L- This request is not a priority in the larger scheme of things, but if you have a couple of minutes at some point, I would be interested in knowing if the tape transcripts for Russo and Lardner (see earlier e-mail below for how they are referenced) are in the box. If they are readily available in the box, then it would help us with Lardner if we provided him with copies. Again, this is not a big priority, but just a reason to have some more contact with Lardner. Thanks. Let's talk on the phone tomorrow and decide what to do with them. Laura and I will talk today about the next step with these records. Laura advised me of this information yesterday upon her return to the office. I am still interested in the transcripts that were identified on the inventory. She was going to find out where the box of materials from New Orleans is currently located. One correction, Laura said that she did not copy records from Connick's office. She took back the originals that Wessel had packed up into a box. The questions: (1) Where is the box of originals? (2) Were copies ever made? (3) Are the tape transcripts, in fact, with that material that Laura brought back? In addition to being interested in the transcripts, I am interested in the rest of the Connick files because we should do an announcement, at the appropriate time, that they are available to the public. We should also find out that if the Archives (Dave Brown) will need to do some processing of the files before they are made public. I am assuming that processing is necessary and appropriate. Any information on these matters will be appreciated. Thanks. The inventory was prepared by Bill Joyce and me in New Orleans.
