contacted and interviewed furnished the following information after being advised of the identity of the interviewing Agent:

advised that he is a short-wave radio enthusiast. He listens to a variety of talk shows on a frequent basis. He has had occasion to listen to some "left wing" militia type programs in the recent past and he believes that these programs involve individuals who are indirectly tied to TIMOTHY J. MCVEIGH.

has heard programs of WILLIAM COOPER who is a self proclaimed anti-government militia member from Cholo, Arizona, having ties to and possible MCVEIGH. openly criticizes the government for the handling of the Waco incident and blames the Federal government for the Oklahoma City bombing stating that the government blew up the Federal building.

also has heard LINDA THOMPSON, 1-800-749-9939 on a short-wave and she is "of the same molding" that COOPER is. THOMPSON went to Waco, Texas, and chastised government officials over the handling of the matter.

stated that JACK MOHR and TOM MOHR also broadcast a program on short-wave and he believes that they are individuals who associate with MCVEIGH.

said that WILLIAM COOPER supposedly has operatives all over the United States who collect intelligence on the Federal government and furnish such information to him. For instance, COOPER's operatives are instructed to take photographs of various government and military installations and provide them to him. His operatives are known to take pictures of Federal buildings all across the nation, including Oklahoma City. said that although COOPER has never been to Oklahoma City, he seems to be unusually knowledgeable about the local streets and building structures.

has heard threats made against former Senator DAVID BOREN on the short-wave in which COOPER is affiliated with.

provided two tape cassettes of short-wave radio broadcasts in which COOPER and THOMPSON speak out against the U.S. Government. These tapes have been entered into evidence by the interviewing Agent.

This is in reference to Lead Number 2059.

PX LEAD #2302

On September 13, 1996, William Cooper, who goes by the nickname "Bill", was contacted by telephone at [redacted]. This telephone appears to be subscribed to by [redacted] of [redacted], believed to be [redacted].

After advising Cooper of the purpose of the call, which was to elicit information on a possible association with the bombing suspect Timothy McVeigh, Cooper provided the following information:

Cooper advised that he broadcasts a radio program oriented to the American Militia Movement. He also confirmed that previously he had made use of a business called "American Voice Retrieval (AVR)" which allowed him to record and leave messages on current events that could be accessed by telephone by his listeners. Typically, these messages were one to two minutes in length.

Cooper was asked about any association he had with Timothy McVeigh. Cooper responded that he has never met McVeigh, and he is not aware of ever having spoken to him. Cooper explained that if McVeigh called his AVR number in 1993, it was only to listen to recorded messages, because the AVR system did not allow for the taking of purchase orders or leaving listener messages.

Cooper did explain, however, that in November, 1994, he received a visit at his research center in St. Johns, Arizona from two males, one of whom resembled the composite sketch of John Doe #1. Cooper said the man had [redacted].

This document contains neither recommendations nor conclusions of the FBI. It is the property of the FBI and is sealed to your agency. It and its contents are not to be distributed outside your agency.
Cooper went on to say that the first composite sketch released by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) after the bombing in Oklahoma City. Cooper then remarked that the FBI later changed the composite sketch to fit a photograph that had been taken.

While visiting with Cooper, told Cooper to "watch Oklahoma." After the two men left the research center, they headed north on HWY 666 toward I-40. Cooper said the men were under surveillance, and he intimated that the interviewing Agent was aware of this surveillance.

Cooper stated that it is possible that he had a phone conversation with Timothy McVeigh without being aware of it, because Cooper receives thousands of letters and telephone calls. Cooper insisted that the man that visited him in November, 1994 and said "watch Oklahoma" is not Timothy McVeigh, the man who is presently awaiting trial concerning the bombing of the Oklahoma City federal building.

Cooper said that there are many misperceptions and lies about him and his work. Cooper stated that the news media is a "pack of liars." For example, Cooper said he has often been accused of being a white supremacist and an anti-Semite. He denied both of these charges, saying and that he possesses some Native American blood.

Cooper also denied advocating the violent overthrow of the U.S. government. He said he served in the Armed Forces (Navy and Air Force) during the Vietnam War, and Cooper said he loved his country. He also claimed not to have any hostility or animosity to federal officers unless they are actively working to undermine the constitutional principles upon which our country was founded. Cooper denied being a hate-monger.

In explaining his opposition to violence against the government, Cooper claimed that he tried to talk the right wing activist Linda Thompson out of marching on Washington.

At the conclusion of the interview, Special Agent (SA) expressed a desire to meet with Cooper personally, and Cooper encouraged him to do so in the near future.
William Cooper, who goes by the nickname "Bill Cooper", was interviewed at a rest stop area just off Highway 60 within the city limits of the town of Springerville, Arizona. Cooper said he was born on May 6, 1943. After being advised of the identity of the interviewing Agent and the purpose of the interview, Cooper provided the following information:

Cooper advised that around November of 1994, he received an unannounced visit by two young men (white males) at his "research center" in St. John's, Arizona. Cooper described these two young men as being composite sketches released by the FBI soon after the bombing of the federal building in Oklahoma City in April, 1995. Cooper did not recall the names of the two visiting men. (For the sake of clarification they will be referred to as John Doe One and John Doe Two in view of the fact that the two individuals named as such on the FBI composite sketches.

According to Cooper, John Doe Two did virtually all of the talking, while his partner, John Doe One, was silent. John Doe Two told Cooper that they were interested in his philosophical and political messages, but they disagreed with him on his methods. Cooper elaborated, explaining that he advocates fighting the unconstitutional policies and practices of the government by any legal, non-violent means. John Doe Two suggested that more action was needed, and he asked Cooper if he would join them in their cause, although they did not articulate specifically what their cause or mission entailed. Cooper declined, and the men left soon thereafter, ending a visit of perhaps ten minutes that day.

While they walked out to their car, which Cooper could only describe as being yellow in color, John Doe Two opened the trunk and said that he wanted to give Cooper something. He proceeded to remove from the trunk a copy of the book, "The Turner Diaries" and handed it to Cooper. Cooper remarked that he already had a copy of "that racist book", but the two men left the book with him anyway.
At this point in the interview, Cooper was asked if he had retained their copy of "The Turner Diaries". Cooper responded that he already had a copy of that book, and he wasn't sure if he retained the copy left with him by the two men. Cooper further explained that when he moved his research center from St. Johns, he packed volumes of written work and books in a large number of boxes, most of which are now stacked up. Cooper said that if he looked for the copy of the book, it might take him months to find it.

After giving Cooper "The Turner Diaries", the two men got in their car and headed north on the highway toward I-40. As they were leaving, Cooper, who had been inside with the two men during the visit, noted that there were two vehicles down the road. Cooper was convinced that the two vehicles were conducting a surveillance of the men. One of the vehicles was described as a generic-looking white government motorpool vehicle. The driver was taking photographs of the men with Cooper. On the other side of the road was a brown pickup truck with a camper shell. A man, presumably the driver, was taking snapshots as if he were a tourist, but he periodically turned in the direction of Cooper's place to snap photographs of that area.

Cooper recalled that during the brief conversation with the two men that they cautioned him to "watch Oklahoma City" just before they left. Furthermore, John Doe Two asked Cooper if he knew where they could sell valuable historical documents. The man explained that he was talking about documents that might bear the signature of an important person like George Washington. Cooper responded that he had no idea where such documents could be sold.

Cooper provided a physical description of the two men. John Doe Two was the of the two. He was perhaps tall to in height, with a build. He was and had hair. During the course of their visit, Cooper had noted that John Doe Two had and Cooper believes that it was a. Cooper said that during the conversation he even mentioned to John Doe Two that he had a and the man did not disagree.

John Doe Two did not appear to be His age seemed to be that of a man in his John Doe One was and than his counterpart. Cooper estimated John Doe One's height as being between and tall. Cooper was insistent that John Doe One was certainly than the man who has been identified as Timothy McVeigh, who perhaps in height. John Doe One appeared to be in his

Cooper said that both men were very polite, neatly dressed, and gave the appearance of . Both wore Levis or denim pants and short-sleeved, conservative shirts. When responding to questions, John Doe Two used polite terms such as "Yes, sir; no, sir."

After the two men left, Cooper said that he did not give them a second thought. However, about two weeks later, while broadcasting on his short wave radio program, Cooper received a call from an individual who asked him what was going on in Oklahoma. At first, Cooper responded that he had no idea, but then he recalled the visit of the two men around November of 1994, and he briefly recounted what had transpired.

At this point in the interview, Cooper was asked if he recorded his radio broadcasts. He responded that he did, and he was then asked if he would make the tape concerning that telephone call available for review by the FBI. Cooper agreed with this, but he said that it would take some time to locate that specific tape since he was unsure of the exact date or even the exact month when the visit from the two men had taken place.

Cooper was then told that if finding that tape or a copy of the book "The Turner Diaries" was simply a matter of making the time to do it, he was asked if he would permit the FBI to search for these items on his behalf. Cooper responded that he absolutely would not permit the FBI to go through his records or property. He further explained that he did not trust the FBI with his property and said that the federal government and its agents were too lacking in credibility to permit him to allow such a search. He agreed, however, that he would try and locate the tape and when found, would make the tape available to the FBI. He also indicated that he would try and find the book "The Turner Diaries".
Cooper mentioned that his group, which he called the Intelligence Service, has done an extensive investigation of what transpired in Oklahoma City and the government's actions to investigate after the bombing. Cooper stated that around October 1, 1996, he will be publishing a three-volume report on these very issues. In summarizing the results of his report, Cooper stated that in his opinion the federal building in Oklahoma City blew up because it was a government "sting" that went awry or that it was an intentional explosion to ensure that the anti-terrorism bill would be passed by Congress and that the federal government would be given additional law enforcement powers in order to form a police state.

Cooper said that he moved his research center and intelligence service out of St. Johns about six months ago. He said the move was precipitated by a conflict that he had with one of his associates. Cooper stated that he conducted a detailed and thorough background check on anyone who worked for his intelligence service. He also required that his intelligence service associates take an oath to support and defend the Constitution of the State of Arizona and the Constitution of the United States. Cooper said that thus far he has had good results with his associates with the exception of two. According to Cooper, one of them has since been discharged in accordance with the Constitution of the State of Arizona and the Constitution of the United States. Eventually, the other let his supposed power go to his head, and Cooper had to discharge him. Allegedly, has since been.

Cooper began his first radio broadcast in May, 1992. At first, he broadcast through Radio Station WWCR in Nashville, Tennessee. He performed broadcasts five nights a week. Since then, Cooper has terminated his association with WWCR.

Presently, Cooper sends out his radio broadcasts by satellite which are then picked up by over 600 FM stations around the country. Cooper also publishes a political newspaper called "The Cadgy News" (phonetic). Cooper stated that he has published a book entitled, "Behold a Pale Horse", which has sold well among militia members and people of like minds. Cooper said he still receives royalties from sales of that book, even though he has done nothing to advertise the book.

Cooper advised that when he was a young man he served in the Navy, but left disillusioned with the policy decisions of the Senior Admiral for whom he worked. He gave as an example the fact that he handled communications concerning sensitive matters such as the bombing of Laos, Cambodia, and North Vietnam at a time when the president of the United States was disavowing any such actions. After leaving the Navy, Cooper stated that he also served in the Air Force.

At the conclusion of the interview, Cooper, without prompting, said that he believed that he was the subject of Federal Grand Jury deliberations in Phoenix. When asked about the nature of the deliberations, Cooper responded that he has not paid his taxes nor filed income tax returns. Cooper explained that the income tax was an unconstitutional and illegal revenue, and that the income tax amendment to the Constitution was never properly ratified. Cooper said that as a young man he was willing to fight and die for his country even though he later learned that the war in Vietnam had nothing to do with the national interests of the United States. Cooper stated that at this point in his life he is more than willing to fight, and if necessary, die for matters that really count in his country.
A review of Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) Item number 1B-2584 was conducted on October 2, 1996. This item was a video cassette tape given to ______ by Timothy McVeigh titled, "WACO-The Big Lie."
