A Big Flaw in the CIA Charter

THE REQUEST by Rep. Peter W. Rodino that the House Judiciary Committee, which he heads, be given a chance to study the proposed intelligence charter before it reaches the House floor should be taken seriously. Too many questions have already arisen about how the charter's provisions, drafted with the CIA primarily in mind, might affect the operations of the FBI.

Last week, for example, FBI Director William H. Webster testified that it appears the charter would permit government agencies to use the kind of disruptive tactics made notorious by the COINTELPRO program. If that is so, the Judiciary Committee, which in its work on an FBI charter has already examined ways to prohibit such tactics, is the appropriate group in the House to give the Intelligence Committee's bill a second look.

Mr. Webster, to his credit, indicated that the FBI is not seeking as broad a grant of authority as the charter appears to give intelligence agencies, and he even suggested that sharper limits could be put on the FBI's authority. He added that he doubted the old COINTELPRO tactics—harassment, infiltration, the release of false information and so on—would ever be used against domestic political groups even if the bill passes as it is now written.

But the problem remains because the terms of the intelligence charter apply to the FBI as well as the CIA. The standards for and the limitations on the operations of intelligence agencies abroad can be quite different from those that are fitting at home. By attempting to write one charter that works worldwide for all intelligence agencies, the administration and the congressional intelligence committees seem to have glossed over that distinction.

It may be permissible, for example, for the CIA to undertake some disruption overseas of groups thought to be engaged in gathering clandestine intelligence for a foreign power. But the application of that same standard—"may be engaged"—should not be permitted to justify that kind of effort at home. This is, after all, almost identical to the standard that put the FBI into the business of disrupting anti-war and civil-rights groups during the 1960s.

The problem, and others related to it, must be cleared up before the intelligence charter comes to a vote in Congress. The charter is not being written just to limit the present generation of leaders who, like Mr. Webster, understand the evils of COINTELPRO-type operations. It is meant to limit the actions of future leaders who may forget about those evils. Congress should not create an opening—a clearing in the charter such as that Mr. Webster described—in which such abuses could recur.

Re: Videotaping [redacted]
Training School Lectures

b7E

DETAILS:

The initial planning meeting to setup the [redacted] Training School was held at Quantico on 12/3/79, with representatives of the Technical Services Division (TSD), the Training Division [redacted] [redacted] At that time preliminary arrangements were made for the necessary dormitory and classroom space and [redacted]

The idea of capturing the lecture portions of the school on videotape to use in subsequent training [redacted] programmers was discussed. The representative from our Instructional Technology Services Unit indicated that this quantity of videotaping presented [redacted]

[redacted] However, pending necessary and detailed pre-production planning, it was agreed that the ITS Unit could videotape the sessions, perhaps using [redacted]

Re: Videotaping [redacted] Training School Lectures

- Although in general reference type videotapes of live lectures are usually of marginal value in later training, this is the best approach that can be applied in this case. In this instance the student manuals include black and white reproductions of all of the major course content which is shown via overhead transparencies during lectures themselves and it is felt that those printed diagrams used in conjunction with the videotapes for continuity and location reference on the individual visuals may provide a viable training vehicle.
- The lectures and videotaping will take place in a tiered classroom conveniently located near a flat-floored classroom which will contain the terminals for the practice exercises.
- The lecturer will wear a lavalier microphone to provide high quality audio and a second microphone for pickup of audience questions and discussion will be provided to feed a second channel on the videotapes. (This approach provides a high quality recording of the lecture itself and instantaneous access to the audience track whenever it is required during playback or editing modes.)

Re: Videotaping [redacted]

- A detailed indexing scheme to link the student manuals to the videotapes will not be necessary. Accurate titling of the videotape segments to show the appropriate relationship to the student manual will be sufficient.
- Because of the magnitude of the videotaping itself, TSD has agreed to provide two (2) people to help operate the camera. These personnel will be available for this purpose throughout the entire school.

The Training Division representatives also suggested that it might be worthwhile to transcribe the lectures into a full narrative text which could be edited by a knowledgeable person and then retyped and duplicated to provide the subsequent trainees with a full text of the lecture material. Admittedly this would be quite a monumental task, the mechanics of which would devolve entirely upon personnel in TSD. The Training Division accedes to the judgement of the TSD representatives [redacted] that the finished product would probably not be worth the effort; however, our television specialists still feel that it might be useful and very probably would be necessary if any sizeable amount of post-production editing of the reference videotapes were undertaken.

Of course our television specialists will do their utmost to deliver the best possible product under the constraints of available time, personnel and money. In this connection they have decided to record all of the lectures with our high quality color camera, rather than using [redacted] camera for some of the lectures, because of the capability of achieving high resolution with the former and because they believe the color itself will help to make the reference tapes more palatable.

The following points have been agreed on via telephonic contact subsequent to the 5/1/80 meeting:

- Because of the heavy drain on our videotape stock, TSD will endeavor to purchase [redacted] videocassettes. This will provide a complete set of tapes for TSD [redacted] At the same time this division will hold one set of camera originals. Ordering information has been sent under separate cover to Mr. Curran.

- Arrangements have been confirmed for the use of the flat-floored classroom (# 214) beginning 6/16/80, to the end of the school for the installation and use of the terminals and for the immediately adjacent tiered classroom, (# 202) for the lecture sessions for the length of the school.

SUBJECT: DIRECTOR OF CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE
AUTHORITY FOR PROTECTION OF INTELLIGENCE
SOURCES AND METHODS

b3
b6
b7C

PURPOSE: To set forth the authority of the Director of Central Intelligence (DCI) over sources and methods within the Intelligence Community and obligations of members of the Intelligence Community to present any situations where there is potential or actual damage of sources and methods to the DCI.

DISCUSSION: The National Security Act of 1947, Title 50, U.S. Code, Section 402, established the National Security Council (NSC), presided over by the President of the United States, to advise the President on domestic, foreign and military policies relating to national security. Section 403 of the Act created, under the NSC

NSC Intelligence Directive Number One, effective 2-17-72, directs the National Security Council Intelligence Committee (NSCIC) chaired by the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs, members including the DCI and the Attorney General, to give direction and guidance on national substantive intelligence needs.

U.S. Intelligence Board (USIB), chaired by the DCI with members including a representative from the FBI, to advise and assist the DCI with respect to national intelligence, including "the protection of intelligence sources and methods."

DE-98 62-80 750-5621

Executive Order 12036, U.S. Intelligence Activities, dated 1-24-78, authorized a NSC Special Coordination Committee, chaired by the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs, to develop policy with respect to the conduct of counterintelligence activities. Membership includes the Director of the FBI, the DCI and the Attorney General.

Memorandum from R. P. Finzel to Mr. O'Malley
Re: Director of Central Intelligence
Authority for Protection of Intelligence
Sources and Methods

Section 1-401 of the Executive Order established the National Foreign Intelligence Board (NFIB) to advise the DCI concerning, among other things, "The protection of intelligence sources and methods." The NFIB is chaired by the DCI and membership includes "appropriate officers" of the Department of Justice and the FBI.

Section 1-604 of the Order states "The Director of Central Intelligence shall ensure that programs are developed which protect intelligence sources, methods and analytical procedures, provided that this responsibility shall be limited within the United States to: (b) Providing policy, guidance and technical assistance to departments and agencies regarding protection of intelligence information, including information that may reveal intelligence sources and methods."

Section 1-710 of the Order states "The senior officials of each of the agencies within the Intelligence Community shall protect intelligence and intelligence sources and methods consistent with guidance from the Director of Central Intelligence and the NSC." Section 4-207 includes the FBI as "agency or agencies within the Intelligence Community."

Executive Order 12065, National Security Information, dated 6-28-78, Section 1-301, includes "intelligence activities, sources or methods" as information which may be considered for classification.

Section 3-303 of Executive Order 12065 provides "In some cases, however, the need to protect such information may be outweighed by the public interest in disclosure of the information and in these cases the information should be declassified. When such questions arise, they shall be referred to the agency head, a senior agency official with responsibility for processing Freedom of Information Act requests or Mandatory Review requests under this order, an official with Top Secret classification Review authority, or the Archivist of the United States in the case of material covered in Section 3-503. That official will determine whether the public interest in disclosure outweighs the damage to national security that might reasonably be expected from disclosure."

CONCLUSIONS: Historically and under current Executive Orders, the DCI, while being charged with the responsibility for protection of intelligence sources and methods, is limited in authority to providing policy, guidance and technical assistance to other Government agencies. The senior officials of the agency, however, are charged with protecting intelligence sources and methods consistent with such guidance.

Memorandum from R. P. Finzel to Mr. O'Malley
Re: Director of Central Intelligence
Authority for Protection of Intelligence
Sources and Methods

While there appears to be no directives specifically requiring all Government agencies to report damage or potential damage to intelligence sources and methods to the DCI, such reporting is certainly implied by the DCI's Executive Order responsibility to provide guidance and assistance and agencies Executive Order responsibility to be consistent with such guidance.

Member agencies of the NFIB, however, such as the FBI, have been specifically charged with Executive Order responsibility to advise the DCI on matters pertaining to protection of sources and methods. Damage or potential damage would most certainly be within the purview of "protection of" and the FBI obligated to advise the DCI accordingly.

NOTE: Discussion and conclusions were based on documents available to the writer and the matter was not researched through DCI sources.
