INTRODUCTION

The Defense Technical Information Center (DTIC) processes thousands of technical reports whose issuing and sponsoring organizations elect to assign technical report numbers to their documents, but fail to adhere to a standard format. It becomes difficult, therefore, to identify these organizations and to retrieve their documents using their assigned report numbers. A standardized technical report format for the input of information makes both retrieval and document identification easier.

The Cataloging Branch (DTIC-OCC), the office responsible for cataloging technical reports, has adopted the newly revised ANSI/NISO Standard Technical Report Number (STRN) Format and Creation, ANSI/NISO Z39.23-1990. The standard was prepared by members of the CENDI (Commerce, Energy, NASA, NLM, Defense Information) Cataloging Working Group for the National Information Standards Organization (NISO), and is available from NISO Press Fulfillment, P. O. Box 338, Oxon Hill, MD 20750-0338, 1-800-282-NISO.

Included in this issue of DOTRAC is a Standard Technical Report Number Update Notification Form to allow users to register or update their STRN's. Also included are explanations and examples of formats and how to create report numbers using the new ANSI/NISO STRN. Hopefully, these inclusions will encourage a more knowledgeable and comprehensive use of the standard.

There are several benefits that result from using a standard technical report number. Reports from the same organization, especially if they include an acronym or abbreviated form of its name, can be grouped together in indexes without confusion; identifying an organization's reports by a short number facilitates both reference and ordering; and libraries and information centers will be able to identify, locate, and easily organize literature according to a consistent and accepted pattern. In addition, a systematic structure for creating these numbers simplifies the process for contributors. Also, the fact that DOTRAC is generated from the DTIC Source Header List enables users to locate source codes and organizational names more expediently with the utilization of organization report codes. Therefore, if your organization is listed in the DTIC Source Header List, AD-A281 000 and AD-A281 001; but no Report Code for your organization has been listed in DOTRAC, please complete the enclosed STRN Update Notification Form (STRN-UP) and return it to DTIC.

STRN DEFINITIONS ANSI/NISO

REPORT CODE -	The Report code is the first portion of the Standard Technical Report Number
GROUP SEPARATOR -	The Group Separator is a double hyphen which separates the Report code from the Sequential Group
SEQUENTIAL GROUP -	The Sequential Group is the second part of the Standard Technical Report Number
SEQUENTIAL NUMBER -	The Sequential Number is the number of reports issued in sequence within a given year
SUBDIVIDER -	Subdividers consists of diagonals (/) and/or single hyphens (-)
SERIES DESIGNATOR -	A Series Designator is a descriptive note describing the report
LOCAL SUFFIX -	A Local Suffix is not a part of the Standard Technical Report Number; but is optional for in-house information only

STRN DEFINITIONS AND EXAMPLES REPORT CODE

REPORT CODE - The Report Code identifies the organization that prepared the technical report. It may also include a series or a special series issued by two or more organizational subdivisions, or a series designator.

In the Report Code alpha and numeric characters are separated by either a diagonal (/) or a hyphen (-). Report Codes have a minimum of two characters and a maximum of sixteen.

EXAMPLE: DTIC/OCC/415/TR

DTIC - Organization which prepared report

OCC - Subdivision within DTIC (Optional)

415 - Special Series (Optional)

TR - Series Designator (Optional)

GROUP SEPARATOR

GROUP SEPARATOR - The Group Separator is a double hyphen (--) that separates the Report Code from the Sequential Group. The double hyphen may not be used elsewhere in the STRN

EXAMPLE: DTIC/OCC/415/TR--

STRN DEFINITIONS AND EXAMPLES SEQUENTIAL GROUP

SEQUENTIAL GROUP - The Sequential Group is the group of characters that follows the Group Separator and is that portion of the STRN that is assigned in sequence by each performing organization or its DoD sponsor or monitor. It may be composed of three parts:

- (1) The last two digits of the year of publication
- (2) A Sequential Number (All Arabic Numerals)
- (3) Uppercase alpha characters and arabic numerals pertaining to volumes, supplements, parts, etc. The total number of characters for the Sequential Group should not exceed 14

EXAMPLE: DTIC/OCC/415/TR--94/1/VOL-1

LOCAL SUFFIX

LOCAL SUFFIX - A Local Suffix is always preceded by a plus sign (+) and immediately follows the sequential group. The Local Suffix is not a part of the STRN, may be of any length and may include any alpha or numeric characters and also commas (,) diagonals (/) and a full stop (.). It can indicate the type of publication, type of nonprint media, series, in-house number, subject, language, etc.

EXAMPLE: DTIC/OCC/415/TR--94/1/VOL-1+CP/STRN

CP/STRN (Conference Proceedings on the Standard Technical Report Number).
