniently discharge and should not undertake.

For example, the coordinating function of C.I.A. will supersede most J.I.C. activity in that field (as well as cover much that J.I.C. has refused to undertake), but some J.I.C. policy problems have concerned J.C.S. instructions to theater commanders, which will continue to be a J.C.S., and hence a J.I.C. function.

Similarly, the establishment of an N.E.S. in C.I.A. would relieve J.I.C. (J.I.S.) of the necessity to prepare basic estimates of foreign capabilities and intentions, but not of the takk of supplying certain highly specialized and day to day requirements of the J.W.P.C., which need will continue as long as there is a J.C.S. as attpresent constituted. It is desirable that the N.E.S. confine itself to the broad and basic field of truly national policy intelligence, to the exclusion of such matters, which would really be departmental operating intelligency (rather than joint intelligence) if there were actually a single military department. Hence it is desirable that the J.I.S. be maintained for the time being to protect N.E.S. from becoming involved in what would properly be departmental operating intelligence, but with reduced strength and narrowly limited functions.

The Current Section of N.E.S. would obviously supersede the Weekly Summary Editorial Board, if that were not sooner disposed of by adoption of J.I.C. 75/3.

If and when Congress enacts legislation on the basis of the President's recommendations, the problem would disappear. The departmental operating character of the residual functions of J.I.C. and J.I.S. would then be apparent and presumably would be absorbed by the Armed Forces General Staff, leaving C.I.A. as the sole interdepartmental intelligence agency.

ONATIONAL IMPLLIGENCE AUTHORITY

Reference is made to the attached copy of a memorandum prepared by Colonel Montague, addressed to Colonel McCormack of the State Department dated January 14, 1946 entitled "Special Estimates Staff.* This memorandum of course was prepared prior to the issuance of the Presidential Directive establishing the National Intelligence Authority which was issued on January 22, 1946 and appears to be predicated on the proposal for the National Intelligence Authority which Colonel McCormack had drawn up.

Mr. Hendon..... The memorandum reflects that there has been considerable Mr. Pennington .... discussion regarding the establishment of a Special Intelligence Staff Mr. Quinn Tamm ... that is, an organization to prepare basic estimates of foreign Mr. Nease capabilities and intentions. Possibilities for establishing this Miss Gandy ..... special estimate staff included establishment of a special branch within the State Department but separate from the Office of Research and Intelligence; establishment of a unit organizationally with the State Department but actually interdepartmental; and the establishment of a unit within the proposed Central Intelligence Agency as proposed by Colonel McCormack. This memorandum takes the position that the establishment of a special branch in the State Department is unwise, pointing out that the War and Navy Departments have insisted that Interdepartmental synthesis be accomplished by an interdepartmental agency rather than by the State Department.

The proposals in this memorandum are:

- (1) The establishment of a special section in the office of the Director of Research and Intelligence in the State Department to control the output of the Research and Analysis Section and to "exercise" this function with reference to special information available to it." It is stated that the special section in the State Department would requisite security to special information; assure maximum research facilities; assure that basic research is conducted with the benefit of all essential information; obviate inconsistency in departmental intelligence reporting; and "allay misgivings and resentment in ORI."
- (2) The establishment of a National Estimates Staff in the proposed Central' Intelligence agency (McCormack's proposal). It is stated that a Deputy Director of Central Intelligence should be in charge of the National Estimates Staff and an Assistant Director should be actual head of the production of current reports and estimates, i.e. of the National Estimates Staff. It is also suggested that this Assistant Director be assisted by a board composed of one representative detailed by each member of the Advisory Board of the Central Intelligence and the Chiefs of the Sections of the National Estimates Sta

11 368692 11 INFORMATION CONTAINED

It was proposed that the personnel of the National Estimates Staff be organized on the basis of "topical competence" and not geographical. It is also proposed that the "current section" of the National Estimates Staff would edit important cables and other current reports otherwise of special dissemination and prepare material for periodical publications or oral presentation, such material to be analytical in character.

It was proposed that the National Intelligence Staff be developed gradually and that eventually it take over all the functions of the Joint Intelligence Committee of the Joint Chiefs of Staff insofar as they related to general estimates not confined specifically to military capabilities and intentions.

It would appear that this memorandum makes no current proposal inasmuch as the establishment of the National Intelligence Authority and the Central Intelligence Group as presently constituted supplant entirely the McCormack proposals.

should affect the practice of furnishing to General Vaughan or Admiral Leahy outstandingly interesting and important material. It is believed that we should continue this practice exactly as we have in the past.

Room Mr. Nease Miss Beahm b7C an inquiry of Colonel Cunningham Miss Gandy with regard to the review of foreign language publications by the Bureau. As you know, the Bureau has no organized or specific program calling for the review of foreign language publications. However, in connection with the investigation of foreign language groups, informants in the various field offices do review the publications issued by these groups and submit a digest of the data which appear relevant to the Bureau's 1000 inquiry. This digest, where it is deemed advisable, is then incorporated in the report submitted-to the Bureau by the field office on the particular group. It is only in the dissemination of these reports reflecting material contained in foreign language publications that other governmental agencies are informed of this activity on the part of foreign nationality groups. In the main, the examination of foreign language publications by Bureau informants is limited to those which are Communist vehicles of expression, such as the Morning Freiheit, a Jewish newspaper published in New York City, the Lraper of the Armenian Progressive League, and the Whina Daily News. There are, of course, numerous other newspapers of a foreign language character in such nationalities as Spanish, Polish, Slavic, German, Italian, Hungarian, and Portuguese which are covered in the same manner. It is to be noted, however, that of the estimated 1,000 foreign language publications in the United States, the Bureau is actually reviewing through its informant coverage a very small percentage of the total field. On infrequent occasions, some field offices have requested that a review of particular publications be handled by the Bureau's Translation Unit and these requests have occurred chiefly in Japanese publications such as the Rocky Shimpo, the Colorado Times and the Chicago Shimpo. PERSONAL AND CONTIDENTIAL BY SPECIAL MESSENGER

Hear Admiral Sidney W. Souers Director Central Intelligence Group Hoom 4253 New War Department Building 21st and Virginia Avenue Vashington, D. C.

Dear Admiral Soucra:

10 500 Almigor 694 letter 7-21-97

I have reviewed the draft of a proposed CIG directive concerning "pelicy on clearance of personnel for duties with Central Intelligence Group", enclosed with your letter of April 25, 1946.

The minimum investigation of CIG personnel as set forth in the directive would appear to be satisfactory from the standpoint of determination of an individual's qualifications in the light of the personnel standards from the security standpoint set up in the directive. I would like to suggest that the provision that a minimum of 10 years honorable government service where there is no subsequent information ereating a suspicion of disloyalty or question as to discretion may constitute the basis for clearance of an individual for duties with the Central Intelligence Group may make possible the entry of unsatisfactory persons into the employment of the Central Intelligence Group.

It is believed that there are many persons in government employment for a period of ten years or more and who have what appears to be unblemished records insofer as integrity and loyalty is conserned who do not make satisfactory employees for the tentral Intelligence Group from the security standpoint. I would like to suggest that consideration be given to eliminating this provisions and that an investigation be required of all persons, or that they must have undergone a satisfactory previous security investigation.

Sincerely yours,

J. Edgar Hoover

J. PRANKLIN CARTER, also known as John Franklin Carter, Jr.

J. Franklin Carter, pen name as Jay Winklin, fell name appears to be John Franklin Carter, Jr. He has used also the name John Wifter.

According to an informant, John F. Carter, Jr., is a graduate of Yale College. Tale College lists John F. Carter, Jr., as a member of the class of 1919, and his address was listed as Department of State, Washington, D. G. Ascording to this source, who is generally known to be accurate; Carter began to use the name of Jaffranklin in connection with his writings while on the pay roll of the State Department. Articles revealing secrets of the State Department began to appear in the nemapapers and magazines under the mame of J. Franklin, resulting in an investigation. J. Franklin Carter seen afterwards left the employ of the State Department but continued to write under the pen name J. Franklin. This information was not verified by investigation. (61-7559-139X) \

According to other information received, shortly after the election of President Ressevelt in 1912, J. Franklin was employed by Bernarr McFadden as a Washington Correspondent. The articles he prepared for Liberty Magazine as a result of this employment dealt with economic and political matters relating to the Wallaco-Tugwell farm policies. About the time J. Franklin began his series of exticles in Liberty, he obtained a position under the name of John Carter as an Assistant to Dr. Tugwell in the Department of Agriculture.

The Congressional Directory for 1936 indicates that John F. Carter, 2130 Letter Place, Weehington, D. C., was the Director of the Information Division in the Rosettlement Administration. The Washington City Directory listed John F. Carter of this same address as the Assistant to the Under Secretary of Agriculture, whe was then Rexferd Pagnell.

According to reliable secrees, John Franklin Garter, Jr., who resided at 2130 Lakey Place, Namhington, D. C., and who was born on April 21, - 1891, was formerly emplayed as a clerk to the American Ambassacior in Rome; Italy, and Constantinople, Turkey. He was later Secretary to the Ambassador in Rome, and following that was a Reporter and Assistant Editor in newspaper work. From 1928 to 1932 he was employed by the State Department as a drafting officer at a salary of $5600 per annum. He resigned his position in the State Department in June, 1932, to become a member of the Greenining Committee of a new Matiemal Party with offices and headquarters at $20 Lexington Avenue, New York, New York. On January 27, 1934, Carter became Special Temporale Advisor at the Department of Agriculture 62-80750-46

In 1937 to 1940, J. Franklin Carter was writing a syndicated column of political comments under the title "We The People," which appeared in Washington in the "Evening Star."

J. Franklin is reported to be the author of the books "Man Is war, " "What America Needs," and "That We Are About to Receive." In the fewword to the book "Man Is War," J. Franklin indicated that he studied at Tale under Sidney For Mershall, Charles Soymour, and Wilbur Cortex Abbott. He indicated that he continued his political interest In the Department of State at Washington, in the American Embassy in Rome under Thomas Nelson Fage, Robert Underwood Johnson, and Richard Washburn Child, and in Constantineple under Roar Admiral Mark Artitol. He also claims to have been sent to Europe in the interest of the Institute of Politics of Williamstown by the President of Williams College for the purpose of interviewing various statemen. He also was Rome Correspondent of the London Daily Chronicle and contributed to the New York Times. An informent claimed that all the books and articles written by J. Franklin "had an intermetional bias with at least liberal, if not, radical tendencies." (62-47509-2)

In 19hO, in the syndicated column "We The People," J. Franklin published a series of articles attacking the FBI and Director Roover with reference to methods being used against enoug aliens and subversive elements. J. Franklin stated: "The case of J. Edgar Heover suggests that our Tumber One G-Man may become the first American political casualty of World War II."

In 1941, J. Franklin Carter set up some kind of an undercover intelligence organisation for the White Mouse which continued at least through 1943. It was known that Carter and his organization worked on a survey of the interviewing of international passengers in New York City, on subversive activities of an unamed religious organisation in Penasylvania. a survey of assignment of intelligence matters in the New York area, a survey of Japanese on the West Coast and in Alaska and in Morthwest Mexico, a "sampling of sentiment of Gafe Bociety in New York City," a project involving contacting "old French families" in Trinidad. BWI, and Martinique, and a project involving the bringing of Putai Hanfstanagel from Canada to the United States, where he was held by Franklin's organisation for questioning. Expedits a sequential set also engaged in other types of intelligence products but in so for se files reflect, no action was ever taken in connection with may of his unruys. or prejects.
