TRAINING

In many cases when CIA requests investigation, the request will not be clear. In one instance recently a Cia communication ended in this "This agency would appreciate being informed of any information developed." In this instance CIA desired that we conduct an investigation.

The advantages to be realized in receiving the original and two copies of all communications from CIA may be said to be the following:

1. Eliminate transcription errors.

Eliminate photostating or typing extra copies.

3. Speed up the handling of mail at the Bureau and get the investigation It will save Supervisory and clerical time of the save Supervisory and Superviso

It is suggested that the Liaison Section request CIA to forward the ACTION: original and two copies of communications to the Bureau when they are requesting investigation. It is also suggested that CIA be requested to clearly indicate in their communications when an investigation is desired.

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. TOLSON MR. LADD MR. NICHOLS

General Walter Bedell smith, the new D irector of CIA, called and expressed his appreciation for the letter which was written to him upon his new appointment. He also thanked me for the information he had received concerning Horace Eydney Craig and I stated that of course though we could not youch for the authenticity of this information I did feel he should know about it. The General agreed and asked whether we could do a little quiet surveillance along this line and when I replied that we could he asked that we go ahead on this.

This applicant is on February 28, 1950, wrote the Director and advised him that had applied for a position with CIA and he asked that the investigation be handled promptly. The request for investigation was received from CIA on March 17, 1950, and completed on April 6, 1950. It was noted that this application was signed February 14, 1950, was advised that the investigation had been completed and he expressed his appreciation.

On May 19, 1949, this Bureau transmitted the completed investigation to CIA on The reports contained considerable derogatory information reflecting upon his loyalty. On July 7, 1949, wrote this Bureau and stated that he understood this Bureau had investigated him for CIA and he stated he had received a letter from CIA advising that "Due to unforeseen circumstances we cannot consider your appointment with this Agency." requested that the Bureau explain CIA's action in refusing him an appointment but made no complaint that CIA had denied him his appointment because of information contained in tour reports. We replied to of course, advising him that any decision concerning his appointment would be the sole responsibility of CIA.

On February 15, 1949, advised Assistant Director Nichols that the above-named individual had requested that he use his influence in expediting an investigation for CIA being conducted by the Bureau. A check of our files at that time did not reveal any request for an investigation of and he was so advised and we have never received a request to investigate him to this date.

The applicant called at the Bureau on May 31, 1949, and complained that as a result of an FBI investigation for CIA he had been discharged by CIA. The FBI reports did not reflect any disloyal information onbut did reflect that for many years and in many localities he had the reputation of being brusque, blunt and egotistical personalso alleged that during the course of an investigation conducted of him in the Boston area the Agents who conducted the investigation evidenced prejudice against him.
An inquiry was made and the investigation indicating that he was brusque, blunt and egotistical and rude were amply borne out.

The completed investigation of the above named individual, an employee of CIA, was furnished CIA on April 20, 1949. The reports contained derogatory information reflecting upon his loyalty and security.

RECEIVED.

The following is the text from a recent communication:

Now I have seen everything:

I was asked to see a fellow now in CIA who was introduced as being a good fellow who needed help.

The contact now having been estatlished, the CIA man phoned and asked me to receive one of his agents, ________ The bird showed up yesterday; turned out to be a former OSS operative who now, he said, is in charge of European Communist intelligence for Europe. _______ bent my ear for slightly less than an hour and a half until I stood up; then he continued for another 20 minutes, with both of us standing.

I can't say that I'm sure what he wanted except possibly to set up an official contact. Most of the time he spent trying to convince me that, unlike other agencies, GIA affords absolute protection to its sources. This is because CIA, if requested, leaves names of its sources out of its reports. This went on and on even after I assured him he could use my name any damned time he pleased but I was sure I had nothing to offer about European Communists. He was undeterred.

"Any time you pick up a red-hot tip, no matter how wild it might sound, we would appreciate your letting us know," said. I suggested maybe I could help steer him to some local groups that might be helpful but he rejected the idea, explaining, "No, we take special care not to spread ourself widely. We want to be sure of the people we deal with."

kert reminding ma I could pass on anything and be assured of absolute protection; CIA would even refrain from making a follow-up investigation if it would hurt me. That's part of the regulations of his organization, he said. I assured him I had no secret information and said I doubted if I had any information-of use to him.

He kept talking about his "account" and referred once to me as his "account" is. He explained the term is used to designate any assignment or person he makes contact with.

Being only a 3-year-old agency, he pointed out, CIA naturally hasn't bogged down with red tape, hence it does not have to report names in its cases. Of course, he added, it gives more authenticity to be able to include a name but it ign't necessary. He wouldn't let go of that theme.

As an example, he cited a story on Korea which LIFE purchased three years ago but never used. CIA got a copy from the author and it was invaluable. (It didn't save the Admiral his job, however.) Anyway, he went on to point out that CIA never revealed the name of the author; LIFE never knew about it and no-one was the worse off.

To relieve the monotony, I tossed in an item: namely, that on Monday the UP Eureau in Berlin cabled here for a quick obituary of Gerhardt Eisler and the job landed in my lap. At first he was all ears. Next thing, he started to get mysterious, hinting that he knew about the cable. Finally, he came right out and said he knew all about it on Konday, which. I'd swear, he made up as he went. I expressed admiration at the fast way CIA works whereupon he got mysterious again, in a triumphant sort of way.

Incidentally, I'm sure he knew absolutely nothing about my background from he arrived at the office.

Then he noticed my interest beginning to wander to tell me that he keeps a card index on each and every person he deals with and would I mind answering some questions. The index card, he assured no. nover leaves the N. Y. office. "Why," he said, "one of our men even keeps a card on his wife." It's an office rule. Defore he wrenched himself away again asked me to be sure to phone my tips or intelligence that came my way. I asked where I could write him, should the occasion arise. He gave me a post office box number, pointing out that CIA's address is kept a secret. I expressed a little curprise at that. At length, and with a becoming air of mystery, he let me in on the secret: A bit boastfully he added that the room number isn't to be found on the lobby directory. (Don't pass that address around too freely.) Only after the dullest hour and three-quarters I ever seent did it down on me that during our colloquy, had been facing the desk to the rear, occupied by l and that long snatches of what he said had reached ears. "Say, asked me afterwards, "just what kind of uplift was that dumb bastard trying to sell you, anyway?"

I asked if he knew the FBI people here and he said of course. I casually mentioned Granville and Marchessault. Damn it, Lou, if this guy didn't whip out his notebook and write down their names! (Rest assured, I checked his credentials -- the regulation CIA card -- before talking to him.) I believe he was just playing eager-beaver, wanting to be in on the know. I doubt if G. or M. will ever become his accounts."

CIA AGENCY CHECKS

The Central Intelligence Agency has recently been taking between twelve and fourteen working days before requests for a check of their files are returned to the FBI. Today contact officer, CIA.informed SA L. RUSSELL WHARRY, Washington Field liaison agent with CIA, that CIA was in the process of transferring one section of files and it would probably be 3 or 4 additional days before FBI requests start coming through again.

The above is for the Bureau's information.

RELATIONS WITH CIA Subject:

C18-21-97 330,299

Reference is made to Bureau letters of July 5, and July 10, 1950, and to your letter of October 3, 1950.

In referenced Bureau letters you were instructed to advise the Bureau in each instance that you furnish pertinent information to the local representative of CIA in Madrid. rule, of course, also applies to pertinent information you furnish to other branches of the American Embassy. It was also pointed out that information furnished by you to CIA or other branches of the Embassy should be transmitted in memorandum form but that when this was not feasible an appropriate notation should be made in the file or an office memorandum should be prepared setting forth what information was given, where it was given, the date and to whom it was given.

It is noted that your letter of October 3, 1950, is merely a cover letter transmitting copies of memoranda furnished by you to CIA relative to a variety of subjects. Some of this information, although of interest to the Bureau in keeping abreast bf general developments in Spain and which is of value from an intelligence standpoint, has not been previously furnished to the The form in which the material was transmitted with Bureau by you. The form in which the material was transmitted with your letter of reference makes it impossible to place this material In the future you should be allert to furnish the Bureau.

for its information the same type of material mich you have apparently been furnishing to CIA. That whaterial movever, should be furnished to the Bureau under individual captions and each memorandum should clearly indicate how much of the information contained was furnished to CIA or to the branch of the Embassy It is desired in the future you closely adhere to this procedure.

BUREAU NAME CHECKS WITH ARMY, NAVY, AIR FORCE, STATE DEPARTMENT AND CLA

Special Agent Edward S. Sanders has advised that when the Bureau requests a name check at OSI Headquarters, the full name, as well as all of the breakdowns thereof, are checked in the file regardless of locality. To date the size of the indices in OSI Headquarters is such as to pose no problem insofar as name checks are concerned.

Special Agent C. W. Bates had advised that the Army maintains two sets of indices for the general files and the intelligence fiels. They will check both indices unless a specific request is made to the contrary, and the name will be broken down completely. They also make available any files concerning the name, or any of the initials in the name, regardless of the locality of the person covered by the file.

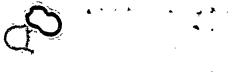

Special Agent Ralph R. Roach has advised that name checks are made in the Department of State according to request. In other words, the name is checked as is or broken down as desired by the requesting agency. He advised that there are a limited number of name checks made in the State Department, and therefore, they are handled more or less on an individual basis according to the desires of the agency requesting the name check.

Special Agent C. D. DeLoach has advised that ONI has general indices with centralized filing system. The names are checked primarily as specifically requested, then with the variations of the name. These checks are not restricted to locality, inasmich as the records section of ONI šubversive data.

SUBJECT: APPLICANT MAIL ADDRESSED TO THE

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY

Reference is made to Bureau memorandum dated October 17, 1950, and particular reference to Section B concerning the change of address of the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency. It is noted in this memorandum that informal matters such as intra-agency memoranda should merely read: Director, Central Intelligence Agency, 2430 E Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

As you know, we have at the present time some 5,000. letters of transmittal used in the transmission of completed applicant investigations. These form letters are addressed to the Director, Central Intelligence Agency. 2210 E Street. N. W., Washington, D. C., Attention: contacted CIA, in regard to this change of address and he advised that, as far as the applicant mail was concerned, it would be appreciated if it would be forwarded in the same manner and to the same address as in the past.

RECOMMENDATION

In view of the fact that we have a considerable supply of form letters already addressed to 2210 E Street, N. W., and in view of the fact that the representative of CIA handling applicant matters desires that the mail continue to be addressed to 2210 E Street, it is recommended that this information be made available to the Reading Room and that we continue to forward applicant mail to CIA (as in the past.
