Subject:	LBJ Files
Body:	I spoke to Steve Tilley again today in regards to the NARA LBJ holdings. He informed me that there is indeed an index of sorts provided by the LBJ library. It is not a document-by-document listing, but does reflect more or less the contents of each box. The problem is that although our "Open" database indicates that there are only seven files under <NARA-LBJ>, the actual number of open documents is far higher (likely in the hundreds). There are five boxes directly dealing with assassination issues, and many more that can be considered peripherally related. I plan on examining the JFK assassination files initially. I asked Steve about the fact that we only had seven open RIFs, given all of the open documents available. I didn't really understand his response, and I did not want to press him on it given that I don't really know too much about the numbering/classification system. I plan on returning to Archives II on Friday or Monday, so, perhaps we should talk about this more before then.Thanks, Manuel
