Subject: paychecks

Some of you have noticed that your direct deposits were for different amounts than usual. A new pay policy has gone into effect (involving how benefits are paid out) and this may be the cause of the difference. We will need to wait and see what, if anything, is printed in the message portion of the statements. These changes, however, do not reflect an increase in any benefits, just how they are paid out throughout the year--one of your future checks will probably be for more than usual if this is what the change is from.
