Re Bureau cable 12/20/72, setting forth lead to determine any witness who observed LANSKY at any airport through which he passed.

BRAZIL

On 11/8/72, an article re subject was published in "Jornal do Brasil," Brasilia, Brazil, a daily newspaper in Portuguese, stating that Brazilian police had detained ERIC SCHMIDT of Swissair and GEORGE BECKER, Pan American, in Rio de Janeiro, to question them regarding the transfer of subject from Swissair to Pan Am without knowledge of Brazilian authorities who were waiting LANSKY with orders to arrest him if he attempted to enter Brazil. Apparently LANSKY was transferred directly from one plane to the other. Both airlines were censured for their activities.

Re: Mayor Landry, Contemner
Miami, Florida

July v. U. S. 303UE 73 found use of Section 7691, against Daly, who was an under city corporate entity as defined in Section 7643, is a violation of Article I, § 1, U. S. Constitution, for collection of personal income tax.

With great eloquence Justice Bradley explained the Supreme Court's finding in Ford v. U. S. which forbid use of warrants for discovery of tax liability for income of slaves, etc.:

"I have already noticed the intimate relation between the two lead cases. They throw great light on each other. For the unavoidable reasons and exigencies concerned in the fourth amendment are almost always used for the purpose of compelling a man to give evidence against himself, which in criminal cases is condemned in the fifth amendment; and compelling a man in civil cases to give evidence against himself, which is condemned in the fifth amendment, throws light on the question as to what is the proper use of search and seizure within the corner of the fourth amendment. And we have been unable to decide that the claim of a civil defendant to be used in civil cases is not a claim of a civil defendant to be used in civil cases to be a witness against himself. We think it is within the clear intent and the spirit of these terms. We are also clearly of opinion that proceedings instituted for the purpose of declaring the forfeiture of a man's property by reason of offenses committed by him, though they may be civil in form, are in their nature criminal."
and quote. Ford v. U. S. 110 to 111.

I hereby certify true copies of this brief have been mailed to:
Federal Judge James A. Vance III, Miami, Florida, and to the United States Attorney, Miami, Florida.

United States Courts connive and take away the Constitutional rights of the people.

Result is 'Black September Violence'.

92-2831-1578

"No person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself,....."

Using authority of Section 7604 Title 26 U. S. Code, United States Courts connive and obtain a verdict of guilty, claiming the accused subject to the penalties usual for contempt of court if a person refuses to answer a warrant to appear in court with his accounts for purpose of calculating tax. See Case of Meyer Lansky, U. S. District Court, Miami, Florida, now in progress

Use of Section 7604 against natural persons is a violation of Articles 4 & 5 Amendments to U. S. Constitution. See Daly v U. S. 393 US 873, April 11, 1968.

~~Section 7604~~ Section 7604, which is in chapter 78 of title 26 directs penalties of Section 7210, which is in chapter 75 of Title 26 to be used for failure to respond to the summons.

"Person defined. The term 'person' as used in this chapter includes an officer or employee of a corporation or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer employee or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs." End quote Section 7343

Chapter 75, Title 26 U. S. Code

Congress connived this vague statute, placing the authority for the summons in Chapter 78 which contains no definition of the term person and placing the penalties for failure to respond to the summons in chapter 75. An important part of this intrigue was placing the penalties and the definition of the term person in separate sections. An accused, who read both Section 7604 and Section 7210 would have no knowledge about exactly to whom the law should be applied. Only by the chance search of the entire law could an accused find Section 7343 and that section's relation to section 7210 and section 7604. The law really does restrict use of Section 7604, as the court found in the Daly Case, to those defined in section 7343.

No provision in the Constitution of United States was made to protect papers of entities such as corporations and partnerships, therefore laws made regulating and providing for inspection of accounts of these entities are not unconstitutional. It is the use of these corporate laws against natural persons which is unconstitutional.

This FRAUDULENT intrigue of Congress and the United States Courts was exposed by Grayson v U. S. 11,809 U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, which was an appeal of #9867 U.S. District Court, Toledo, C. The Court refused to file an opinion, thereby blocking appeal on this matter of right. Congress then revised the Code, omitted Section 14 but retained the same style of law in the sections explained above. Paragraph (d) of Section 145 reads the same as Section 7343 quoted above.

On February 28, 1973, Federal Grand Jury (FGJ) convened, Southern District of Florida (SDF), returning the guilty verdict against MEYER LANSKY, charging him with criminal contempt. LANSKY was free on bond and his attorney, DAVID ROSEN, was given two weeks to file motions. No date had been given by the U.S. District Court (USDC) Judge JAMES L. KING for sentencing. Upon receiving the verdict, ROSEN made a formal motion requesting that the verdict be set aside on the grounds that it was against the weight of evidence presented by the government during the trial.

On April 5, 1973, LANSKY's attorney, DAVID ROSEN, appeared in the USDC, SDF, Miami, Florida, and requested that MEYER LANSKY's criminal contempt conviction be set aside and a new trial be granted. ROSEN stated that his client should be given a directed verdict of acquittal because the government failed to prove criminal contempt.

USDC Judge JAMES L. KING postponed ruling until after he had read legal briefs submitted to him.

It is noted that MEYER LANSKY, along with MORRIS LANSBURGH and LANSBURGH's partner, SAM COHEN, were indicted by a FGJ, Miami, Florida, on March 25, 1971. They were charged with conspiracy to skim profits from the Flamingo Hotel Casino, Las Vegas, Nevada, during the years 1960 to 1967, with the purpose of avoiding paying taxes on the skimmed proceeds.

Other overt acts set forth in the indictment included an agreement that MEYER LANSKY was alleged to have executed for a $200,000 "finder's fee", on September 9, 1960, when interests of MORRIS LANSBURGH purchased the Flamingo Hotel Casino.

On March 16, 1973, MEYER LANSKY was admitted to St. Francis Hospital, Miami Beach, Florida, where he underwent open-heart surgery.

MM 92-102

The surgery was completed without complications and LANSKY was discharged from the hospital on March 31, 1973.

On April 10, 1973, it was determined through a review of the records of the USDC, Miami, Florida, that the trial of LANSKY on the charges of income tax evasion that arose out of his indictment on March 25, 1971, has been scheduled to begin on July 9, 1973, before USDC Judge JOE EATON and one in Miami, charging MEYER LANSKY with income tax evasion and filing false tax returns. The indictment against LANSKY charged that he and co-defendant DINO CELLINI, had kept from the government and the Internal Revenue Service monies that they collected from VINCENT TERESA and CARMINE MASTROTOTARO. The funds represented gambling debts incurred by patrons of the Colony Sporting Club, London, England. It was contended that on two different occasions in 1968 a total of $94,000 was brought to LANSKY and CELLINI in Miami by TERESA, who was described as a Massachusetts loan shark and who had cooperated with the Federal Government.

On July 25, 1973, the jury sitting in the above mentioned trial, after deliberations, acquitted LANSKY of the charges.

It is noted that MEYER LANSKY, along with MORRIS LANSBURGH and LANSBURGH's partner, SAM COHEN, were indicted by a Federal Grand Jury, Miami, Florida, on March 25, 1971. They were charged with conspiracy to skim proceeds from the Flamingo Hotel Casino, Las Vegas, Nevada, during the years 1960 - 1967 with the purpose of avoiding paying taxes on the skimmed proceeds. LANSKY's co-defendants, LANSBURGH and COHEN, were sentenced to one year in prison on April 27, 1973, by United States District Court Judge ROBERT FOLEY, Las Vegas, Nevada. LANSKY was originally scheduled for trial in this matter on September 10, 1973, in Las Vegas.

On September 6, 1973, LANSKY was awarded a four month postponement by United States District Court Judge FOLEY and the trial date was rescheduled for January 7, 1974. The court's postponement was based upon LANSKY's apparent ill health.

[REDACTED]

On October 12, 1973, [REDACTED] Chief Strike Force, Southern District of Florida, advised that LANSKY's attorney, E. DAVID ROSEN, will file a reply brief to the government's brief by October 19, 1973, and it is anticipated that arguments concerning the appeal from the contempt conviction of LANSKY in June 19, 1973, will take several weeks.

RE: MEYER LANSKY
ANTI-RACKETEERING

MEYER LANSKY was found guilty of criminal contempt by a United States Federal Grand Jury (FGJ), Southern District of Florida (SDF), Miami, Florida, on February 28, 1973. On June 14, 1973, LANSKY was sentenced to a one year and one day term to be spent in the medical center for Federal prisoners in Springfield, Missouri. This sentencing was appealed by LANSKY and he was released on $200,000 appeal bond. Arguments concerning the appeal were scheduled to begin on October 19, 1973, and DOUGALD MC MILLAN, Chief, Strike Force, SDF, Miami, Florida, anticipated the arguments would take several weeks.

On July 25, 1973, MEYER LANSKY was acquitted by a FGJ, SDF, Miami, Florida, on charges of income tax evasion. The charge arose out of indictments in which LANSKY was charged with not reporting funds allegedly received by him representing gambling debts incurred by customers of the Colony Sporting Club in London, England.

On March 25, 1971, MEYER LANSKY, along with MORRIS LANSBURGH and LANSBURGH's partner, SAM COHEN, were indicted by a FGJ, SDF, Miami, Florida, charging them with conspiracy to skim proceeds from the Flamingo Hotel Casino, Las Vegas, Nevada, during the years 1960-67, with the purpose of avoiding paying taxes on the skimmed proceeds. LANSBURGH and COHEN pled guilty to these charges and were sentenced to one year in prison on April 27, 1973. LANSKY, because of health reasons, had his trial postponed to January 7, 1974.

Mafia's Elders Cool It as FBI's Informers
Reach into "Families'" Highest Echelons By Victor Riesel

NEW YORK--Even Mafia made-to-order death appears to be taking a holiday. Underworld dons, glorified tastelessly by the films as Godfathers, have directed their troops to cool it. The heat is just too intense on the Cosa Nostra elders as 1974 races in.

The command has come down to ease labor racket pressure, cut theft in the white collar field, don't "cheat" Wall Street securities, for the moment no truck hijacking, and there's even a taboo on this season's traditional bankruptcy rip-offs.

The heat on the "button men," who have until recently been free to go into anything but dope running, sears them from both inside the families and from law enforcement agencies.

So effectively has the 1973 phenomenon of local and federal coordination hit the mob, for example, that truck hijacking, a lucrative swift moneymaker, has plummeted. It's just gotten too dangerous. So much so that the thieves can't get a "drop" or a garage in big towns such as this Gotham for less than $5,000 an hour in which to hide, "break" the load down and distribute the loot into smaller conveyances.

The Mafia isn't "cooling it" out of Yuletide sentiment. First they're old and want to die a natural death after a long life. They know, and it is fact, that law enforcement agencies, especially the respirationed FBI, have broken through the old Cosa Nostra omerta--wall of silence.

File
Riesel

The bureau now has informers in the highest underworld echelons. This significant breakthrough came in the past six or nine months. And in all--repeat, all--of the Mafia families.

This is corroborated by Jerry Shur, chief of the U.S. Justice Department's criminal intelligence unit. He tells me there are some 650 informers. Most of them are from within organized crime. These men and their families, totaling about 2,000 in all, have been put under protection on military bases or have been moved from their original cities under the witness relocation program.

"Hundreds of men have been convicted who otherwise would have been free were it not for these witnesses," Shur says. "We give a witness in organized crime trials an alternative to death. So we relocate them. Vinnie Teresa (a self-avowed New England underworld thug who turned--VR) alone helped us put away at least 20 gangsters."

So the Mafia dons are careful. They don't know who'll turn and they'll hit the headlines. One informer's testimony convicted the late Gyp De Carlo.

Furthermore, the elders are growing weaker--physically. Note the final days of Meyer Lansky, last of the old Murder, Inc., era. Justice Department officials tell me he'll never be tried again though Meyer is scheduled for a Las Vegas courtroom in January.

He underwent a triple heart-bypass operation.

During his last trial, the government had to provide him with a room in which to rest and constant attendance of a doctor in the courtroom.

There are others like Lansky who, though not as sick, are antediluvians from the late '20s. Some of them are just about holding their men in line--such as the alleged boss of bosses Carlo Gambino, the most powerful labor manipulator of them all. Others are dead or have gone into exile as has an erstwhile boss of the Chicago mob. Justice Dept. investigators believe that the legendary crowd will be led by John (Jackie the Lackey) Cerone, an unknown to the rest of the nation.

Wherever one looks there are vacuums. Though the Rhode Island parole board is considering freeing the alleged New England boss, the imprisoned Ray Patriarca, the post still is open. So is the leadership of virtually all Eastern families. Slowly the Colombo family leadership is going to prison or into retirement in Florida, for example.

Slowly, feeling their way, their oats and their muscle, young unknowns are moving in. The dons watch them, try to maneuver them, cool them, wait to see which of the newcomers to power will next be grabbed by the FBI, the Justice Dept. anti-crime strike forces and the local police departments. Justice Dept. observers say that Buffalo, St. Louis and Pittsburgh are the "hot" labor racket centers.

So the dons examine the new Mafia alliances. They wait to see who will shoot their way to the top. Then they'll take sides. But for the moment they're cooling it. For them 'tis the season to be wary.

Appeal Arguments Open on Lansky's Contempt Sentence

A federal appeals court began consideration Wednesday of mobster Meyer Lansky's bid to overturn his contempt of court conviction and escape a year-and-a-day jail sentence.

In New Orleans, Lansky's attorney E. David Rosen, argued before the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals that his 72-year-old client hadn't had enough time to prove he was medically unable to obey subpoena and fly from Israel to the United States.

But a government attorney, Peter M. Shannon Jr. of the Department of Justice, told the court the delay was Lansky's own fault because he had evaded service on the subpoena demanding he appear before a grand jury investigating gambling.

Lansky, the government claimed in the trial here that brought his February, 1973, conviction, had fled to Israel to avoid prosecution.

He was brought to trial only after Israel deported him and he was unable to obtain sanctuary in a number of Latin American countries.

Lansky's attorney argued then, and again Wednesday, that his client was too ill to leave Israel but would have been willing to give sworn testimony there.

U.S. District Judge James Lawrence King handed down the year-and-a-day sentence last June, adding the "day" to make certain the conviction and sentence would be recorded as a felony.

Later in the year, Lansky was acquitted of one income tax evasion charge, but still faces trial at Las Vegas where the government has accused him of "skimming" casino gambling receipts before they had to be reported as income.

On April 2, 1974, [REDACTED] Strike Force, Southern District of Florida, advised that LANSKY's appeal from the contempt of court conviction handed down in June, 1973, was still under consideration by the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, Louisiana, as all arguments have been concluded.

The "Miami Herald", a Miami, Florida daily newspaper, in its issue of January 10, 1974, on page 4B, contained an article captioned "LANSKY Trial Re-Scheduled". The article is as follows:

Lansky Trial Rescheduled

The trial of Meyer Lansky, reputed underworld financial genius, was rescheduled in federal court in Las Vegas for May 7 after being removed from the court calendar for January.

Lansky's defense attorneys asked for another delay in the trial on the grounds that the 72-year-old man was ill and had suffered several heart attacks and minor strokes.

He faces trial on charges that he was involved in a $36 million operation to skim profits from gambling at the Flamingo Hotel casino during the 1960s and avoid paying taxes on them.

He was acquitted in Miami last year on other income tax evasion charges.

Re: MEYER LANSKY
ANTI-RACKETEERING

MEYER LANSKY was found guilty of criminal contempt by a United States Federal Grand Jury (FGJ), Southern District of Florida (SDF), Miami, Florida, on February 28, 1973. On June 14, 1973, LANSKY was sentenced to a one year and one day term to be spent in the Medical Center for Federal Prisoners in Springfield, Missouri.

On June 28, 1974, the Fifth United States Circuit Court of Appeals, New Orleans, Louisiana, ruled that LANSKY should not have been convicted for failing to answer a subpoena and, accordingly, reversed LANSKY's contempt conviction.

On March 25, 1971, MEYER LANSKY, along with MORRIS LANSBURGH and LANSBURGH's partner, SAM COHEN, were indicted by a FGJ, SDF, Miami, Florida, charging them with conspiracy to skim proceeds from the Flamingo Hotel Casino, Las Vegas, Nevada, during the years 1960 - 1967, with the purpose of avoiding paying taxes on the skimmed proceeds.

LANSBURGH and COHEN pled guilty to the conspiracy charges and in April, 1973, were sentenced to one year in prison. They were released after serving approximately four months.

LANSKY, through his attorney, was granted five continuances of his trial, because of health reasons. On August 22, 1974, United States District Court Judge ROGER D. FOLEY, Las Vegas, Nevada, granted LANSKY a sixth continuance and, in his order granting this continuance, stated that the case would lie dormant on the court calendar until LANSKY dies or Government counsel dismisses the indictment. Judge FOLEY stated that the case should be dismissed for health reasons indicating that medical evidence in the record of the case shows that it is almost a certainty that LANSKY will never be well enough to undergo the rigors of a trial.

LANSKY successfully in appeal from conviction of contempt by decision handed down by Fifth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, New Orleans, La., on 6/28/74. LANSKY's trial for Income Tax Evasion originally scheduled for 5/2/74, rescheduled to 9/3/74. LANSKY scheduled to commence on May 2, 1974, for Income Tax Evasion had been rescheduled for September 3, 1974. It is to be noted that the charges in this trial arose out of a conspiracy involving LANSKY, MORRIS LANSBURGH, and SAM COHEN in that they conspired to skim proceeds from the Flamingo Hotel Casino in Las Vegas, Nevada, during the years 1960 to 1967, with the purpose of avoiding paying taxes on these skimmed proceeds.

In an order granting LANSKY a sixth continuance of this trial, United States District Court Judge ROGER D. FOLEY, Las Vegas, Nevada, on August 21, 1974, stated that LANSKY's case will lie dormant until either LANSKY dies or Government Council dismisses the indictment.

Former Chief Justice Carlton Testifies in Gambling Probe

By JAMES BUCHANAN
And WILLIAM R. ANLONG
Herald Staff Writers

Vassar B. Carlton, the former chief justice of the Florida Supreme Court, spent an hour and seven minutes Wednesday before a federal grand jury investigating gambling.

Carlton — who retired unexpectedly in January amid reports that he was the subject of an investigation by the Judicial Qualifications Commission — said upon leaving the grand jury chambers that he had answered all the questions as best he could.

"The smart thing to do sometimes is to take the Fifth Amendment, but I did not," said Carlton, nattily attired and accompanied by his young wife. "I wanted to tell them as much as I could, but I couldn't recall all the details for some of their questions.

"The trouble with not taking the fifth is that, when you can't remember all the details, they sometimes get people on perjury."

CARLTON declined to describe the line of questioning beyond saying federal prosecutors asked about "who I knew and how long I knew them and whether they were good friends."

The grand jury investigation in Miami is being directed by Dougald McMillan, southeastern regional chief of the Justice Department's Organized Crime Strike Force.

Prior to Carlton's appearance, McMillan summoned and questioned several other Miami men, one of them Jack Grill, chauffeur for underworld financial wizard Meyer Lansky.

Also questioned was Morris Stein, the driver for Lansky associate Hymie Lazar; Rodney Roth, and Morris Katz.

ANOTHER witness, Al (Abe) Roth, initially invoked the Fifth Amendment to avoid answering questions. Taken before U.S. District Judge William O. Merriens ar

nity, Al Roth was ordered to tell the jury what his occupation was; whether he was a bookmaker; whether he ever made book at Calder Race Track; whether he ever discussed bookmaking with Lazar, Marty Ash or a third man; whether Calder security agents ever attempted to curb his bookmaking activities at the track.

Roth was called back into the grand jury room following Carlton's testimony.

Carlton announced Jan. 16 that he was retiring after 33 years as a judge to re-enter private law practice so he could make more money.

At the time, Carlton denied that he was the subject of any investigation by the qualifications commission, a disciplinary body that polices judges' conduct and can recommend their removal from office.

FOLLOWING Carlton's

resignation, commission Chairman Richard T. Earle Jr., a St. Petersburg attorney, praised the former chief justice and said there was no investigation of Carlton "pending or contemplated."

Other sources, however, told The Herald at the time that a preliminary investigation on Carlton and other state Supreme Court justices already had begun.

Among the concerns of investigators for both the commission and law enforcement agencies were Carlton's visit last June to a gambling casino in Las Vegas, Nev., and his friendship with Martin Segal, an Orlando attorney who had been indicted in connection with the operations of Central Florida gambling kingpin Harlan Blackburn.

(Charges against Segal were eventually dropped.)

Segal is also a close friend and associate of Isadore Hecht, the principal owner of West Flagler Kennel Club. Hecht and Jack Cooper, a West Flagler executive, appeared before the same federal grand jury earlier this month.

Flagler and Biscayne Kennel Club have been frequent adversaries before the Supreme Court in recent years concerning assignment of racing dates.

In 1971, the court voted 5-2 to give Flagler the most lucrative summer dates, overturning a decision by the state Board of Business Regulation to let the two tracks split the summer and winter dates. Carlton voted for Flagler.

Lansky's Conviction Is Overturned

By JAMES SAVAGE
Herald Staff Writer

Meyer Lansky
... no jail term

Meyer Lansky's only federal conviction was reversed Friday when the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Lansky should not have been convicted for failing to answer a subpoena.

The ruling by the appeals court in New Orleans means the reputed financial wizard of organized crime will not have to serve the year and a day sentence handed down one year ago.

Lansky, 71, has been free on bond since he was convicted of contempt in a jury trial last June for failing to respond to a subpoena for his appearance before the U.S. grand jury in Miami.

THE GRAND jury, which was investigating allegations that Lansky skimmed gambling profits from a Las Vegas hotel, ordered him on Feb. 22, 1971, to appear in 19 days. Lansky was living in Israel and did not accept the subpoena until March 4.

"When the government requested that the court fix March 11 as the return date of the subpoena, it made compliance by the defendant virtually impossible," wrote Judge Robert A. Ainsworth in an opinion for the appeals court.

U.S. Justice Department Strike Force attorney Donald McMillan, who prosecuted the case for the government, had argued that Lansky deliberately evaded early service of the subpoena and the March 11 return date was only set after his attorney's refusal to agree on any date.

Lansky, who lives at the Imperial House, 5235 Collins Ave., Miami Beach, and his attorney, E. David Rosen, could not be reached Friday for comment.

Judge Ainsworth said in his opinion that U.S. District Court Judge James Lawrence King should have directed the jury to acquit Lansky, because the government failed to prove its case that he willfully and contemptuously avoided compliance with the subpoena.

Lansky Contempt Conviction Is Reversed by Appeals Court

AFTER FAILING to answer the subpoena, Lansky remained in Israel until he was forced to leave that country in November 1972. He was arrested upon his arrival from Israel in Miami on Nov. 7, 1972.

The reversal of his contempt conviction erases the federal government's only successful case against him. His only previous conviction was on a minor state gambling charge in New York in the 1950s.

Lansky openly operated illegal gambling casinos in South Florida during the late 1940s and is identified by many organized crime experts as the most influential man in the growth of regional racketeering into a national syndicate with close ties to the Mafia and other organized crime groups.

HE WAS acquitted last summer on an income tax charge when a U.S. jury here believed his wife's testimony that he was not in Miami in 1968 at the time a government witness said he was receiving unreported gambling income.

Lansky, who underwent open heart surgery last year, is facing trial in Las Vegas in a skimming case that led to the conviction of Miami Beach hotelmen Morris Lansburgh and Sam Cohen.

The defendants were charged with illegally removing gambling revenue from the Flamingo casino in Las Vegas during the 1960s to avoid paying taxes.

ALTHOUGH Lansky is officially waiting trial on that charge, there has been persistent speculation that the government will eventually drop that charge for lack of evidence.

Lansky is the target of continuing investigation by a special U.S. Justice Department task based in Washington and is currently under investigation by a U.S. grand jury in Miami directed by McMillan looking into illegal bookmaking.

McMillan said Friday he was deeply disappointed by the appeals court reversal. "It was a very expensive trial for the government both in time and money. All I can say is that we did our job and a jury convicted him."

MM 92-102

The "Miami News", a Miami evening newspaper, in its edition of July 11, 1974, on Page 4A, contained an article captioned "LANSKY Appears Before Jury Probing Rackets". The article follows:

Lansky appears before jury probing rackets

Meyer Lansky spent about five minutes yesterday with a federal grand jury in Miami probing gambling racketeering and possible links with public officials.

Lansky, said by the U.S. Justice Department to be a financial genius of organized crime, appeared under subpoena before the jury which has questioned several persons, including a retired chief justice of the Florida Supreme Court about gambling junkets to Las Vegas.

Looking somewhat tired and drawn, Lansky, 71, arrived at the federal courthouse at 10:45 a.m. with his attorney, David Rosen, and was called into the jury chambers at 11:30. He emerged twice for hurried, whispered conversations with Rosen, and then emerged for the final time at 11:44.

Lansky declined to comment on his appearance before the jury, saying only,

"Ask them in there (the jurors)."

Also appearing before the jury today was Pam Carlton, daughter of Vassar Carlton, who returned last February as chief justice of the state Supreme Court. Miss Carlton is a secretary at a Miami Beach law firm.

Her attorney said the jury questioned her in regard to travel to Las Vegas, but not specifically about gambling junkets. Her father had testified under subpoena to the jury June 26 on a number of matters including his acquaintance with Hymie Lazar, who operates gambling junkets and has been observed meeting Lansky.

Carlton said he told the jury that he had heard the name of Hymie Lazar, but they were not personal friends and he (Carlton) had not taken any of the junkets to Las Vegas.

Refusing, initially, to testify to the jury today were well-known racing boat-builder Don Aronow, and his son, Michael Aronow.

Dougald McMillan, Justice Department attorney who leads the Miami Strike force, took the Aronows before U.S. District Court Judge Clyde Atkins, who granted them immunity from prosecution in exchange for their testimony. It was disclosed that the jury wanted to ask them about alleged meetings with bookmakers at Calder Race Track.

Lansky Completely Free--U.S! Drops Case

By FRANK BEACHAM

Herald Staff Writer

Meyer Lansky is a free man.

The organized crime chieftain, who has successfully zig-zagged through legal obstacles for more than five decades, has beaten the only conviction the federal government ever got on him.

Lansky's victory came this week when the U.S. Justice Department decided its case was not strong enough for an appeal of its reversal to the U.S. Supreme Court. Lansky had been sentenced to a year and a day in prison for failing to answer a federal grand jury subpoena.

The Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals tossed out the June 1973 jury conviction, contending the government failed to prove Lansky willfully and contemptuously avoided compliance with the subpoena.

LANSKY, now 72, has waited for the legal battle to end in his plush apartment at the Imperial House in Miami Beach. He has been free on bond since his conviction, but up until months ago he was required to phone his whereabouts each week to Dougald McMillan, the man who prosecuted him.

McMillan, who heads the Justice Department's Organized Crime Strike Force in Miami, said those weekly phone chats were cordial but formal. "There was no real conversation, we never developed any rapport."

There have been few public glimpses of the short, graying Lansky since his highly publicized trial last year. His health declining, the aging man has never looked the image of the lord of rackets or the onetime confederate of such notorious underworld figures as Frank Costello, Bugsy Siegel, Lepke Buchalter, Joe Adonis, and Luckey Luciano. His most public pastime now is walking his dog along Collins Avenue.

HIS IMPORTANCE, however, never has been underestimated by federal agents. Some have had a full-time job probing his web of vast financial holdings. His personal fortune has been estimated at $300 million.

FBI agents have been assigned to keep him under constant surveillance. One agent reported frequent chats with the man he was assigned to follow.

The reversal of the contempt conviction in June and the government's decision not to appeal it erases Lansky's record of ever violating a federal law. His only previous conviction was on a minor state gambling charge in New York during the 1950s.

Though he has evaded the law with classic success, the aging Lansky has earned himself the reputation of being a giant in organized crime in America. He openly operated illegal gambling casinos in South Florida during the late 1940s and in the process corrupted many major police agencies in the area.

FOR LANSKY, the success in beating the conviction was his third major legal victory in just over a year.

He was acquitted last summer in Miami of an income tax charge when a federal jury believed his wife's testimony that he was not in Miami in 1968 at the time the government witness said he was receiving unreported gambling income.

And charges were recently dismissed by a federal judge in Nevada in a case which accused Lansky of skimming millions of dollars a year from a casino operation. That case led to the conviction of Miami Beach hotelmen Morris Lansburgh and Sam Cohen. The trio was charged with illegally removing gambling revenue from the Flamingo Hotel's casino in Las Vegas during the 1960s to avoid paying taxes.

The judge said Lansky, who had undergone open heart surgery and was in poor health, was too sick to stand trial.

AT THE TIME, Lansky was so distrusted that rumors circulated that cardiologists who performed the heart surgery on Lansky had merely made an incision and then sewed him back up.

The surgeons, to relieve any suspicions, saved some of Lansky's heart tissue and sent it to a laboratory to be preserved as proof.

The case that brought Lansky's short-lived contempt conviction stemmed from the investigation that led to the Las Vegas indictment.

The grand jury investigating the skimming operation ordered Lansky on Feb. 22, 1971 to appear as a witness on March 11. Lansky was living in Israel and did not accept the subpoena until March 4. He didn't show on March 11 to testify, contending his health was too poor.

McMILLAN argued at the trial that Lansky deliberately evaded early service of the subpoena and the March 11 return date was only set after Lansky's attorney refused to agree on any date.

But, in writing the opinion reversing that conviction by the appeals court, Judge Robert Ainsworth wrote it was "virtually impossible" for Lansky to comply with the subpoena by March 11.

The Justice Department had the option of dropping the case or appealing. Solicitor General Robert Bork made the decision not to appeal.

"It was a decision he had to make. He didn't think the chances of a favorable Supreme Court ruling were good enough," McMillan said.

In earlier games on the tour the Israeli team drew 1-1 with Cosmos in New York in what was also a tough game. It won its first match 1-0 in Philadelphia, with crowds of only a few thousand spectators attending both games.

The team plays its next match in Chicago.

The "Miami News," a Miami afternoon newspaper, in its issue of May 16, 1975, on Page 5A, contained an article captioned, "LANSKY May Get Immunity, Testify in Gambling Probe." The article is set forth as follows:

Lansky may get immunity, testify in gambling probe

Reputed underworld banker Meyer Lansky of Miami Beach is expected to go before a judge in Fort Lauderdale today and be granted immunity as a prelude to testimony before a statewide grand jury.

It will be Lansky's second appearance before the state grand jury, which is probing organized gambling in South Florida.

Last month, Lansky spent only five minutes in his previous appearance before the grand jury, apparently having invoked his constitutional privileges against self-incrimination.

Meanwhile, Metro police yesterday arrested three Dade men on gambling charges after they were named in some of the 14 indictments returned by the grand jury. Six others were arrested elsewhere. Some of those arrested were named in more than one indictment.

A fourth Dade County man, Marty Lewis, a Bal Harbour cabana operator, was taken into custody on a contempt citation after he refused to answer questions before the jury after being granted immunity.

The three men arrested in Dade County and the charges against them are Arthur Young 44, 1233 Collins Ave., Miami Beach, one count of conspiracy to commit bookmaking; Samuel Nemath, 63, 2215 NE 204th St., four counts of unlawful wagering; and Walter Joseph Miller, 52, 1616 NW 19th Ter., one count of unlawful wagering.

A police source said they expect to make additional arrests based on the remaining sealed indictments.

Among those arrested in Broward County were Maurice Slutsky, 64, of Hallandale, who was charged with two counts of bookmaking, and Edward Vose, 61, of Dania, charged with wagering.

Lansky has been subpoenaed to appear this morning for his second session before the probe. It was expected that Lansky will again invoke constitutional privilege and then be taken before a Circuit Court judge and granted immunity.

According to Special Prosecutor Eugene Whitworth, Lansky will be questioned "only about organized crime in relation to illegal gambling."

Whitworth also said that the immunity granted Lansky would guarantee his freedom from prosecution in any subsequent case linked to his testimony and that the questions he wants to ask Lansky "will not be directly connected with cases the grand jury has been hearing at this time."

If Lansky still refuses to testify after being granted immunity, he could be held in contempt of court and jailed. He was convicted of criminal contempt in federal court in Miami for his failure to respond to a federal grand jury subpoena while he was in Israel, but the conviction was reversed by the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

The "Miami Herald," a Miami daily newspaper, in its issue of May 17, 1975, on Page 1A, contained an article captioned, "LANSKY, MEYER An Old Man, A Reputation, And A Probe Into Crime." The article is set forth as follows:

Lansky, Meyer

An Old Man, A Reputation, And a Probe Into Crime

By ARNOLD MARKOWITZ
Herald Staff Writer

"Right now I wish you could get me a new pair of legs," the old man said, pulling himself out of a chair and walking gingerly down the courthouse corridor to loosen the only pair he has.

He is 72 years old, with a deep, soft voice. His hair and eyebrows are gray, his ears large, the lines deep in his tanned face. His clothing — white shirt, blue jacket, no tie — is nondescript.

He looks like any elderly gentleman one might see in Miami Beach. He ambles back to the chair.

A bystander shows him a paperback book entitled "Bloodletters and Badmen," opening the volume to a chapter headed "Lansky, Meyer: Crime Syndicate Chief."

MEYER LANSKY laughs, his eyes crinkling. He is the center of attention for a small crowd of newsmen, and he seems to be enjoying it.

He also is the center of attention for a special statewide grand jury investigating organized illegal gambling. By reputation at least, Lansky knows the field as few men do.

It is the grand jury that has summoned him here to the Broward County Courthouse in Fort Lauderdale. It is trying something different.

For years, prosecutors and grand juries have tried to get at Lansky from beneath, hacking away at the elaborate criminal substructure they believe insulates him from legal attack. It has never worked.

On Friday morning, this grand jury tried to do it the other way around — getting at the substructure by hacking away at Lansky.

ITS TACTIC was to give him immunity from prosecution for anything he might say about himself. He could testify or face a jail sentence for contempt.

Lansky testified. Whether or not the grand jury's strategy works remains to be seen. Testimony it hears, is, by law, secret. Special prosecutor Eugene Whitworth was careful not to relate Lansky's testimony, only to characterize it as generally affable.

Lansky surely was affable with the bored corps of reporters and photographers who waited with him while the grand jury spent most of the morning plotting strategy with him out of the room.

Once openly hostile to journalists, especially those with microphones, Lansky appears to have mellowed late in life.

"Sure I've changed," he said when asked about that. "You've changed. Doesn't everybody change?" He smiled and joked a lot, laughed at blatantly leading questions and returned jibes. Nothing whatever of substance, but then no one expected any.

LANSKY WAS asked if he would acknowledge his financial wizardry, underworld or not.

"Ha, ha. No, I wouldn't. Ha, ha. I'm going to the poorhouse," he said.

Which poorhouse?

"You'll spend your whole life guessing, won't you?" he replied.

A television man asked Lansky how much money he'd have if he'd invested all his small grand jury witness fees at six per cent interest.

Again he laughed.

WITNESS FEES are petty cash, but Lansky has appeared before enough grand juries for them to add up. He didn't answer the question.

Someone mentioned that it had stopped raining.

"It stopped?" Lansky asked. "What am I gonna do with my raincoat?"

One reporter offered to take it.

"IT WON'T fit you," said Lansky. "Your feet are too big."

He asked another his name, saying he wanted to remember him.

"In your book or your will?"

"You're better off in my book than my will," said Lansky, who lives in an expensive Miami Beach apartment building. He expressed no interest in writing his life story.

In more serious tones, he chatted about weight and tobacco control.

"DO YOU exercise?" he asked a television man who boasted of swimming 100 yards a day and breaking a three-pack-a-day cigaret habit with great difficulty.

"I'll tell you one way of doing it," Lansky offered. "Have a heart operation." He's had one.

"I used to smoke a few packs of cigarets and then go and play a couple of games of handball," he said. "In my younger days."

Lansky was asked back into the jury room at 12:10 p.m. He emerged at 12:27.

"Well, we're through!" he announced.

WHITWORTH, the prosecutor, said later that Lansky had been tired, and that the jury had agreed to adjourn for the day if Lansky would return for its next meeting June 11.

Whitworth said Friday's questioning had been broad, general in nature. He promised to ask Lansky more specific questions next time. There had been suggestions that Lansky's testimony was evasive.

Whitworth said he couldn't be sure. Lansky left the courthouse with his lawyer, E. David Rosen. It was raining again. Lansky put on his lightweight blue raincoat and the two men walked down the street to a parking lot.

As Rosen drove away with Lansky beside him, the parking lot attendant — an elderly man wearing a golf cap — wondered who the passenger was.

Meyer Lansky, he was told. "Who's he?" the man asked.

Re: [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

On November 17, 1972, Departmental Attorney HAL WEBB, United States Department of Justice, Strike Force 18, presented evidence against GERSON BLATT and BENJAMIN SIGELBAUM to a Federal Grand Jury (FGJ), Miami, Florida, alleging Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) violations and an indictment was returned on that date by the FGJ charging GERSON BLATT and BENJAMIN SIGELBAUM with violations of SEC laws. BLATT and SIGELBAUM pleaded not guilty and both were acquitted after a trial that concluded on May 3, 1973, in United States District Court, Miami, Florida, before United States District Court Judge PETER T. FAY.

The March 9, 1974, edition of "The Miami Herald", a Miami, Florida, daily newspaper, contained an article "Six are Accused of Duping Clergy in Stock Deal". The article in part related that six Greater Miami men had been accused of cheating the Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit, Michigan, the Bishop of Lansing, Michigan, two other Michigan priests, and a secretary out of $350,000. The suit was filed in Detroit, Michigan, by the SEC. Named as the six Greater Miami men were RICHARD SADOWSKI, BENJAMIN SIGELBAUM, GERSON BLATT, MILTON PEPPER, HERBERT RUBIN, and BARTON S. UDELL. A seventh defendant was JOHN PULLMAN.

The article continued by stating the charges set out claimed the defendants purchased stock in a land development company from the victims for one dollar per share, after having had prior knowledge that the stock had increased in value because Exquisite Form Brassiere and Girdle Company purchased 92% of the shares of the land development company. The SEC contended that failing to tell the victims of the stock's increased value violated SEC laws and sought an injunction against future violations.

On October 7, 1974, United States District Court Judge JOHN FEIKENS, Eastern District of Michigan, granted the defendants' request for a change of venue from Detroit to Miami.

Re: GERSON BLATT

On June 24, 1975, a review of the United States District Court's file #74-1139-CIV, United States District Court, 300 Northeast First Avenue, Miami, Florida, by a Special Agent of the FBI showed that the most recent entry in this file was a notation that on June 5, 1975, a deposition was furnished by MARK A. LOUSCH, Attorney, SEC, Detroit, Michigan.

"FORT LAUDERDALE - Underworld figure Meyer Lansky was kept waiting for 3 hours to testify before a statewide grand jury probing gambling and then was allowed to go home when he complained of feeling ill.

"No explanation was given for why Lansky's appearance yesterday was delayed. Lansky, 42, who has made three other appearances before the grand jury, had been scheduled as the first witness during the morning session.

"The grand jury, which has already issued 42 indictments, was reportedly zeroing in on South Florida gambling operations, including lotteries.

"State Attorney Eugene Whitworth of Gainesville has said he expects the panel to issue as many as 1,000 indictments before it disbands, probably in October, 1976.

"The panel has scheduled a meeting tomorrow in Fort Lauderdale to hear from Hallandale Police Chief James Longo and several Broward County reputed underworld figures.

"The grand jury also has tentatively scheduled a meeting in West Palm Beach Sept. 9-11".

On August 22, 1975, [REDACTED] Chief, Department of Justice Strike Force, Southern District of Florida, Miami, Florida, advised that LANSKY had been granted permission to travel to Blowing Rock, North Carolina, for a vacation of approximately two weeks. [REDACTED] stated that LANSKY is still under the conditions of a bond imposed by U. S. District Court Judge ROGER D. FOLEY, Las Vegas, Nevada, resulting from the trial in which LANSKY and six other individuals, including MORRIS LANSBURGH and SAM COHEN, were charged with skimming more than 36 million dollars from the Flamingo Hotel, Las Vegas, during the period 1960 to 1968. LANSKY was granted a continuance of the trial by Judge FOLEY, who stated that LANSKY's case would lie dormant on the calendar until the government dismisses the indictment.

(b)(7)(C)
(b)(7)(D)

[REDACTED] stated that recent attempts by LANSKY's counsel to remove the restrictions of the bond have been futile and LANSKY still must obtain permission from the Department of Justice Strike Force, Los Angeles, California, before he can leave Dade or Broward County in Florida, and the request has to be supported by medical reasons.

[REDACTED] added that Departmental Attorney [REDACTED] Los Angeles Strike Force, is handling the LANSKY matter.

In this respect it is noted that Departmental Attorney [REDACTED] Los Angeles, California Strike Force, advised on April 24, 1976, that although LANSKY is free to travel throughout the area covered by the Southern District of Florida, he must obtain permission from [REDACTED] or [REDACTED] Chief, Los Angeles Strike Force, to travel outside that area.

[REDACTED] further stated that LANSKY is proposing travel in the near future as his attorney has so informed [REDACTED]. A copy of the proposed itinerary is being submitted for [REDACTED] approval. The reason given for the travel is that his wife must have medical treatment and that LANSKY will accompany her.

The above travel restrictions resulted from a bond imposed on LANSKY by U. S. District Court Judge ROGER D. Lansky Won't Have To Stand Trial

Meyer Lansky, 77 and ill, will not have to stand trial on charges of holding a hidden interest in a Las Vegas casino in the early 1960s when millions of dollars were allegedly skimmed from the house winnings, a federal court in Nevada has ruled.

The indictment against Lansky, returned in 1972, was dismissed after U.S. District Judge Roger Foley received a medical report stating Lansky would never regain sufficient health to stand trial.

The government charged Lansky was a hidden owner of the Flamingo Hotel and that he and associates skimmed $36 million from the casino's winnings.

Be Let Off Fed Hook

Las Vegas, Oct. 19.
The government is mulling a decision to appeal or drop criminal charges against alleged underworld panjandrum Meyer Lansky. Charges of illegally transporting money skimmed from the Flamingo Hotel profits from 1960-'67, were dismissed Sept. 30 by Federal Judge Roger D. Foley.

U.S. Attorney Lawrence Semenza said that a transcript of the proceedings has been forwarded to Justice Dept. attorneys in Washington for study, with 30 days to file an appeal. Lansky, 76, has been described by government attorneys as suffering from a heart condition, diabetes and chronic ulcers.

Lansky's attorneys contend that his physical circumstances have been deteriorating steadily. Indictment states that Lansky was alleged to have concealed about $36,000,000 in hotel gaming profits. Flamingo was sold to Kirk Kerkorian in 1967.

U.S. Asks Appeal In Lansky Case

The U.S. Department of Justice has appealed a Las Vegas, Nev., federal court order dismissing an indictment against reputed underworld financial czar Meyer Lansky of Miami Beach.

The indictment, which has been pending since 1972, alleged Lansky illegally transported money skimmed from the Flamingo Hotel Casino.

In August, Judge Roger Foley dismissed the indictment because of Lansky's health. His attorneys said he could not stand the rigors of a trial in Nevada.

U.S. Won't Appeal Lansky Ruling

The U.S. attorney's office in Las Vegas says it won't seek to try underworld figure Meyer Lansky on skimming charges, after all. Friday, acting on order of the Justice Department, it said it would appeal Federal Judge Roger Foley's dismissal of a 1972 indictment alleging that Lansky skimmed money from the Flamingo Hotel Casino. Wednesday, however, a spokesman said it was decided not to appeal.

The government will not appeal Federal Judge Roger D. Foley's ruling dismissing a 1972 indictment against Lansky. The Government had filed its notice of appeal but Asst. U.S. Attorney Richard Wright said that a rep of the Justice Department in Washington called and told him to withdraw the appeal, no reason given.

Judge Foley dismissed the indictment Aug. 31 after being informed that medical experts said Lansky, 76, is in very poor health and might not make it through a prolonged trial.

THE COMPLEX FINANCIAL WEB OF CASINO GAMBLING

Lansburgh, Lansky:
One Wall of Wax

By VICTOR RIESEL

Field Newspaper Syndicate

NOT a bad living if you're cut that way. Four months in the klink for slicing up $36 million over seven years without benefit of taking the Internal Revenue Service into your confidence.

But to get this kind of work, you've got to know somebody. Like Meyer Lansky, the brain, who starred as "Johnny Egg" in the old muscle days of the Bugs and Meyer mob over on the East Side. Meyer ran some fast fists and lead pipe into a worldwide reputation for being the mob's brightest, most successful gambling casino boss of bosses. A real human computer.

Well, Morris Lansburgh knew Meyer. So he got the work, helping to skim and transport some $4.5 million a year from the gaming rooms of the Las Vegas Flamingo Hotel and Casino.

In 1973, Lansburgh copped a plea, and was rewarded with a one-year sentence. Of which he served (or was served) four months in the federal pen.

But sometimes it just doesn't do you any good to know the boss. Sixty-year-old Morris, the dude, died. That was the other morning in Miami Beach's Imperial House (what else?) just about the time friend Meyer, his neighbor in another Imperial House condominium, was walking the dog.

SOMEHOW Meyer overcomes. When his friends Sam Cohen and Lansburgh went to prison, he was let off the hook, though he too had been with them on charges of skimming the $36 million and transporting the cash. Lansky told the federal judge some four years ago he was suffering from a heart condition, diabetes and chronic ulcers. The judge was very upset that the Justice Department should be so unthinking that it wanted to put this ailing little man through the rigors of a public trial.

Apparently nothing but an act of God upsets Meyer. This hasn't been a good winter for him. First he couldn't walk the dog along the Beach's Collins Avenue (near 55th Street) because it got too cold. So he was late for his daily coffee and Danish and later for his rendezvous with the courier and his personal court (like in royalty) in the Singapore Hotel lobby.

That Meyer is a romantic chap. He spent one of his honeymoons in Atlantic City. But now he's interested in one of the resort town's hotels. In November, shortly after the people of New Jersey approved legalized gambling in what is considered by federal authorities to be the territory of reputed Philadelphia Mafia boss Angelo Bruno, Lansburgh rushed to Atlantic City to case the creaking town.

Now here's a coincidence. Back in 1966, according to the authorities, brothers Morris and Angelo flew together to case a new casino or two in London. And they didn't exactly get to know each other at the plane gate. Boss Bruno has had a long and devout interest in all sorts of gambling for years. How could such as he not have known Meyer and Morris?

That venture into the Queen's English didn't work either. And later Angelo got sick — sick of body and sick of the crusading New Jersey Commission of Investigation. Its gutsy chairman, Joseph Rodriguez, is dedicated to the mission for forcing Angelo Bruno to testify about the underworld or stay in prison for contempt for life if necessary.

WELL, in the gambling casino business lots of roads lead to Lansky. Even when he doesn't get a piece of the action. Somehow he knows almost everybody in the Las Vegas gaming or hotel world. After all, he was a real pioneer. He was deep in the Hotel Flamingo milieu. And that was when the Vegas strip was mostly sand.

So it didn't come as any surprise when Florida and Nevada investigators told one newsmen that Meyer was a friend of real estate investor Alvin Malnik. Of Miami, of course.

Malnik is associated with the sons of Samuel Cohen, a former president of the Flamingo Hotel. Cohen was in the mass indictment with Lansky and Lansburgh. He, too, served four months in prison during 1973. The charge read:

"Defendants Samuel Cohen, Morris Lansburgh and Jerry Gordon and undicted co-conspirators would operate the gambling casino of the Flamingo and conceal from the Nevada gambling authorities and the U.S. Treasury Department the true casino receipts by understating approximately $4.5 million, or more of casino income yearly."

The sins of the father can't be visited upon the sons who are Malnik's partners in a deal with a Las Vegas establishment known as Caesar's World, Inc., a parent company of Caesar's Palace.

NOW it turns out that the Chicago-based Central States Teamsters fund holds a first mortgage on Caesar's Palace. The mortgage is worth $13.3 million.

There have been reports that Malnik is a reputed associate of Meyer Lansky. So it's all one wall of wax. Very difficult to see through. A strange world of cash, nos and mortgages and loans and people who know each other socially, sometimes professionally and keep criss-crossing each others wheeling and dealing.

Morris Lansburgh will miss it and Meyer will miss him. But the wheels will continue to spin.

CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIVE DIVISION

October 13, 1977

Our Miami office has advised that on 10/12/77, Richard Schwartz, the stepson of notorious organized crime figure Meyer Lansky, was shot to death with a shotgun while he was sitting in his automobile in the parking lot of his restaurant in Bay Harbor Island, Florida. Schwartz was out on bond as the result of being charged with the murder of Craig Teriaca, the son of LCN figure Vincent Teriaca. Schwartz allegedly shot and killed Teriaca approximately two months ago when they became involved in an argument at the Forge Restaurant in Miami.

The Dade County Public Safety Department, Homicide Division, is handling this investigation and the Miami office is closely following developments. No suspects have been identified to date.
