On 10/12/60, Victor Manuel Paneque Y Batista advised that he came to the US in September, 1960, on behalf of the Movimiento Insurreccional De Recuperacion Revolucionaria (MIRR) (97-4474). He said approximately three or four weeks previously he was at the Pentagon, WDC, and spoke to two individuals in the Navy Department to whom he presented a plan for aiding anti-Castro forces in Cuba. On this trip he utilized the services of Dr. Conte Aguero as an interpreter. u

It appeared that the Dr. Conte Aguero referred to by Paneque was undoubtedly identical to Dr. Luis Ernesto Conte Aguero, who claimed to be one of the leaders of an anti-Castro organization known as the CACF. u

On 11/19/60, Alex Rorke, NBC Correspondent, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, NYC, advised that he had heard a rumor to the effect that Paneque was suspected of being a Castro agent. He discounted this rumor, explaining that Paneque had taken a trip (dates not given) to WDC and New York with Aguero, but had later split with Aguero after Aguero had attempted to deceive Paneque, whereupon Aguero started a rumor that Paneque was a Castro agent, as a means of retaliation against him. u

On 12/19/60, Orlando Bosch Avila, M.D., 4138 Southwest 18th Terrace, Miami, reported substantially the same information concerning the above. u

The following references pertain to the associations, contacts, and Anti-Fidel Castro Activities (109-584) of Luis Conte Aguero from July, 1960 to February, 1967, in Florida, New York, WDC, Brazil, and Cuba. Aguero was leader of FAC, an anti-Castro organization which was disbanded in October, 1962; a member of Revolutionary Council (RC), the organ that coordinated the most important Cuban organizations in exile; and head of Sentinels of Liberty, an anti-Castro organization. He was also affiliated with the Movimiento Recuperacion Revolucionario. He attended, participated in and/or was scheduled to attend and/or participate in meetings, demonstrations and affairs. Aguero also made arrangements for a demonstration which he was sponsoring in commemoration of the Cuban War of Independence. Aguero wanted to unite all exile organizations to fight against the tyranny imposed by Fidel Castro, Prime Minister of Cuba, and favored the assassination of Castro. The Alianza de Liberacion, a Cuban counterrevolutionary organization composed of several small groups and dissident splinter elements, was formed under the leadership of Aguero. He wrote a book entitled "Cuba, The OAS, And the International Peace Force". [It was alleged that CIA put Aguero into the *Consejo and then took him out.] It was reported that (u) RC had the backing of President John F. Kennedy. In 1965, Aguero planned to travel to several Latin American countries. In February 1967, he was scheduled to go to Argentina, where he would lobby to get the Cuban question on the Organization of American States' meeting agenda, scheduled for April, 1967, in Uruguay.

On 3/15/67, Tania Ondina Menendez Y Morino, employee at Miami International Airport, Miami, Florida, advised that prior (date not given) to leaving Cuba, during the latter part of 1965, she was contacted by Gustavo Andujar who was engaged in anti-Castro activities. Andujar requested her to contact Luis Conte Aguero, a radio commentator in the Miami area who was broadcasting clandestinely to a group that Andujar was associated with, which was headed by (FNU) Santos, who was serving a jail term because of his anti-Government activities. Menendez did not know whether or not Santos was the true name or a cover name for this individual. She contacted ((date and place not given) Aguero as requested by Andujar, and Aguero stated that he was not interested in re-establishing radio contact with the Santos group. It was the opinion of Aguero that the only solution to the Cuban problem was an invasion in force into Cuba.
