Synopsis: To open case in captioned matter and to advise Cyber of a new 288A investigation.

Details: On 8/14/2008, writer received information from the Southern District of New York (SDNY) that the website for a major New York City lawfirm, Sullivan & Cromwell, LLP, was spoofed in a suspected E-Mail phish. The spoofed website was registered and hosted at GoDaddy.com. The Sullivan & Cromwell (S&C) Wikipedia page was altered so the link to the legitimate S&C website redirected to the spoofed address. Two other major New York City lawfirms, Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz and Greenberg Traurig, LLC, have also been victims. All three lawfirms have major mergers and acquisitions practices involving deals worth large sums of money. S&C believes that someone was trying to intercept the misdirected E-Mails, about the mergers and acquisitions, in an attempt to get insider information on Wall Street activity. The activity occurred in late July, 2008 and the spoofed sites were removed, by GoDaddy.com, around 08/08/2008.

New York will open case in captioned matter and assign to SA [REDACTED]

Good Morning Mr. [redacted] I represent Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz, a law firm based in NYC. One of your customers is using your jotform service to phish information from another fraudulent site (www.wlrklaw.com). We are working with that ISP to shutdown the site, but I ask that you please disable the following form immediately.

Update:

We've stopped their web site search page. Vin has added some software logic to our external home page which checks to see if you are being referred to our site from some second party. If so we will produce the following screen below & not perform the search.

At this point we've stopped the phishing and referring, but what I cant stop is anyone sending to the following address's listed below.

Questions regarding non-legal personnel can be directed to: hr@wlrklaw.com.

Questions regarding legal recruiting can be directed to: recruiting@wlrklaw.com.

To report technical problems or errors on our website, please contact techsupp@wlrklaw.com.

No. We are specifically looking for wlrklaw. All other links should continue to work. I will try & track down that blog you mentioned below to validate.

```
--->

<cfif FindNoCase("wlrklaw", CGI.HTTP_REFERER, 1) NEQ 0>
    <CFLOCATION url="ErrorWL.htm">

Thanks. Do you mean literally that any reference (link) to our site from another part of the web will send this message? That seems too much, as many such links will be legit. (E.g. to one of our bios -- Vin, reminder -- from a blog where we've posted or an article that's been posted somewhere, etc.)

p.s. I have disclosed a complaint to the NAF and the DCMA department at Network Solutions in regards to your domain (wlrk.com)! Apparently you stole all wlrklaw.com's site's content?

Oh, and I have your IP address, so don't try anything smart, pal.

We have become aware that on June 27, 2008, an unknown individual had registered www.wlrklaw.com. By the way...the emails are being hosted by the hosting provider for the web site. If we were able to take the web page offline, we should be able to deactivate the email accounts also.

mail.wlrklaw.com resolves to 64.202.165.92, and is a redirect to pop.where.secureserver.net at the same IP.

Server: brddcon2.wlrk.com

Non-authoritative answer:
Name: pop.where.secureserver.net
Address: 64.202.165.92
Aliases: mail.wlrklaw.com, pop.secureserver.net

Likewise, smtp.wlrklaw.com resolves to smtp.secureserver.net...

So his email is not going to a gmail or similar account unless he has a rule in his account at pop.secureserver.net redirecting emails elsewhere.

Also, the Wikipedia user Lawinformationhelper made some unfavorable edits to the content. I have added myself to the watchlist for the Wikipedia page. We'll see if he slips again.

Good news. I've been on the phone for the past hr with a manager @ Godaddy. I've convinced them to remove the gmail MX records for the wlrklaw.com domain until their investigation is completed.

They would not give me control but they agreed to forward all inbound communications to their Abuse Dept.

The records have already been removed on their end.

Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz is a prominent law firm located in New York City. Herbert Wachtell, Martin Lipton, Leonard Rosen, and George Katz founded the firm in 1965.^[1] It has for some time been the most profitable large law firm in the world on a per-partner basis according to the American Lawyer's annual AmLaw 100 Survey. The firm also ranks at the top of other various surveys, including the Vault.com Associates Survey and was ranked as the #1 Most Prestigious Law Firm to Work For by the AveryIndex.^[2] Wachtell is generally considered one of the most difficult law firms at which to be hired: summer classes at Wachtell number in the low dozens and are composed of the strongest applicants from top law schools. Its associates are generally paid substantially more than associates at any other firm in the country. The firm is smaller, and has a lower associate-to-partner ratio, than its peer firms, such as Cravath, Swaine & Moore.

The firm is known for its skill in mergers and acquisitions. One of the founding partners, Martin ("Marty") Lipton invented the so-called "poison pill defense" during the 1980s to foil hostile takeovers. Working both sides of the mergers and acquisitions game, Wachtell Lipton has represented blue-chip clients like AT&T, Kraft, and JP Morgan Chase.

The firm is also known for its skill in business litigation. It has handled many of the precedent-setting Delaware corporate governance cases. One of their most recent clients was Larry Silverstein, owner of the two 110-story towers of the World Trade Center. Videos of another one of the founding partners, Herb Wachtell, arguing cases in the courtroom are shown in law school classes as examples of effective trial advocacy.

Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz is a prominent law firm located in New York City. Herbert Wachtell, Martin Lipton, Leonard Rosen, and George Katz founded the firm in 1965.^[1] It has for some time been the most profitable large law firm in the world on a per-partner basis according to the American Lawyer's annual AmLaw 100 Survey. The firm also ranks at the top of other various surveys, including the Vault.com Associates Survey and was ranked as the #1 Most Prestigious Law Firm to Work For by the AveryIndex.^[2] Wachtell is generally considered one of the most difficult law firms at which to be hired: summer classes at Wachtell number in the low dozens and are composed of the strongest applicants from top law schools. Its associates are generally paid substantially more than associates at any other firm in the country. The firm is smaller, and has a lower associate-to-partner ratio, than its peer firms, such as Cravath, Swaine & Moore.

The firm is known for its skill in mergers and acquisitions. One of the founding partners, Martin ("Marty") Lipton invented the so-called "poison pill defense" during the 1980s to foil hostile takeovers. Working both sides of the mergers and acquisitions game, Wachtell Lipton has represented blue-chip clients like AT&T, Kraft, and JP Morgan Chase.

The firm is also known for its skill in business litigation. It has handled many of the precedent-setting Delaware corporate governance cases. One of their most recent clients was Larry Silverstein, owner of the two 110-story towers of the World Trade Center. Videos of another one of the founding partners, Herb Wachtell, arguing cases in the courtroom are shown in law school classes as examples of effective trial advocacy.

Date of transcription 08/25/2008

[redacted] of SULLIVAN AND CROMWELL, LLP law firm, 125 Broad Street, New York, New York, 10004-2498, business telephone number [redacted] and [redacted] Partner at SULLIVAN AND CROMWELL, LLP (S&C), business phone number [redacted] were interviewed at the Assistant United States Attorney's office in the Southern District of New York, 1 Saint Andrew's Plaza, New York, New York, 10007. Also present was [redacted] Computer Scientist with the FBI. After being advised of the identity of the interviewing Agents, [redacted] and [redacted] provided the following information:

b6
b7C

On July 17, 2008, an E-Mail was sent to [redacted] a partner at S&C, from [redacted] a partner at WACHTELL, LIPTON, ROSEN, AND KATZ (WLRK) law firm. [redacted] forwarded the E-Mail to [redacted] and explained that he found the E-Mail suspicious because the return E-Mail address had a domain name of "wlrklaw.com." The correct domain name for WLRK is "wlrk.com." [redacted] subsequently did a search of the S&C computer gateways and found that three S&C partners, [redacted] received the same or a similar E-Mail from the same source.

b7C

On July 24, 2008, an E-Mail was sent to [redacted] an Account Executive at HUBBARD ONE, a firm that assists S&C with maintaining its website, asking for all the existing files for the www.sullcrom.com website in a compressed folder (.zip format). The E-Mail was signed "[redacted] Sullivan & Cromwell." The writer of the E-Mail stated that he was the new IT Department Team Leader and that S&C was thinking about moving to a new website.

b7C

[redacted] first came to know about the computer intrusion on August 6, 2008, when [redacted] of WLRK, called him and advised that the S&C entry on www.wikipedia.com (WIKI) had been changed on July 26, 2008, to reflect incorrect information about the firm. Specifically, the link to the S&C website found at the end of the WIKI entry was changed from www.sullcrom.com to www.sullcromlaw.com. When [redacted] clicked the www.sullcromlaw.com link found in the WIKI entry, the web page www.sullcromlaw.com opened and resembled the legitimate S&C website. However, the contact E-Mail addresses for some 700 lawyers had been changed. Between July 26, 2008 and August 14, 2008, [REDACTED] had to change the link in WIKI multiple times because someone kept changing it back to www.sullcromlaw.com. [REDACTED] informed [REDACTED] that the WIKI entries were changed for WKLR, S&C, the law firm GREENBERG TRAURIG (GT), and that the changes were made by a user with the same IP address.

[REDACTED] discovered that www.sullcromlaw.com was being hosted through www.godaddy.com (GODADDY). On August 8, 2008, S&C sent GODADDY a copyright infringement claim in order to shut down www.sullcromlaw.com. GODADDY subsequently removed the www.sullcromlaw.com website from its servers. Additionally, [REDACTED] attempted to have sullcrom@google.com removed by contacting GOOGLE.

b7C

On August 13, 2008, [REDACTED] notified [REDACTED] that although www.sullcromlaw.com was registered with GODADDY, GOOGLE APS was used for E-Mail.

b6
b7C

[REDACTED] advised that the S&C, WLRK, and GT law firms all handle large corporate mergers and acquisitions. Sometimes large companies communicate with S&C personnel via E-Mail to discuss future merger and acquisition plans. [REDACTED] thinks that someone may be trying to phish the legitimate S&C website, intercept E-Mail messages, and possibly obtain insider information. [REDACTED] stated that no blackmailing attempts or personal threats have been directed towards any S&C personnel.

b6

When asked if [REDACTED] is aware of any disgruntled current or former employees, or any employees who have been recently terminated, he stated that he did not. [REDACTED] stated that [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] explained to [REDACTED] that he was a summer clerk with GT and that GT was setting up new web pages and needed new E-Mail accounts. Additionally, [REDACTED] requested Google move the account to premium support for the amount of $25,000. [REDACTED] provided [REDACTED] with a credit card number for the purchase. The credit card payment did not go through. At that time, Google contacted [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] then found the website WWW.GREENBERGTRAURIGLAW.COM, and noticed that it was almost identical to GT's legitimate website, GTLAW.COM. [redacted] WACHTELL, LIPTON, ROSEN & KATZ ("WLRK") law firm, 51 West 52nd Street, New York, New York, 10019-6150, telephone number [redacted] was interviewed at his place of employment. Also present from WLRK were [redacted]

b6
b7C

[redacted] Also present from the Federal Bureau of Investigation was [redacted] Computer Scientist. After being advised of the identity of the interviewing Agents, [redacted] and the other WLRK employees provided the following information:

On or about June 28, 2008, an anonymous user made changes to the WIKIPEDIA.COM entry for WLRK. The same user IP address also made changes to the WIKIPEDIA.COM entries for SULLIVAN AND CROMWELL, LLP ("S&C"), and GREENBERG TRAURIG, LLP. The most notable changes were the changing of the hyperlinks to the law firms' websites. The links were changed to reflect incorrect domains.

[redacted] stated that on June 30, 2008, [redacted] last name unknown, a representative of HOSTLYON.COM, contacted [redacted] at WLRK, to pay for the registration of the WLRKLAW.COM domain. [redacted] passed the information on to [redacted] who found this strange because WLRK hosts their domain internally. WLRK's domain is WLRK.COM and not WLRKLAW.COM. According to [redacted], the person who tried to register WLRKLAW.COM had a Florida IP address, and gave the E-Mail address [redacted] with telephone number [redacted] as contact information.

b7C

On July 01, 2008, [redacted] contacted WLRK management and made them aware that someone phished the WLRK website. [redacted] also discovered that GODADDY.COM was hosting WLRKLAW.COM. The WLRKLAW.COM website was identical to the legitimate WLRK website. However, the WLRKLAW.COM website's "lawyer search" function didn't work correctly. It was discovered that a JOTFORM.COM form was used as the code for the WLRKLAW.COM search function.

WLRK next programmed code into their website that popped up an error message when users were linked to WLRK.COM from WLRKLAW.COM. The purpose of the error message was to inform users that they were directed to WLRK.COM from WLRKLAW.COM, and that WLRKLAW.COM was in no way affiliated with WLRK.

[REDACTED] filed a copyright claim with GODADDY.COM alleging that the WLRKLAW.COM copied the WLRK.COM website. GODADDY.COM responded by suspending the WLRKLAW.COM domain until the copyright claim had been settled.

b6
b7C

On July 02, 2008, [REDACTED] entered the E-Mail address MORGERAE@GMAIL.COM into a GOOGLE.COM search bar. [REDACTED] located two postings on Internet newsgroups from the [REDACTED].COM E-Mail address. The postings were seeking assistance in setting up enterprise E-Mail systems. One posting listed the name [REDACTED] as the contact person.

b6
b7C

On July 03, 2008, NETWORK SOLUTIONS notified [REDACTED] that someone had filed a copyright claim against WLRK alleging that the WLRK.COM website had copied the WLRKLAW.COM website.

b6
b7C

[REDACTED] received an E-Mail to his personal E-Mail address from someone purporting to be [REDACTED] from E-Mail address ARWOLF@WLRKLAW.COM. The E-Mail acknowledged the error message WLRK coded into the WLRK.COM website. Additionally, the E-Mail stated that the person filed a copyright complaint with NETWORK SOLUTIONS, alleging that WLRK copied the WLRKLAW.COM website. The E-Mail also advised [REDACTED] that the person knew [REDACTED] IP address, and referred to [REDACTED] as a "fag".

b6

[REDACTED] purchased about 150 variations of the WLRK domain from NETWORK SOLUTIONS, which cost WLRK about $18,000. On July 09, 2008, [REDACTED] attempted to purchase WLRKLAW.COM from GODADDY.COM, but GODADDY.COM would not release the WLRKLAW.COM domain because the domain was still under investigation. The "whois" information for WLRKLAW.COM on GODADDY.COM listed WLRK as the owner of the WLRKLAW.COM domain. Because WLRK was not affiliated with WLRKLAW.COM, [REDACTED] wanted GODADDY.COM to remove WLRK's name and contact information from the "whois". GODADDY.COM wanted many forms of proof that [REDACTED] was acting on WLRK's behalf before changing the "whois" information. GODADDY.COM finally suspended the "whois" information on July 18, 2008.

On July 18, 2008, [REDACTED] WLRK Partner, received an E-Mail from [REDACTED] Partner at S&C. The E-Mail was in response to an E-Mail that [REDACTED] received from someone purporting to be [REDACTED] became suspicious and forwarded [REDACTED] E-Mail, ultimately reaching [REDACTED] and [REDACTED]. At this point, [REDACTED] realized that although the WLRKLAW.COM domain had been suspended, there was still a problem with GOOGLE APS and the E-Mail handling.

On August 6, 2008, [REDACTED] contacted [REDACTED] [REDACTED] at S&C, and notified him that S&C might be a victim of the same attacks that WLRK was a victim of.

b6

WLRK does not know who might be behind the attacks or what might be a possible motive.

Rosen, & Katz ("WLRK"), Greenberg Traurig, LLC ("GT"), and Cravath, Swaine, & Moore LLP ("CSM"), are major law firms in New York City. The law firms specialize in Corporate Mergers and in the United States, according to WWW.VAULT.COM. From June 2008 through July 2008, the four law firms' hyperlink addresses in their respective WWW.WIKIPEDIA.ORG ("WIKI") pages were altered.

WIKI is a free, online encyclopedia, whose content can be edited by anyone accessing the WIKI website. The law firms all have WIKI entries. The entries contain various information about the law firms, including a hyperlink which directs the user to the law firm's website. When clicked, the hyperlinks are supposed to firms' websites, but redirected the user to a spoofed version of

The legitimate websites for S&C, WLRK, GT, and CSM are WWW.SULLCROM.COM, WWW.WLRK.COM, WWW.GTLAW.COM, and WWW.CRAVATH.COM, respectively. The spoofed websites had domain names of WWW.SULLCROMLAW.COM, WWW.WLRKLAW.COM, WWW.GREENBERGTRAURIGLAW.COM, and WWW.CRAVATHLAW.COM.

New York's investigation has revealed that the person(s) responsible for making the WIKI page changes did so from IP addresses owned by Comcast Communications. The spoofed websites were registered with WWW.GODADDY.COM from IP addresses also owned by Comcast. Records obtained through subpoenas indicate the IP addresses were assigned to [REDACTED] 6890 NW 75th Court, Parkland, Florida, 33067-3925, telephone number [REDACTED]
